BIRMINGHAM, Mich. (AP) — Police officials hope to get $1 million from the federal government to help them find the killer of four Oakland County children slain during the past year.

Police Chief Rollin J. Tobin's disclosure Saturday that he is applying for the grant from the Law Enforcement Assistance Administration was the first indication that authorities expect a 200-detective task force to spend weeks or months seeking the killer.

"If we think there is a good suspect and we don't have ironclad evidence against him," Tobin said, "it's very possible we'll put this person under surveillance for as long as necessary. It could be a month or two. We don't want to lose this case on a technicality."

Funeral services for the latest victim, Timothy King, 11, were held Friday as investigators from 50 police agencies pressed their investigation.

Police released a new sketch of the man sought in the abduction-slayings of the boy and three other children. They said they are convinced someone knows the killer and is protecting him.

"No individual could have kept four children for varying lengths of time without someone knowing — some relative, some friend," Tobin said.

"He must go through periods when he's not normal and his loved ones are reluctant to report it," Tobin added. "But we've lost four lives because of their reluctance."

Timothy was cremated after a funeral mass at the Holy Name Church. A dozen uniformed and plainclothes police officers were at the church.

The boy's body was found late Tuesday in a ditch in Livonia, about 16 miles from his home in this wealthy Detroit suburb. He was the seventh youngster to be abducted and killed in crimes that began or ended in Oakland County since January 1975. Police say they think the same person was responsible for at least four of the murders.

The King boy was sexually abused, and there were marks showing his hands and feet were bound by his abductor, said the medical examiner.

Oakland County Sheriff Johannes Spreen said he would ask emergency authorization to hire up to 25 additional deputies to assist local departments and street patrols.

Rose Bird sworn in as chief justice

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Rose Elizabeth Bird was sworn in Saturday as first woman Chief Justice of California and the first woman to serve as a regular member of the Supreme Court of California.

"This is a ceremony that very fittingly takes place in the first week of spring," said Gov. Edmund Brown Jr., who appointed Ms. Bird to the high court and administered the oath of office to her.

"It's a renewal of an institution. It's a time of celebration, of investiture," Brown told 200 officials and friends in ceremonies in the room that served as Supreme Court chambers 125 years ago.

Ms. Bird, a controversial figure who served the past 27 months as Brown's cabinet secretary for agriculture and services, said she will dedicate her efforts to balancing individual freedoms against the need to maintain order in society.

"The individual rights of the accused must be balanced against the individual rights of those who suffer a loss at the hands of law violators," said Ms. Bird, a former public defender who met Brown 17 years ago when both attended the University of California.

"A major part of the role of the criminal courts is to ensure that a proper balance is always maintained so that individual freedom can flourish within the ordered structure of the community."

She was praised as brilliant, compassionate legal scholar, an effective administrator and a symbol of hope for equal opportunities for women by speakers at her investiture ceremonies.

"Your appointment and your confirmation are a victory for all of us," said Barbara Jean Johnson, president of the California Women Lawyers Association. "Your appointment creates a role model for girls and young women to emulate, and concrete evidence that the highest goal is attainable."

Brown praised the 40-year-old Ms. Bird as a person "of insight and of wisdom" and predicted that among the activities of his administration, her appointment will be remembered as an act of lasting significance.

Her appointment as chief of the nation's largest judicial system is not expected to significantly change the California court's outlook. Although she rejects labels, she is widely viewed as a liberal, and she replaces a liberal chief justice, the retired Donald Wright.

Vance arrives in Moscow for arms talks

MOSCOW (AP) — U.S. Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance arrived in Moscow Saturday night for talks with the Soviets on nuclear arms control and said his visit "makes clear that detente remains in our mutual interests."

The secretary received a warm welcome from Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko after his jet touched down at Vnukovo Airport about 9 p.m. local time (1 p.m. EST). The Vance party flew in from Brussels, where the secretary briefed European allies on the upcoming talks.

"I am conscious of the great importance of the relationship of the United States and the Soviet Union to the peace and security of the world," Vance told reporters in a brief airport news conference.

He said the main purpose of the trip was to lay the foundation for future negotiations aimed at hammering out a SALT II agreement on the control of nuclear weapons.

During the fight across the Atlantic, Vance said he will propose a comprehensive arms control agreement under which the United States and the Soviet Union would make "deep cuts" in the number of nuclear weapons and delivery systems each now holds.

If the Soviets refuse to agree to the sharp reductions, Vance said he will propose a "fallback position," calling for ratification of the 1974 Vladivostok agreement between then-President Gerald R. Ford and Soviet leader Leonid I. Brezhnev limiting strategic arms levels about where they stand.

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter's top energy adviser said Saturday that the Carter administration is considering a series of energy-saving measures, including a stiff tax on cars with low gasoline mileage.

James R. Schlesinger also said the recommendations include energy-efficiency standards for household appliances and rules to make powerplants burn coal instead of natural gas or oil.

Speaking at a conference of the National Wildlife Federation, Schlesinger said that energy conservation and fuelswitching will be the major ingredients of Carter's forthcoming energy policy, due April 20.

And he added that "mandatory measures ... will be required."

Schlesinger said conservation will mean, among other things:

—"A requirement for better insulation in homes."

—"A requirement for improved fuel efficiency in appliances, both in the home and in industry."

—And "far more fuel-efficient cars," a policy that he said will hit their "eight-mile-per-gallon recreation vehicles that take you to the outback ... as much as the limousines."

Schlesinger said the administration is considering both mandatory regulations and financial incentives to promote energy conservation.

Another administration source said one proposal under consideration is a federal tax that would add as much as $500 to the posted price of new cars that deliver low gasoline mileage, perhaps counterbalanced by government rebates as high as $500 to purchasers of fuel-efficient cars.

This source also said the administration is considering a financial needle to urge electric power plants and other industries burning natural gas or oil under steam boilers to switch to coal, a far more plentiful fuel.

The needle would be a rule requiring these plants to pay as much for equivalent amounts of heat from gas or oil as it would cost in the form of coal, eliminating the advantage derived from the relatively lower prices of gas and oil.

But Schlesinger told reporters after his speech that the "mandatory measures" he mentioned "might imply that new power plants would not be permitted to burn natural gas or oil" regardless of price.

When Schlesinger was asked whether the administration could induce greater energy-efficiency in home appliances without imposing mandatory standards on the manufacturers, he said the question "seems to answer itself," appearing to indicate that mandatory standards would be necessary.

Schlesinger said Carter's emphasis on saving energy "will mean stepping on many toes."

D.B. driver killed when rig overturns

A 24-year-old Diamond Bar man was killed Saturday when the jeep-trailer rig he was driving overturned on Colima Road in Diamond Bar.

Glynn Corral of 916 Golden Prados Drive was declared dead on arrival at San Dimas Community Hospital following the 12:15 p.m. accident east of Calbourne Street.

A highway patrol spokesman reported that Corral's jeep was pulling a trailer loaded with lumber. The trailer began whipping back and forth, causing Corral to lose control of the rig. The rig overturned, pinning the victim beneath it, patrolmen added.

Corral's small son who was a passenger in the jeep, escaped serious injury probably because he was wearing a seat belt, the patrol said.

Could have stolen presidency—Albert

MUSKOGEE, Okla. (AP) — Retired House Speaker Carl Albert said in an interview that he could have used his influence to keep the vice presidency vacant and succeeded former President Richard Nixon when Nixon resigned.

'I think I could have stolen the presidency if I wanted to," he said in an interview published in the Sunday edition of the Muskogee Sunday Phoenix and Times-Democrat.

Albert, a Democrat, said his first opportunity to become next-in-line for the presidency came shortly before then-Vice President Spiro Agnew resigned in 1973.

Agnew, who had been accused of participating in a bribery scheme involving Maryland contractors, had asked him to form a select House committee to investigate the conduct of the vice president.

"Agnew sent word that he wanted to see me," Albert said. "He told me he was being hounded by the press and the Justice Department and he was not sure the White House wasn't with them.

"I decided by myself," Albert said, "That I could have picked out of the House a group of Agnew haters who would have thrown him out."

Agnew eventually resigned, and Albert said he could also have held up the appointment of Gerald Ford, who eventually became president when Nixon resigned.

Of his actions during that period, Albert said: "I didn't do it in terms of wanting to be president. My life didn't depend on being president; the country was the important thing. I decided the most important contribution I could ever make was to follow the intention of the 25th Amendent."

The 25th Amendment delineates the procedure used to fill vacancies in the vice presidency.

Albert refers to Nixon as "probably the most hated president of all time. He had an obsession to get ahead in politics, but Nixon is the only one who even slightly penetrated the Bamboo Curtain, the only president since Truman to make any change in foreign policy."

Albert has retired to his home in Bug Tussle, about 10 miles northeast of McAlester in eastern Oklahoma.

Young Thai government fends off coup

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — The five-month-old Thai government fended off a coup attempt by a far-right former general Saturday and announced that the ringleaders were being deported. One government general and his aide were killed in the short-lived rebellion.

The military-backed conservative government, which seized power in a coup last October, imposed a one-night 9 p.m.-4 a.m. curfew in Bangkok.

But Prime Minister Tanin Kraivixien said in a nationwide television address: "The country has returned to normal. People should go about with their work."

Tanks guarded key government and military buildings and the palace of King Bhumipol Adulyadej, but the city was jammed with its usual traffic and shoppers.

An official announcement said former deputy army commander Gen. Chalard Hiranyasiri, his son Maj. Uswin Hiranyasiri and three other army officers who allegedly led the rebellion had left the country. But airport sources could not confirm the officers had taken off.

The Nationalist Chinese government on Taiwan said it had been informed the men were headed for Taipei, but declared it would not be "coerced" into accepting the rebels.

The Thai government said about 300 soldiers who seized four government and military buildings in Bangkok under Chalard had all surrendered. Officials said the men had been "misled" and would be dealt with lightly.

Reliable sources said the rebellion began in the early morning when soldiers of the 9th Division, carrying fake orders, moved into Bangkok from their base 60 miles west of the capital.

The rebels seized the Radio Thailand broadcasting station and the headquarters buildings of the Supreme Command, the Internal Security Operations Command — ISOC — and the 1st Army Division.

The commander of the 1st Division, Maj. Gen. Aroon Tavatasin, and an aide were killed resisting the takeover of their headquarters, the army said. There were reports a few rebels were wounded.

At dawn, the rebels broadcast a communique over Radio Thailand saying a "revolutionary council" had seized power because the government had failed to solve the country's economic and social problems and "it was necessary to take over in order to preserve sovereignty and religion and uphold the government."

The rebels announced that the head of the new junta was Gen. Prasert Thammasiri, Chalard's successor as deputy army commander.

But soon after that announcement, the army commander in chief, Gen. Serm Na Nakorn Soon, went on the army's television station to say that the bulk of the military was behind the government and Tanin was still in charge.

The government moved quickly, surrounding rebel-held installations with 2,000 men, tanks and jeeps mounted with recoilless rifles. Electricity, phones and water were cut off to the buildings.

Gen. Perm told the rebels by television and loudspeakers from circling planes that those who didn't use their weapons would not be prosecuted. The government said the soldiers soon began to give up in groups of 25 until only about two dozen remained with Chalard at ISOC headquarters.

After a period of negotiations with Chalard, the government announced he and the four other leaders were being deported.

The government said Gen. Prasert, descibed by the rebels as their chief, had in fact been held "hostage" along with army Chief of Staff Gen. Pralong Veerapali.

Chalard was described by one senior Western diplomat as "basically selfish and hardcore right wing." He was ousted from his job as the army's No. 2 man after more moderate rightists officers seized power last fall.

Tanin in his speech said Chalard and his group had spawned a "sad incident," were moved by selfishness and lacked good will toward Thailand and its people.

Coups and countercoups, staples of Thai politics for the past half-century, had been rumored almost since Tanin was handed his job by a group of senior military officers after the October coup. Several factions within the Thai military have maneuvered for power, some critical of Tanin and his civilian cabinet for not moving more decisively on major issues.

Tanin, Thailand's 19th prime minister, did not appear in public or make any announcements until after the coup was put down, when he appeared on television. The counterrebel effort was headed by key military officers who serve as watchdogs over Tanin's government and wield most of the power.

Carter economy plans slowed

WASHINGTON (AP) — The blazing speed Democratic leaders hoped to achieve for enactment of President Carter's major economic proposals appears to have slowed to a brisk pace.

Hopes are gone that Congress might leave several key measures on Carter's desk for signature before starting the Easter recess April 7. And apparently taxpayers will have filed their April 15 returns on last year's income before they can know what the revenue tap on their 1977 earnings will be.

The tax bill that would provide $50 payments to most Americans, the first big element of Carter's two-year, $31.6 billion program to boost the economy, has cleared the House. But in the Senate it is backed up behind the dispute over ethical rules for senators, including the question how much they should be allowed to earn beyond their federal salary of $57,500.

The Senate will not vote on that measure before Friday, so it is not likely to do more than make a bare start on consideration of the tax bill this week.

At the request of Speaker Thomas P. "Tip" O'Neill, a meeting of the top Democratic leadership in both chambers has been called for Tuesday to review the status of the administration legislation and try to reach agreement on a timetable.

After 40 years of prison, parole, robber is free man

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP) — Ben Pickens is completely free, finally, 40 years after he stole $1,184. But the man who served time with Al Capone, Alvin Karpis and George Kelly says he's not angry over his years in prison.

Pickens, 66, and two other men robbed the Bank of Waterloo in Lauderdale County and kidnaped the bank president in 1936. He was sentenced to life imprisonment.

He blames his stiff sentence on public reaction to the 1932 kidnaping and killing of Charles Lindbergh Jr., son of the Lone Eagle, the first man to fly alone across the Atlantic.

"It was hot all over the country after that," Pickens said.

Pickens spent 31 of the next 41 years in prison and the rest of the time on parole. Federal officials reviewed his case Wednesday and granted him total freedom. For the first time since 1932 he was not in prison or on parole.

"I don't hold any animosity toward anybody," Pickens said Friday. "All I want to do now is help other people. I want to warn young men that crime doesn't pay — even if you steal a million dollars. I paid 40 years of my life for $1,184 when I was 22 years old."

Pickens, who was a fur trapper on the Mississippi River as a young man, blamed his crime on "impetuous youth." He began serving his sentence in the Atlanta Prison, where he stabbed a fellow inmate. Pickens said the man threatened to kill him and it was "either him or me. Where was I to hide? Under the bed?"

Five years were added to his life sentence, and he was moved to Leavenworth Prison in Kansas. In 1937, he was transferred to Alcatraz in San Francisco Bay. The prison was closed in 1963 after federal officials found it too expensive to run.

Overfat: stress ages us

EDITOR'S NOTE: When he entered the University of Louisville he was 29 years old. When he left later that day, he was somewhere over 40. He was there for the "stress test," and what doctors told him would age any man. But with effort he can return to his prime.

By BILL HENDRICK
Associated Press Writer

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Here I am. In my prime, 29 years old, 6 feet 2, 177 pounds. I play racquetball at least two hours a week. I feel fine. Or so I thought.

Until I took the "stress test."

"You're in the shape of a man 40 to 49 years old," the doctor said.

"You're 12 pounds overfat," the other doctor said.

And I felt it.

Truth is, I'm not much different from most Americans, they told me, and I can do something about it.

The first step of the "stress test" at the University of Louisville was to immerse me in water. I sat in a chair-like contraption called a hydrostatic weighing devise that dangles into a pool of water. The chair was attached to a scale. I was dipped into the water and told to make sure all of the air was out of my lungs.

"Squeeze it out. Squeeze it all out," says Dr. Art Weltman, 27, who joined Dr. Bryant Stamford, 30, in the research last fall.

The purpose of all of this was to determine my weight under water — with no air in my lungs — so they could tell how much body fat I had. Fat is less dense than water, and what I weighed under water was "the amount other than the fat," said Stamford. "Essentially, the part of you that was weighed under water was the lean body mass."

Everyone needs body fat, but not as much as most of us have. You can be a perfect specimen according to insurance company charts, but you still can be overfat.

After the water ordeal, electrodes were attached to me and I was forced to walk, then run, on a treadmill. When I got off the treadmill, I mounted a stationary bicycle and pumped the pedals until I was panting with exhaustion and sweating profusely. All the while, I had a snorkle in my mouth. To make it even more difficult to breathe, a clamp was placed over my nostrils.

The snorkle was attached to a gasometer, to measure how much oxygen is taken in and how much is breathed out. It was all registered on sophisticated equipment that blinked and counted and changed colors.

The electrodes were attached to an electrocardiogram machine — used to detect abnormal heart activity.

The purpose of all of this was to make me exert myself — to make my heart beat faster than normal. When the test finally was finished, the doctors fed the data into a computer.

My prescription: Self discipline. Walk 30 minutes, at least, every day, at a pace of four miles an hour. That's not running. It's walking briskly. No pills, no crash diet. I wasn't even told to quit smoking, although they said smoking is harmful.

"But I play ball once a week," I protested. Stamford said that's not enough. To be fit, he said, you've got to eat right and exercise every day, or at least four or five times a week.

In my case, I can lose one pound of body fat every two weeks if I take a brisk, 30-minute walk every day. But to stay in shape, I'll have to keep it up.

"We're living in a soft society. We wouldn't have any trouble if sex and eating chocolate cake were good exercises," Stamford said.

Exercise won't necessarily add years to your life, the two exercise physiologists say, but it will improve the quality of your existence.

By the time most people reach the age of 18, "intellectual prowess is more important than physical prowess," Stamford says. "People achieve status by making a lot of money. Having a good strong body loses its importance."

But Stamford says all of that is beginning to change.

"We are most successful with people who come to us and say, 'I'm a slob. I need help,'" he said.

Truck stop robbed

The 76 truck stop at the intersection of Milliken Avenue and the San Bernardino Freeway was robbed Saturday around 12:30 a.m. by a gun-wielding thief.

An employe of the truck stop told Ontario police that the robber brandished a 4-inch blue steel .32 caliber pistol, and demanded money.

The attendant described the robber as black with a large bushy black afro haircut. He said the gunman was 6 feet tall, about 170 pounds and wore a dark waist-length jacket and dark clothing.

APRIL 15

Just the sound has vicious ring

By ED PRATHER
PB Staff Writer

April 15th.

Just the sound of it has a vicious ring leading to nightmarish thoughts of Form 1040, Schedule A and B, deductions, credits, capital gains, liabilities and worst of all—audit.

If they made a movie of it the star would be Vincent Price and parental discretion would be advised.

How many weary taxpayers, frazzled by the mental gymnastics of child care expenses and medical insurance, have not cried out for mercy at the 11th hour — begging for deliverance at virtually any price?

How many would not settle just for the ability to comprehend it all, just to finish and have done with it?

Well, help is here — help in understanding, not paying, mind you.

That help is in the form of cassette tape recordings that explain, step-by-step, how to fill out your federal and state income tax returns.

Available for check-out at the Pomona Public Library, the cassettes were prepared by the Internal Revenue Service and California's Franchise Tax Board. They are available in English, Spanish and Cantonese-Chinese. Forms are also available at the library.

The tape recordings may be borrowed for one-week periods as part of a state-wide test program of the new tax service.

For information, persons may call 620-2011.

And if the voice on the recordings begins to sound like Bela Lugosi, it's all in your mind.

Let the sun 'warm' your home: it pays

By BOB NAGEY
PB Staff Writer

If you let the sun warm your home, the county may let you get by without paying some of your taxes, even though it may require changing the state constitution.

The Los Angeles County Board of Supervisors, intent on saving fossil type fuels — gas, coal and other conventional energy sources — want to give a tax break to those who build solar energy heating systems.

The board passed a resolution this week, urging the state legislature to amend the California Constitution to waive taxes on such heating units.

Supervisor James Hayes, who introduced the proposal, told his colleagues he will personally seek a sponsor in the legislature to put through such a bill.

Right now the constitution provides all real property must be assessed at fair market value. The supervisors feel, however, that those who want to save fuels should be encouraged to intall solar energy systems. One way to encourage such installations is to not add the improvements to the tax rolls, Hayes explained.

"Our supply of fossil fuels, natural gas, is quickly being used up," he claimed. "I feel we should do everything possible to help the public turn to alternative sources of energy, especially pollution-free solar energy."

Grandma Lucille, kids offer Easter cheer

They were slightly ahead of schedule since Easter isn't until April 10. But they had a receptive, appreciative audience that didn't seem to mind.

The boys and girls entertained residents of Palomares Center, a convalescent home, who visibly and emotionally were touched by the amateur performers who had been organized, encouraged and coached by Mrs. McNabb, 2460 Ann Arbor Ave., Pomona.

For many of the residents, the party hats, treats and entertainment brought welcome gaiety. But, others were overcome and tears rolled down their lined cheeks as the children, encouraged by "Grandma" to "love others," bestowed kisses.

Mrs. McNabb, a stay-at-home who cares for her disabled husband, Lawrence, said there is nothing in the world she loves more than children.

So, she spends her time with them and her money on them. By her own count, 246 boys and girls in southeast Pomona call her "Grandma" and their names are on her "birthday" list.

From this group, the troupe of entertainers have banned together. Now that their Easter program is over, they already are working on a Christmas program, Mrs. McNabb said.

Those who "worked the hardest" were Starrla Case, Philip Wright, Christina Wright, Robin Snead, Teri Sneed, Shontel Garcia, Nellie Loudermilk, Heidi Loudermilk, Ina Wood, Perry Wood, Gidget Ezell, Lisa Luscombe, Misty Nuss and Tadd Nuss, "Grandma" said. Mrs. Gladys Wright, one of the neighborhood mothers, shot pictures.

For months, Mrs. McNabb had been preparing for Saturday's program, rising at 4 a.m. to fashion Easter bonnets for center residents, wrap candies and stitch costumes for her performing "kids."

For their program at the center, they sang Easter songs, distributed the hats and the candy and just spent time with residents.

"We're never without kids," said "Grandma." As soon as school is out, she explained, they begin ringing her doorbell. Parties are held regularly, in the front yard, in the garage playroom and in the kitchen, where they pop corn, make cupcakes and eat ice cream.

"We have taken kids to church and school plays and programs, and to clinics and thrift shops. We can't stop now. We've gone too far," said Mrs. McNabb.

Worried we'll lose inflation fight—Ford

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former President Gerald R. Ford said Saturday he is worried that some of the decisions by the Carter administration and Congress will lose the battle against inflation.

"I am seriously concerned that some of the fiscal decisions by the new administration and Congress — even more by Congress — will lead us out of winning the battle against inflation to a serious problem in 1978 or '79," Ford told about 30 reporters at a breakfast.

"If they don't do something to get a handle on fiscal matters they will have a tough time. 1978 and 1979 — that's when the real inflation crunch is going to come."

Ford was on the last day of a three-day visit in Washington to become acquainted with his new offices and colleagues at the American Enterprise Institute for Policy Research, a conservative think tank.

He will make campus lectures under auspices of the institute at a salary reported to be around $40,000 a year.

Speaking of Carter, the former president said, "He's got a real problem if a majority in Congress is not check-reined. They will have a very tough situation in fiscal 1980 and 1981."

Ford has said that he wants to give the new administration time to get settled before making any criticism. He and Carter talked for an hour and 15 minutes in the White House on Thursday, discussing among other things the current trip of Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance to the Soviet Union.

Asked about Carter's human rights approach in conducting foreign policy, Ford replied:

"We did reasonably well. Our tactics were different. Whether the new tactics will be successful I don't know. I'm not going to forecast good or bad."

But he said if Carter's foreign policy "interferes with other matters ... if it has any other undercutting of foreign policy it can be criticized."

State jobless rate takes another drop

LOS ANGELES (AP) — California's unemployment rate posted its fourth straight monthly drop in February, to 7.8 per cent of the total available work force compared to 8.5 per cent in January, it was announced by state officials.

That was almost two percentage points better than the 9.7 rate for February a year ago.

Project fund bid is near its goal

By VONNE ROBERTSON
PB Staff Writer

Claremont Men's College's Project 80 fund drive has almost reached half its goal of over $18 million before the fund-raising drive was publically announced.

The campaign has already tallied $8.3 million in gifts and pledges, according to Donald R. Wheeler, chairman of the board of trustees.

John Payne, vice president for planning and development at CMC, said the program is essentially an endowment campaign.

"We have earmarked about $3 million for scholarships and $700,000 for tutorial programs," he said.

"Another $2 million will be directed toward the Rose Institute of State and Local Government and $2 million for the Applied Economics Financial Center at the college. Other professorial endowments will total about $2.1 million."

Payne added that some of the funds would also be used for current expenses and some campus improvements.

A partial list of the pledges and gifts is headed by a $1 million contribution by Mrs. Don Hayden Rose, to endow the Rose Institute.

Mr. and Mrs. Donald McKenna gave nearly $1 million to Project 80. McKenna is a founding member of the CMC board of trustees.

Another $1.5 million in gifts and pledges has been made by other college trustees.

Foundations have accounted for a sizable amount of the total raised. Among these, the Irvine Foundation contributed $130,00 and the Tuohy Foundation of Santa Barbara accounted for $62,500.

Political arena

SEN. JOHN V. BRIGGS, R-Fullerton, has offered a resolution to the Senate rules giving all segments of the press unrestricted access to all Senate proceedings.

Currently only newspapers have full access, Briggs said.

His "Sunshine Amendment," Briggs continued, "is important to the people of California as it will allow the television and press corps to present Senate proceedings direct to the people, via sound and film.

"The current Senate practice of barring radio and television, except with special permission, is not only uninspiring and unAmerican, but it is probably also unconstitutional. The First Amendment is, in my opinion, being violated," said Briggs.

ASSEMBLYMAN JOSEPH B. MONTOYA, D-La Puente, has co-authored legislation designed to create California jobs by spurring small business development.

The measure is patterned after a bill held by the Assembly Ways and Means Committee, but supported by the Brown Administration.

"Frankly," said Montoya, "I think our timing is much better this year. There is greater concern over the business climate in this state, due in part to the recent pullout of Dow Chemical.

"In addition, we have yet to win the war against high unemployment."

The legislation proposes the appropriation of $3 million to be matched by banks and businesses to establish a loan reserve fund of $9 million. This, in turn, would generate an estimated $100 billion in loans to small and medium-size enterprises, Montoya explained.

The bill, AB 881, may be heard in the Assembly Finance, Insurance and Commerce Committee on April 14.

SEN. RUBEN S. AYALA, D-Chino, chairman of the Senate Committee on Agriculture and Water Resources, has introduced legislation (SB 637) designed to avoid "wasteful and expensive duplication of effort in California's environmental protection program."

Assemblyman John Thurman, D-Modesto, chairman of the Assembly Committee on Agriculture, is co-author of the legislation.

Ayala said the bill is designed to eliminate requirements for environmental impact reports in connection with activities of state agencies that already have protection of the environment and natural resources as one of their principal purposes.

CLYDE R. STEPHENS, Pomona, the 1976 Republican nominee in the 65th Assembly District, has been appointed to the Los Angeles County Republican Candidate Research and Development Committee for the 1977-78 term.

Purpose of the committee is to seek out qualified Republican candidates and prepare them to run for public office. One of the goals for this term is to conduct candidate training seminars.

U.S. SEN. ALAN CRANSTON, D-California, has said he will oppose any effort to impose new penalties, "civil or criminal," on government employes who leak classified information to the press.

"The greatest deterrent to wrong doing or folly in government is fear of public disclosure," said Cranston. "We must not muzzle federal employes who, in good conscience, reveal violations of the law or wrong behavior by elected officials."

Cranston, a former newsman, said he "strongly disagrees" with the new CIA head, Stansfield Turner, that new criminal sanctions should be provided by law to punish government employes who violate an oath of secrecy.

"I am most pleased that President Carter indicates that he also opposes criminal penalties," Cranston said. "But the President's statement that he might support additional civil penalties is most unsettling. All they would do is tighten the gag on conscientious employes who wish to blow the whistle on corruption and mistakes."

ASSEMBLYMAN BILL MC VITTIE, D-Upland, will speak April 8 at a luncheon meeting of the San Gabriel Valley Regional Council, AFL-CIO. The meeting will be held at Santa Anita Lanes in Arcadia.

Mc Vittie is expected to discuss legislation of interest to organized labor under review in Sacramento.

Bucknell Avenue area periled?

Resident proposes bus change

By GEORGE MacLAREN
PB Staff Writer

A Bucknell Avenue resident has presented to the Claremont City Council a plan which would get 61 Rapid Transit District buses off his poorly-paved, narrow residential street.

John Murphy made his second visit to a council meeting and complained that unless Bucknell Avenue is changed as a layover spot for RTD buses, "it is inherently unsafe because of the condition of the street, and the fact that many school children use the street which has no curbs, shoulders or sidewalks."

Murphy explained that 31 drivers on Route 452 and 30 drivers on Route 454 all park on Bucknell Avenue or Santa Fe Street during their "stop and smoke" period.

He also explained that all drivers use either the restroom at Vortox Co. or the Shell station at Arrow Highway and Indian Hill Boulevard.

Murphy said that Route 454 has only five pickup spots in the city and they are all on Arrow Highway west of Indian Hill Boulevard.

"Why shouldn't this route be reaching more potential riders?" he asked.

Murphy suggested rerouting Route 454 to come east on Arrow Highway, north on Cambridge Avenue, east on Bonita Avenue, and south on Indian Hill Boulevard before returning to Pomona via Arrow Highway.

He said that retirement community residents could take advantage of the buses which go to Pomona Valley Community Hospital.

Murphy stressed that all four streets are wide and safe.

Murphy and his neighbors inherited the problem of the RTD buses after residents on Olive and Green streets complained about RTD buses using those streets for layovers and then "highballing" on them.

The city contacted RTD which re-routed the two bus routes to Bucknell Avenue and Sante Fe Street.

Council member Claire McDonald commended Murphy on his suggestions.

Handicapped association meet slated

The California Association for Neurologically Handicapped Children will hold a special meeting for parents and other interested persons to discuss children with learning disabilities.

The meeting will be held Monday at 7:30 p.m. at Mountain View School, just below Foothill Boulevard west of Mountain Avenue, in Claremont.

Mrs. Arlene Krieger, president of the Pomona Chapter of CANHC, will introduce the participants who will discuss the several aspects of learning problems — educational, medical, behavioral and social.

The meeting is open to all interested persons. For additional information, call Mrs. Marcia Folk, 624-8484.

In the sweep of mystic powers

'Pendulum' power: Something new for swinging believers

EDITOR'S NOTE: Palm readings, crystal balls, Ouiji boards, paper pyramids. In search for satisfaction, whether it's for sharper razor blades or a keener sense of self, believing can be buying. Here's something for swingers, or at least those who sway with the times. It's pendulum power.

By G.G. LaBELLE
Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Will the faithful gathered at the pyramid swing with the pendulum?

In the fast-paced marketplace of the occult, with its appetite for trends, the latest bid comes in a paperback called "Pendulum Power."

It offers the pendulum as an instrument to solve sex problems, diagnose illnesses, prescribe vitamins, locate cavities, answer career questions and tell what colors soothe you most.

In the sweep of mystic powers the authors ascribe to the pendulum, the book is reminiscent of similar occult properties attributed to the pyramid in a recent book by the same publisher (and one of the same authors) called "Pyramid Power."

The pendulum is not the kind on the grandfather clock, but more free swinging — a weight on a thread, for example. Such a pendulum will release secrets of the brain and, by electrical impulse, point to the solution.

The scientific name that pendulumists give the practice is radiesthesia or radiation physics. The judgment of the scientific establishment is that it's utter nonsense.

But that hasn't deterred the coauthor of the new book, who says the opinions of doctors, dentists and scientists are not surprising.

"I can understand very well why they would be against it," says Joseph Polansky, who describes himself as a professional astrologer, researcher and writer. "It undercuts all the axioms on which they have built their lives."

Polansky wrote the book with Greg Nielsen as a followup to "Pyramid Power," which Nielsen coathored, and "Sun Sign Success," which Polansky wrote.

"Pyramid Power" has sold more than 300,000 copies in paperback so far and is being translated into seven languages, says Ehut Sperling of Destiny Books, which published both. "Pendulum Power," published last month, has a 100,000 first printing and is doing well, he says. And for those who don't want to make their own, the firm soon will start selling pendulums, too.

The book tells the history of the pendulum, how to build and use it, how pendulum power "can change the shape and future of our entire civilization," and, more immediately, how it can help the individual:

"When put into practice in daily life, pendulum power can provide accurate and spontaneous information which can lead to happier, healthier and more wholesome living."

The building is simple: Take black silk thread — "black vibrates a less disturbing wave than do the rainbow colors" — and attach a button, wedding ring, wooden dowel or any such everyday item.

To learn to use it, draw vertical and horizontal arrows and clockwise and counterclockwise circles on a piece of paper. Begin by holding the pendulum over the vertical arrow.

"Now look at the pendulum and, with the power of your mind, will the pendulum to move up and down in the same direction as the arrow. Do not move it with your fingers or hand. Use only the power of your mind and will.

"Nine out of ten times the pendulum will obey," say the authors. Then you simply do the same thing with the horizontal line and the two circles. Now comes the hard part.

It takes a year to a year and a half of daily practice — five minutes a day is recommended — to learn to use the pendulum to solve problems. But the rewards listed are lavish and many.

A glance at chapter headings tells some of the grander ones. "The pendulum opens the door to the infinite," and "Exploring the hidden powers of your mind." But then there are specifics, too.

Finding a sexually compatible partner, for example. Just write down the names of those available and hold threaded bead or button over each. Clockwise is negative, counterclockwise is love at last. Is there still a choice? The wider the circle, the lovelier the loving. It's good also for overall compatibility and simple old friendship.

Got a career problem? Take the case of "Bob D.," a dentist who lost his taste for teeth. With the pendulum he discovered he was really intended to be a singer, took lessons, appeared in amateur shows and now hopes to break into nightclubs. His success with the pendulum is not surprising; he'd been using it to locate his patients' cavities.

Medical troubles can be located, too. Holding the pendulum over a simple drawing of the body will pinpoint the problem. Then you can find diet for treatment, or vitamins and even dosage — government minimum daily requirements were found to be "pitifully inadequate" for many people.

And should all else fail, use the pendulum to choose a doctor.

Speaking of doctors, the American Medical Association looks skeptically at the pendulum as a diagnostic tool. Said a spokesman: "It sounds like a pretty unscientific way to diagnose human illnesses."

The American Dental Association demurred at providing a spokesman to react to Nielsen's and Polansky's thoughts on dentistry. But it said Dr. Edward Zegarelli, dean of the Columbia University Dental School, might take it on. He did.

"Oh brother," he began. "I've heard many things about dentistry but this is the most bizarre ... I hope you don't mind my laughing."

The American Physical Society also declined to speak or recommend a physicist to comment. In so doing, the society's spokeswoman noted: "Most phycisists don't have a very good sense of humor."

But then where to go to get scientific opinion? As Sperling said when asked about the authors' formal scientific training in radiesthesia: "You can't really get a degree in it."

PENDULUM POWER — A pendulum swings in front of an intent observer in a demonstration of the latest item in the occult marketplace. "Pendulum Power" is touted by Joseph Polansky, who's coauthored a book with that title. Polansky calls his science radiesthesia and claims it solves many health, emotional and other problems.

Jungle life lures youthful couples to Barton Creek

JUNGLE PIONEERS — Young Americans Jim and Annie Eackles live in a crude wooden hut on the farm they've hewn from the jungles of Belize in Central America where they and other young Americans struggle happily in a new pioneer lifestyle.

By TOM WELLS
Associated Press Writer

BARTON CREEK, Belize (AP) — Several dozen young couples from the United States are buying jungle land for as little as $20 an acre in this Central American country the size of Massachusetts and once known as British Honduras. They are clearing it with machetes and trying to fashion the humble beginnings of their own farms.

Many didn't know what the deadly fer-de-lance snake looked like, how to slaughter a pig and when and how to plant crops.

Dozens who came here to get back to nature, as if hugging a tree every morning would solve everything, couldn't take the rigors and left.

Some, like Joseph Dunsmoor and his wife, have endured.

"I came down here to be a raw food guy and ended up wandering around chewing on roots and almost dying of starvation the first six months," Dunsmoor says.

After two years, he has a machete, a file, a hut, a cow, a horse and a few acres of beans and peanuts.

What he wants, but never has the money to buy when he gets out of the bush, is a flashlight, "so I can see what kind of things are making all those noises in my house after I snuff out the lamp."

Dunsmoor, whose wife was in the States to give birth to their second child, is the son of an Army man and lived all over the United States, including five years at Fort Leonard Wood, Mo., before coming to this predominantly-black tropical area.

Barton Creek is hot and humid. Canopy jungle is mixed with secondary growth of vines and other plants so thick it can take an hour to chop through 100 yards of it.

With his mare in foal and worms starting to eat his harvested peanuts, Dunsmoor jumped at the chance to get two 100-pound bags of peanuts to market by getting a ride in a four-wheel-drive vehicle with an AP newsman and photographer. The four-mile jungle trail was so muddy it took four hours to make it to the nearest solid dirt road.

Jim and Annie Eackles are another couple living in the valley. Calling them Mr. and Mrs. creates an image of the middle class lives they left three years ago — he in College Station, Tex., and she in Nashua, N.H.

The Eackles sat around a rough timber table with Dunsmoor and two visitors in the 12-by-20 foot hut and talked about their lives, why they want to raise a child — their first is expected in June — on their farm.

"We're doing something we like," says Jim. "Some people come here looking for something noble and they can't do anything noble, so they go home."

On raising a child, Annie says: "The main thing is that a child growing up here will have an entirely different set of values than a child growing up in a big city back in the States. A child would learn here that everything must be earned with work, that no one gets something for welfare, food stamps — the whole bit — and they could work if they wanted to work. We want our child to grow up different than that."

Former 'first' ladies: still living in the nation's eye

EDITOR'S NOTE: Four are widowed, two are over 80, some are active publicly, others prefer privacy. Their lives are different, but they have one common bond: they are former first ladies. The country now counts six, and an AP reporter gives you the latest word on how they're doing.

By Harry F. Rosenthal
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — We call them by their first names, so well do we know them. Bess, Mamie, Jackie, Lady Bird, Pat, Betty.

We talk of them like family. Bess and Harry were childhood sweethearts, you know. If Mamie knew Ike had an affair, she never let on. Jackie is dating . . .

Oh, yes, we know some intimate details. Little ones, like how Mrs. Johnson got her name from a baby nurse who proclaimed her "purty as a lady bird." Romantic ones: Dick proposed to Pat on the day they met. Tragic ones: Betty had cancer and had a breast removed.

Whether they like it or not — and most of them don't — wives of Presidents achieve enduring celebrity status. Pat Nixon got a half million get well letters after her stroke. Widows wrote Mrs. Johnson "I know what you're going through" after LBJ died. Bess Truman could count on a deluge of cards for her recent 92nd birthday.

History casts a ledger-sheet eye at Presidents: A plus here, a minus there. Their wives are remembered more kindly. Thus, Bess Truman and Mamie Eisenhower could be praised for remaining in the background, Jacqueline Kennedy for the glitter and sophistication she brought to the White House, Lady Bird Johnson for her legacy of beautification.

Pat Nixon's image is that of a devoted wife buoying a beleaguered husband. Betty Ford will be noted for her outspokenness and the example she set for other women who have cancer.

The new first lady, Rosalynn Carter, set out to put her own mark on her husband's incumbency while people still were learning to pronounce her first name (Roh-sah-lin, not Raw-se-lin), taking charge of Carter's Commission on Mental Health.

Good Housekeeping Magazine's annual poll of the world's 10 most admired women placed Pat Nixon No. 1 for 1973 and 1974 — the years of Nixon's lowest popularity. She was second to Betty Ford for 1975 and No. 1 again last year.

The magazine noted that the ranking for 1976 may have reflected sympathy for Mrs. Nixon after her stroke in July. Yet Mamie Eisenhower, out of the White House since 1961 and seldom in the news, has made the list consistently.

With such continuing interest and their ranks swelling to six this year, it seemed a good idea to see how the former first ladies are faring. The tour began with Mrs. Onassis, at a luncheon in New York.

Twice-widowed, burned by gossip sheets and harried by photographers, Jacqueline is Garbo-like in her pursuit of privacy. At 47, one of the world's most elusive and intriguing women has a career as a consulting editor for Viking Books.

She was flushed with pride over completing the first book that bears her name, an illustrated treatise on life in Imperial Russia. "I don't see it as work," she said, with emphasis on the last word. But her publisher assures that she really puts in a full schedule and that it is not just "a Hollywood type of star with a double doing the hard part of the job." With one book done, she is involved in a half dozen other publishing projects.

Mrs. Onassis skillfully deflected talk from herself to the book. But it was obvious there is a change from the young Mrs. Kennedy who set fashion styles, promoted the arts and entertained in a manner previously unknown to the White House. Today, she is the modern working woman who dashes to the corner deli when work presses, who goes to a business luncheon in black turtleneck and slacks wearing no makeup and no jewelry save a watch and gold wedding band.

"It's sort of like holding your nose and jumping," she said of her first work product. And, confided the woman once married to a President and once to a Greek shipping tycoon: "I always wanted to be some kind of writer or newspaper reporter, but after college I did other things."

Betty Ford wanted to be a dancer, but she, too, wound up in the White House. As she left, she planned "to be very active in continuing with the same projects that I have been affiliated with when I was first lady." True to her word, Mrs. Ford plunged right in, making telephone calls on behalf of the Equal Rights Amendment and establishing herself in California as a supporter of the arts. Her immediate problem was one most other presidential wives haven't had — moving to a new state, renting a house and working on planning, building and furnishing a new home.

Aboard the presidential jet that carried the Fords westward on Jimmy Carter's inauguration day she said, "We enjoyed every minute we were in the White House, but I think it was time to go." She had a sense of relief about stepping out of the "seven-day-a-week, 24-hour-a-day job," a little nostalgia about leaving the capital where she and Jerry lived for 28 years.

The beginning of private life has been busy for Betty Ford. "I told Jerry I don't want him home to lunch," she said. She need not have worried. He's played in two golf tournaments and accepted four part-time jobs.

The Fords' social life at Rancho Mirage — in the vicinity of Palm Springs — is active. Says a friend: "She's commenting on the ability just to pick and choose wherever she wants to go."

Now that she's been a civilian for a while, has she expressed any regret about leaving the White House? The friend laughed and said, "Oh, hell, no."

Lady Bird Johnson says she had no difficulty adjusting to life outside the White House. "I always knew I would leave, I was always heading in that direction," she says. "Home was Texas. Washington was a long interlude."

Mrs. Johnson is the most visible of the six former presidential wives because of her beautification projects, her work at the University of Texas where she was a regent for six years, her help with the LBJ Library in Austin and her extensive travels. Interviewed in her eighth-floor office at the library — a room with a Cinemascope view — she said she was doing the many things put on the shelf while Johnson was alive.

"I had the opportunity to help Lyndon, which was a heck of a lot more than I could ever do, and it was an all-absorbing life," she says. "There were lots of things I hadn't done and I knew, perhaps with a little touch of sadness, that I was letting time slip away from me. When the time came, believe me, I set about doing them with total delight."

Now 64, she is so busy that she carves out one month — April — in which she tries not to be committed to a chore. That's when Texas is alive with wildflowers.

And she loves travel. "I always knew I wanted to go to those far-away places," she said a while ago as she prepared for a three-week trip to Egypt. "I always wanted to go down those rivers and explore those ancient civilizations..." and, she added, "I especially wanted to sit by the fire and laugh with my grandchildren."

DINING OUT IS FUN!

When Johnson died in 1973, a month after attending Truman's funeral, a flood of letters from other widows flowed to Mrs. Johnson. She answered each one. Typical is a reply she sent to a woman in Pennsylvania: "It's easy to see we share not only sorrow and loss, but the blessings of many full and fulfilling years with our husbands. We are among the world's lucky ones, really, having had so much."

Unless they choose otherwise, like Mrs. Johnson and Mrs. Ford, a protective screen goes up around former first ladies; one that is difficult to penetrate. Family and friends hold their privacy as sacred, and interviews, if they are granted at all, are under a pledge of anonymity.

That is especially true for Pat Nixon.

Casa Pacifica, the Nixon estate at San Clemente, is protected on one side by a uniformed guard and on the other by cliffs, the sea and the Secret Service. Telephone calls to the small Nixon staff go unanswered.

Last July 8, just hours after the New York state appeals court disbarred her husband, word came that Mrs. Nixon had suffered a stroke. She was severely handicapped — left arm and leg paralyzed, speech impaired. A program of therapy was begun.

"She's really had a remarkable recovery," says a friend.

From that conversation and others, this picture emerges: She still undergoes therapy but now walks unaided. There still is a problem with her left arm, but her speech is good. At first, the therapist stayed in the house, now she goes to him once or twice a week. She is often on the grounds taking care of the garden. She manages the household, instructing the live-in help, Manolo and Fina Sanchez.

She goes to department stores to shop. She regrets that she can't answer the estimated half million letters she received. The task is too great, there is not enough money. She doesn't miss the White House but feels there were a lot of things left undone.

Courage marks Mrs. Nixon more than anything else, her friends say: "She could have easily given up after the stroke because they have been through so much ... But she has never felt sorry for herself in her life and isn't doing it now."

In Independence, Mo., the big Victorian house at the intersection of Truman Road and Delaware is unchanged from the days when the 33rd President of the United States would come out for his morning paper and walk. In the library on the ground floor, Mrs. Truman reads her beloved mysteries. She is thin but healthy. She has arthritis in the right knee and walks with a cane. She has no live-in help, but over her protests that it is unseemly to have a man in the house, a Secret Service agent sits up all night in the parlor.

Mrs. Truman's concession to age — at the insistence of daughter Margaret Daniel — is in sleeping on the first floor. "She goes to the hair dresser, things like that," says Margaret, who spent a week in Independence when Mrs. Truman celebrated her 92nd birthday in February. "When the weather gets warmer, she will go out for drives. I was rather appalled that she even went to the hairdresser the other day because it was five below zero."

The winter cold, says a friend, made Mrs. Truman

PRIZE BABY Lewis E. Androus of Pomona hoids a photograph of himself sitting in a small cart which was taken in 1908. He was 1 year old and had just been named Prize Baby.

Pomona businessmen join YMCA campaign

Allman, Thatcher to lead Central Branch effort to collect 'local' activity funds

Two Pomona business and community leaders have been appointed co-chairmen of the drive to raise $175,000, Central Branch's share of the $760,000 fund-raising campaign to improve Pomona Valley YMCA facilities.

They are Guy Allmon, retired senior deputy state labor commissioner, and Currier H. Tahtcher, owner of Allied Dental Laboratories. The appointments were made by Al Smith, YMCA president.

Allmon, a long time supporter of YMCA activities, has served as chairman of the YMCA Central Branch board of managers, and has been a member of the YMCA Metro board of directors.

Thatcher has been a member of the board of directors and served as last year's campaign chairman of the Central Branch membership drive.

Both said they intend to recruit 100 workers to help in the Pomona fund solicitation which will function under the direction of five division leaders. They are Mayor Ray Lepire, Thomas Matzen, Duane Slocum, John Felton and Mrs. Helen Boughton.

Funds raised for the Pomona portion of the campaign will be used for the addition of two racquetball-handball courts with a weight-lifting room underneath. The swimming pool also will be repaired and a new YMCA sign will be erected to permit visibility from Garey Avenue. When the $175,000 Pomona goal is obtained, it also is planned to provide a separate locker room for girls who must now share locker facilities with the women's program.

Campaign leaders will later be named for separate fund-raising efforts for the San Dimas-La Verne and Claremont branches.

Persons wishing to make donations to the "Promise of Youth" capital fund campaign or requesting additional information may call Larry Woods, YMCA general director, at 629-9133.

'Prize Baby' takes fond look at past

He has lost his long, blond curls, but his memories are still burning bright

By PHYLLIS CANNON
Asst. City Editor

Although he has lost his long, blond curls, Lewis E. Androus of Pomona still has the big blue eyes that helped him capture the title of Prize Baby in a 1908 contest, sponsored by Pomona merchants.

Purpose of the contest, as explained by Doc Peirsol in one of his recent "It Happened in Pomona" columns in the Progress Bulletin, was to attract customers into the downtown area.

Androus, a year old at the time, was awarded a small, four-wheeled cart as a prize, a vehicle which may have led him to his present occupation.

He, and his wife Vera, for 34 years have operated a service station (ARCO at 295 E. Mission Blvd., Pomona). The 69-year-old Prize Baby is still going strong.

He reads Peirsol's "It Happened in Pomona and "Just in Jest" pieces and smiles, Androus said, "Because most of the time, when he talks about things that have happened in Pomona, I remember them, too."

Androus was born in a house on Third Street and when he was a small child the family moved into a big home on west Mission Boulevard.

His grandfather, S. N. "Sam" Androus, was elected to the state Senate in 1892.

His father, Lewis S. Androus, had the first rural mail delivery route in Pomona, and, for a time, ran a paint store.

His mother, Edith G. Androus, played piano for the silent films. "I was about 6 or 7. I used to see all the films because mother would take me with her. When I got tired, I would lie down on the front seats and go to sleep. When the film ended, mother would wake me up and take me home."

Androus remembers the flood of 1914. "I was a carrier for the old Bulletin, and the press room was flooded."

Androus has a mini collection of high quality photographs of his parents' home and Pomona, dating back to the 1880s. He has a copy of the 1937 Pomona telephone directory. It has 42 pages. Telephone numbers have only two digits. Peirsol is listed.

Peirsol, former advertising manager of the Progress Bulletin and, later, general manager of the Ontario Daily Report, retired in 1968.

Androus produced from deep within his collection box a crisp new $1 scrip issued March 4, 1933 by the Progress Bulletin and signed by W. S. Stevens, Nelson J. King and A. T. Richardson.

Peirsol said he remembers the scrip "and the government made us cut it out." The newspaper was issuing the money which was honored by merchants and the paper for a short period of time.

Autistic children: they're trapped in a world with walls

By VONNE ROBERTSON
PB Staff Writer

Donnie, 4, was mute last June and displayed a great deal of ritualistic behavior at that time. A handsome boy, with large pensive eyes, he's now concentrating on learning to match simple objects.

Ritchie is 6, but is unusually large for his age. He possesses a fairly good vocabulary but fights looking people in the eye and "turns off" readily.

Kerry, 9, is a beautiful girl with her long blonde hair tied back with a ribbon. She giggles easily but has great difficulty understanding and generalizing between phrases.

All three are autistic children.

The youngsters and their parents are participating in a research and treatment program directed by Laura Schreibman, psychologist and instructor at Claremont Men's College.

Miss Schreibman and her research partner, Robert Koegel of UC Santa Barbara, received a $17,548 grant from the National Institute of Mental Health to fund the first year of the project which compares two types of behavior modification treatment of autistic children.

Miss Schreibman anticipates that the grant will be continued this fall and says the center will be looking for additional autistic children.

"No one has yet figured out the cause of autism," says Miss Schreibman, "but the current concept with most people is that autism is organic, but not genetic."

She adds that there is not one shread of evidence to implicate the parents, an old concept put forth when the illness was first defined in the 1940s.

"We know it differs from childhood schizophrenia, but that's irrelevant, since the treatment for both is the same," added the professor.

Autism occurs in boys four times as frequently as in girls and usually affects the first-born child.

Donnie, Ritchie and Kerry are all first-born children. The two boys each have a younger brother and Kerry has a younger sister. The younger children are all normal.

"It's hard to describe an autistic child without listing to the symptoms," Miss Schreibman said. "The child does not have the facial characteristics of a mentally retarded youngster.

"They look normal, but they don't act normal."

Autistic children are not affectionate and do not respond to affection from others. They are not social in any way and, often, are unaffected by the absence of parents.

Many have no language ability. Other are echolalic, which means they will echo what is said by others, probably with no comprehension of the meaning.

"Many have what is called 'delayed echolalia' when they will repeat a previously-heard phrase without any relationship to the existing situation," said the psychologist. "We don't understand the mechanism of this behavior."

Most autistic children also engage in repetitive, nonfunctional behavior. They also have a compulsive desire for sameness. Moving a piece of furniture or leaving the lid off of a can may send the child into hysterics.

Miss Schreibman says that while the diagnosis of autism needs to be made early so that treatment can begin when the child is young, many physicians either fail to recognize the condition or hesitate to confirm it.

If autism is recognized early and treatment begins before the child is 5, clinical prognosis is good. The probable improvement declines as the child gets older before treatment.

The program at the CMC center stresses working with language and training the parents to work with the children.

"The major problem with these children is that they don't communicate," added the psychologist.

"But most parents of autistic children are highly motivated and willing to spend hours working to develop the necessary language skills which other children adopt readily."

Students at the college clinic and Miss Schreibman work with Donnie, Ritchie and Kerry and their parents plus other clients, several times each week.

"Help is hard to find," said Donnie's mother, Mrs. Louise Angers of Ontario. "A doctor at Kaiser Foundation Hospital in Fontana finally diagnosed our son and referred him here."

Donnie was mute when he started behavior modification treatment at the college nine months ago. He then became echolalic, quoting television commercials. Now he has some vocabulary and is attending a transitional class at Arroyo School in Ontario. His mother is a psychology major at Chaffey College.

"Donnie has progressed rapidly," Miss Schreibman reported. "He is being treated while he is young and his parents are skilled trainers."

Ritchie was diagnosed at UCLA Neurological Center, his mother reported. He is in a special class with seven youngsters in Walnut and has been participating in the CMC research program 1½ years.

His parents work with him "around the clock," the mother added. He still has trouble with eye contact.

Kerry's younger sister often takes over the role of therapist. Both of her parents participate in the training sessions with the therapists.

Kerry has been coming to the program only since September and started treatment at an older age than psychologists recommend. However, she is progressing nicely, Miss Schreibman said.

Children who were clearly autistic are described in books written many years ago. However, children suffering from autism were not identified as a separate group until 1943 when a leading American psychiatrist, Dr. Leo Kanner, first described the syndrome of early infantile autism.

The name comes from the Greek word autos, which means self. Kanner used the name because these children tend to draw within themselves.

Most psychologists agree the name is not a good one. Especially when youngsters like Donnie, Ritchie and Kerry begin to blossom out and absorb the world around them.

BEHAVIOR MODIFICATION Donnie Angers, 4, concentrates on matching two toy cows for psychologist Laura Schreibman during behavior modification workshop for autistic children at Claremont Men's College. Donnie's mother, Mrs. Louise Angers, observes so that she can continue training at home.

Library funding request studied

Pomona City Council Monday night will review a request from the Pomona Library's board of trustees asking that federal revenue sharing funds be granted the library in order to fund a projected $96,000 deficit for the coming fiscal year.

In a letter to the council, board president Beth Page points out the service reductions made during the past year and asks that further cuts be avoided by allowing the library to balance its books with the federal funds.

Medicare gets costlier

There can be little doubt that Medicare, the federally operated health insurance program for the elderly and disabled, has been good for what ails people — especially people who happen to be members of the medical establishment.

The Department of Health, Education and Welfare reports that 1,752 medical groups and clinics, 58 laboratories and 409 "solo practitioners" collected $100,000 or more in Medicare funds during 1975. Three solo practitioners were listed as having earned more than $300,000 each and 26 others more than $200,000

Total Medicare payments to doctors and health care institutions came to $4.7 billion in the last fiscal year, more than a seven-fold increase over the $644 million paid out in 1965 when Medicare was initiated.

The department hastens to caution that those receiving large payments have not necessarily been milking Medicare, although a program as large as this one has inevitably had its share of abuses.

Fortunately, Medicare seems to be better run than the companion $15-billion Medicaid program, which a Senate committee last year found guilty of "abysmal" administration and widespread fraud.

Nor, of course, do the figures necessarily represent pure profit to the recipients. If their incomes are large, so are their expenses.

But the steady growth in both Medicare and Medicaid ought to prompt taxpayers to view proposals for comprehensive federal health insurance for all Americans with a high degree of skepticism. Experience shows that programs like these, no matter how modestly begun, have a way of taking on ever-expanding lives of their own.

National health insurance may be just what the social doctors order, but even the most cautious estimates of its potential cost and potential scope for waste make the programs we now have look like peanuts.

Sales report on new CBs

Last year, manufacturers of Citizens Band radios were worried about how they were going to unload all the 23-channel models that would still be in the pipeline when the new 40-channel models went on the market on Jan. 1.

The report from the field, however, is that the 23s are still selling well and the 40s not so well, or at least not as well as predicted. Rather than phasing out the 23s, some companies have stepped up production of them to meet the demand.

One of the reasons is the price differential between the two types. The 40-channel sets run 10 to 15 per cent higher than the 23s. But another reason seems to be the belief held by many CBers and would-be CBers that the new radios are not as good as the old rumors abound that they don't have as much power.

Not so, says the industry. William A. Thomas, president of one of the leading CB manufacturers (Pace), points out that not only do the 40-channel radios have the same power and modulation characteristics as the 23-channel type, but they offer greater range and flexibility in the upper 17 channels because of less interference.

Another plus is new circuitry designed to cut down interference with TV and hi-fi equipment. This has been a major source of complaint from the non-CB public.

Well, our free advice to the industry is to hang in there. The new models have only been available for three months, and if the Citizen Band boom is more than just a fad — and experts agree it is only the beginning of a revolution in personal communications — sales of the 40-channel radios have nowhere to go but up.

Think on these things

Sadness is something that clings to us like dust particles. Its subtlety fools us until there is such a buildup that there's no doubt — it is sadness. But what are we sad about? Is there something concrete we can deal with? Or is it just everything — and nothing in particular?

There are times when there is simply a sorrowing of the soul — the consciousness that all is not well with everyone generally. How can I be happy when there is so much wrong around me? But that's the whole secret — to be a seed of happiness, a spark of hope, a star that someone can look to and follow out of the dark places. If we fall into the trap that we're supposed to be sad because the world is sad we're no different from the unthinking ones.

Sadness is merely a symptom that is contagious — but so is cheerfulness.

U.S. policy is hypocritical

Dear Editor:

The United States government has decided to stop all chrome purchases from Rhodesia. The reason given by the Carter administration is that the United States protests the "repressive" politics of the Ian Smith led government against the black majority in Rhodesia. What a bunch of bunk!

The United States still buys chrome from the Soviet Union. What about its repressive politics against all of its citizens? The United States can buy and trade with the Soviet Union, Communist China, East Germany, Yugoslavia and practically all the world's leading criminals but not with anti-Communist and Christian Rhodesia.

How do we justify that? Could it be that the U.S. government is now pro-Communist and anti anti-Communist? What other explanation is there? Why is it that leftists are never heard from when it comes to opposing Communism but scream bloody murder when opposing anti-Communism?

Perhaps Ian Smith should wise up and turn Rhodesia into a Marxist police state. Then he would win favor with the present U.S. government. The Rhodesian chrome policy is pure hypocrisy and those congressmen and senators who voted for it are like the Pharisees as Christ described them:

". . . hypocrites! because you are like whited sepulchers, which outwardly appear to men beautiful, but within are full of dead men's bones and of all uncleanness. So you outwardly appear just to men, but within you are full of hypocrisy and iniquity."

Sit-ins planned by handicapped

WASHINGTON — Thousands of handicapped Americans may risk being wheelchaired off to jail in a militant attempt to shut down government offices in 10 cities.

The disabled are furious over what they see as a retreat by President Jimmy Carter on his promises to help the nation's 28 million handicapped. They are secretly planning a sit-in at the offices of Health, Education and Welfare Secretary Joseph Califano and his nine top regional assistants.

The handicapped, in what would be their most forceful protest in history, are also considering blocking traffic with wheelchairs and vans. They attracted national attention in 1973 when they ringed the Nixon White House with wheelchairs.

Sometime after April 4, unless Carter acts on their demands, blind mothers, palsied children and medal-wearing paraplegics from Vietnam plan to swarm into the HEW offices. Already, placards are being designed, chants written and a network of recruiters set up for the handicapped in Washington, New York, Atlanta, Philadelphia, Boston, Chicago, Dallas, San Francisco, Seattle and Denver.

The anger among handicapped people stems in part from Carter's dramatic campaign promise to make the disabled "active partners in our attempts to achieve . . . full civil rights." Carter blasted the Ford administration for refusing to enforce equal rights laws for handicapped jobseekers. The disabled took Carter at his word and supported him by large majorities.

After Califano took over HEW, one of his first actions was to stall even further by appointing a task force to study the equal rights regulations. Handicapped people felt they had been betrayed once again.

Dr. Frank Bowe, director of the American Coalition of Citizens with Disabilities, vented the handicapped's frustration in a private letter to Carter.

"Vast numbers of us endorsed your candidacy and worked vigorously for your election," Bowe reminded the president. Bitterly describing Carter's delays on equal employment opportunities for the disabled, he said: "We are dismayed by this apparent breach of faith." If action is not taken by April 4, he warned, the handicapped will be forced to "implement nationwide political activities."

Footnote: HEW insists that it is moving on handicapped issues as fast as possible.

TAKEN FOR A RIDE — General Motors, the giant of the auto industry, has taken thousands of angry motorists for a ride in its problem-plagued Chevrolet Vega.

For years, unlucky owners have been buried under mounting repair bills as the Vega's aluminum engine cracked, overheated or failed completely. Now the beleaguered drivers are finding that the car consumes oil almost as fast as they can buy it. There are widespread complaints that even relatively new Vegas are burning as much as four quarts of oil a week.

Meanwhile, when Rep. John Moss, D-Calif., asked about Vega oil usage problems in 1974, GM president E.N. Cole covered up information in his possession. "Excessive oil consumption does not appear to be a problem with the Vega engine," Cole wrote to Moss.

Yet at the same time that letter was written, GM was receiving more complaints about high oil usage in the Vega than any other problem. GM has now admitted that over the last four years, 5,749 customers complained about abnormal oil consumption — even more than griped about engine failure.

Horror stories about the Vega are seemingly endless. One Reading, Pa., couple almost acted out a scene from "The Godfather" when, after turning on their car, the engine exploded. A Texas man was told by his mechanic that his 10-day-old Vega had a cracked engine block. While overheating and defective engines were a constant problem in 1971 and 1972 Vegas, rusting and abnormal oil usage have been common on the 1973 through 1975 models.

Jobs and wages are up

Here's one reason (just one) why Washington reminds so many of us of Alice in Wonderland:

Congress is about to extend the law that pays people not to work . . . which will keep unemployment up . . . which is what panicked the legislators into passing the law in the first place.

At the same time, they're planning to spend billions to create jobs and stimulate spending . . . which is supposed to bring unemployment down, but which is more likely to send inflation up . . . which will cause more panic in Congress — and more unnecessary laws.

What's causing this week's flap is that the time to extend the unemployment program (the one that adds 26 weeks of federal benefits to the states' 39) comes just when a lot of economists have stopped sweating out those unemployment statistics.

That's because all the other figures are almost too good to be true. Everything's up: business production, sales, profits — even jobs.

A few of the charts-and-graphs boys are now shoving the jobless rate into ho-hum territory, on the totally revolutionary theory that (brace yourself, Mr. Meany) it no longer tells how the economy is really doing.

Last year, for instance, when the rate of unemployment seemed to be locked into the 7 per cent range, there were 3.5 million more jobs than in 1975. Does that sound like a "sluggish" economy?

Right now more than 88 million people are working, the highest total of employment in our history. But that's not all. It's also the highest percentage (41) of our population with jobs in peacetime.

Not only are more people working than ever before, they are earning more. Wage levels are the highest in history, good times are at hand, and economists are beginning to question whether a 7 per cent jobless rate is all that bad.

It may even turn out to be "full employment." Or close to it, anyway.

We are never, they tell us, going to get back to where 4 per cent will be the level to shoot for. All things considered, 6 per cent is about as "full" as we're going to come, and even 7 per cent isn't anything to lose sleep over. (Unless, of course, you happen to be one of those 7.1 million listed as out of work.)

There are enough theories on this to make you dizzy, but most analysts agree on three or four reasons why that many people can't — or don't — find jobs in a healthy economy.

To begin with, to get the government goodies, you have to register as unemployed. This shoots the rate way up.

Then, in recent years there has been a swarm of new job-hunters who weren't even interested back there in the '50s when 4 per cent was the magic number. Most of these are women who, driven by inflation and ladies lib, have created an explosion in the work force.

The other bulge is caused by teenagers, who have two strikes against them in today's job market: they lack skills, and the minimum wage laws make them too expensive to take on. (Typically, Congress is also talking about raising the minimum wage.)

One big trouble with women and teen-agers is that they don't always want to work full-time. But housewives and students count as much as a jobless head-of-household who's been out of work for weeks.

Then there's the "hard-core": roughly 2 per cent who have very low skills and very high resistance to regular work. Especially when the nonworking pay is so good.

And that, of course, is the biggie: unemployment compensation, welfare payments, food stamps, etc. What the government calls "transfer payments." They came to almost $197 billion last year, up a whopping 340 per cent in 10 years.

Unemployment compensation, which is tax-free, pays a job-seeker for a year, three months and one week while he looks around for a job that suits his fancy. You'd be surprised how many people need a year, three months and one week to find the "right" one.

Federal money pays for six months' worth, and this is what Congress has to decide on next week. There's talk that it's thinking about cutting off anyone who refuses a job paying at least the minimum wage. It's also considering shortening the benefit period to 52 weeks instead of 65.

And that, class, is why the unemployment rate isn't going to go down very fast in 1977. Even though the economy is going up.

With any luck, times will be so good we can afford it.

Just in jest

Civilization marches on!

Once in the old Roman Colosseum days they threw Christians to the lions. You will be happy to learn, however, that in this year of our Lord 1977, the Christians (?) are getting their revenge. It is a bit costly but Christian hunters have been having great fun paying as much as $1,470 for the privilege of standing beside their cars and from that vantage point being able to shoot half-tame lions, bears and leopards in a private Spanish game park.

But back in Italy where, as reported above, they once threw Christians to the lions, the forward march of civilization has been far more humane. There, after years of debate, the governmental powers that be decided that if the populace must have blood and violence, the civilized way to provide it for them would be to approve color television.

Here in California, however, our civilized version of the old Roman "bread and circuses" formula for keeping the dissidents happy has been food stamps and the promise that state Senate floor sessions will be given full TV and radio coverage.

So despite the dire predictions of our prophets of doom, it is uncontestably evident we are now, thanks to the forward surge of civilization, living in the best of all worlds. Why, even in the realm of higher education, not a day passes that doesn't witness some astoundingly civilized intellectual breakthrough. Only a week or two ago, as a case in point, a male student at Indiana University of Pennsylvania kissed 3,225 women during an eight-hour period.

Reaction to Dumke salary

By EARL G. WATERS

Incensed by the disclosures of the recent $3,073 raise given State College Chancellor Glenn S. Dumke to boost his salary to an inordinate $64,549, a number of readers have fired off angry missives to various and sundry officials.

One such irate citizen is Mrs. Jeanne Lauck of Arcata who is demanding that "trustees who voted for those expenditures be removed from office." She has inquired of her Senator and Assemblyman as well as the Attorney General, just how this can be done.

As it is composed the Board of Trustees for the State University and College System has 16 members appointed by the governor for eight year terms. He also appoints a student member for a two year term while the Alumni Association selects a member, also for two years. Additionally, the governor, lt. governor, Speaker of the Assembly, and Superintendent of Public Instruction are ex-officio members. The chancellor is also a member. No specific provisions are made in the law for the removal of members.

The answer then to Mrs. Lauck is that short of bringing criminal charges for which conviction would automatically require forfeiture of any public office under other provisions in the law, there is no way to unseat a trustee.

In any event Mrs. Lauck may be barking up the wrong tree in attacking the trustees en masse. According to sources knowledgeable of the procedures, Dumke's salary ajustments have been made by a committee of the trustees perhaps acting without the knowledge of the full board.

Certainly, Gov. Jerry Brown was not privy to it. The raise came just after Brown, attending a trustee meeting in his role as ex-officio member, caustically criticized the salary then being paid Dumke. The action to give Dumke a further raise followed after Brown had left. Whether it was a deliberate slap at Brown or a thoughtless disregard of his sentiments, it has brought a reaction from the governor who has now called for a freeze on all state salaries over $50,000.

That outrage exists over the princely treatment given top brass in the college system even among those much closer to the picture is to be seen in a letter written by Erwin L. Kelly, Jr., chairman of the Faculty Senate of Sacramento State University. "When you multiply the fringe benefits, pay raises and social largesse as practiced by Chancellor Dumke by 19 (the number of state college presidents), you can understand why we, the faculty, also, taxpayers, have felt moral outrage at the hanky panky that is prevalent in the system."

For Mrs. Lauck and others who have written asking "how we might attack this problem" past experience has demonstrated the most effective way is to let their elected representatives in the legislature know how they feel. The power of the people can be awesome.

In the instant situation it is not necessary to turn out the trustees or even complain to them. The legislature is mighty in that it controls the purse strings for the colleges.

If the citizens who feel that salaries paid Dumke and other college officials are excessive they should turn the heat on their legislators to put the brakes on by limiting appropriations to the colleges. If Mrs. Lauck and others around the state truly want to do something about the situation they might be surprised how much good they can do by organizing their neighbors into letter writing campaigns to their Senators and Assemblymen.

Ann Landers

Let's give doormen a break

Dear Ann: You've spoken out for waitresses, teachers, bus drivers, mailmen, dogs, cats, nurses, meter readers and policemen, but I don't think you have ever said anything in behalf of doormen. Please, Ann, print this. We need help.

Will you inform your readers that a doorman is expected to do a lot more than just open a door? For example, my duties include announcing guests, hailing taxis, delivering messages and gifts to residents, handling keys for repairmen who are in and out constantly, taking messages for people as they come and go, and handling newspaper deliveries, which means counting, recording and paying for papers — sometimes even selling them.

In the building where I work there is no time set aside for a meal or a coffee break. When we are seen drinking coffee on the job we sometimes get reported. Don't you think we are entitled to have a cup of coffee during an eight-hour work period? You'd be surprised at how many people resent it.

Our union says we need only to open doors, announce guests and get taxis.

Everything else we do is extra — because we want to give good service. How about asking your readers to give us a break? — I Live In Chicago

Dear Doorman: Do do I — and I'm happy to print your letter and add a plea for a little more understanding. Have a heart, folks. Give the doorman a break.

Dear Ann: I'm writing about the student who was caught reading your column in class and was punished.

As one who is involved with education and newspapers, I believe students could benefit from reading your column — beyond the advice that you give. All it takes is a teacher with a little imagination.

For example, your column could be used as a good example of lucid writing, correct punctuation, rules for capitalization, prefixes, suffixes and so on.

Students could be assigned to write a letter to Ann Landers about a problem. It's an interesting subject (one's self, that is) and the teacher would learn a lot about the student.

The wise teacher would use a student's interest in your column as a springboard to create a positive learning experience. — E.D.R., Memphis Commercial Appeal

Dear E.D.: Thanks for accentuating the positive. I'm glad you said it — because I have thought it!

Dear Ann Landers: This letter is intended to inform doctors as to how their waiting rooms are run. Many don't have the foggiest notion.

I was in a doctor's waiting room last week when a nurse came over to the young woman seated next to me and, in a voice that sounded like a foghorn, asked some intimate questions about urine specimens, stool cultures and so on. The woman, red-faced and embarrassed, answered in hushed tones. Everyone around us heard the questions even if they didn't hear the answers. A similar incident happened at another doctor's office yesterday.

Neither of these offices is a free clinic. Both doctors charge plenty. As physicians they are excellent but I would rate their staffs at zero minus ten. — A Witness

Dear Witness: Why don't you do these doctors a favor and TELL them?

Marmaduke

"MARMADUKE'S HELPING ME CLEAN OUT MY GARAGE. HE GRABS ALL MY OLD JUNK AND HAULS IT OVER TO THE WINSLOW'S!"

Dr. Miller

'Lazy' hamster may be hurting

DEAR DR. MILLER: Schlemiel, my hamster, is terribly lazy. He won't use his exercise wheel. The last hamster I had died of old age, and he just loved to run on the wheel. The same wheel. Should I try to do something about this one, or just let him be lazy? — W.M.

DEAR W.M.: First question would be, is "being lazy" Schlemiel's only ailment? Could he have a sore foot or leg, or sore something else? Might he have a chronic illness that is slowing him down? If he could pass a physical, then could the wheel? Is it running free and easy with a little help, or is it actually suffering a (mechanical) breakdown of its own? Should both Schlemiel and the wheel pass their check outs, then they should get together.

Possibly you can entice him onto the wheel by placing a tidbit up on it so he has to climb aboard and stretch for it and, in so doing, cause it to move. Possibly simply placing him on the wheel a few times, causing him to inadvertently activate it in the process of leaving it, may stimulate his curiosity. Even another cage alongside with a wheel-wise hamster aboard to teach him the technique, might be worth the effort if all else fails. I'd agree though, if he's merely lazy, Schlemiel should be using his wheel. All pets who aren't hibernating benefit from some exercise. (Even a pet clam will shift in the sand, or at least stretch its neck once in a while.)

DEAR DR. MILLER: Will it hurt to paint a parakeet's cage with a non-toxic paint? — C.D.

P.S. I don't have the bird yet. But my last bird liked to chew the cage's bars.

DEAR C.D.: Non-toxic paint, the kind safe for children, should be safe for the bird. Even so, there are more desirable chewables than bird cage bars, wooden blocks for birds, and clean fruit tree branches for example.

DEAR DR. MILLER: Harvey is a very visible, and likeable, rabbit belonging to a new friend of mine. His ex-girlfriend (not the rabbit's) told me Harvey had syphilis but was cured with a big shot of penicillin. Was she putting me on? — E.J.

DEAR E.J.: Not necessarily. Treponema cuniculi unit (a spirochete transmitted by breeding) is responsible for so-called rabbit syphilis. The treatment? A single injection of 100,000 units of penicillin.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) You'll want to please everyone today, but you'll make no one happy if you heed the advice of others. Follow your own conscience.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Today you're a bit of a fault-finder, looking more for the negative side of things. Seek out trouble and you'll find it.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Avoid activities with friends today that might cause you to overspend. What's reasonable for them might be too costly for you.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Should you be caught in a tight spot today, weigh carefully all plans to extricate yourself. You could get in even deeper!

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) When others make mistakes today, they may try to blame you. Be alert, or you could be the fall guy.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Even though a well-intentioned friend steers you onto a "good buy," it could be anything but a bargain.

LIBRA (Sept. 23Oct. 23) Guard your image today! Among those watching are some who'd like to see you fall on your face.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Subordinates may be difficult for you to handle today. You must be neither too stern nor too lenient. Choose a tactful middle ground.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Take nothing for granted in important business situations today. You'd better make the time to find out all the facts.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) One-to-one relationships are very difficult for you today. In particular, be wary of dealing with an extremely selfish person.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Stick to tried-and-true routines today. Untested new methods will create a heavier load for you.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Before advising anyone on financial matters today, be doubly sure you're right. A wrong move could cost both of you money.

Your Birthday, March 28, 1977

Several new associates will be entering your life this year. If your choice of partners is a wise one, it will be very beneficial. If not, watch out.

The pleasures of sharing

I used to be a nice person.

Ask anyone. I was giving, loving and sharing.

Then the children came along and I realized a woman who was giving, loving, and sharing could end up with a drawer full of dirty pantyhose, a broken stereo and a wet toothbrush every morning.

Also, a camera with sand in it, a blouse that died form acute perspiration, a library book with a bent back, a sleeping bag with a broken zipper, a tennis racket with a cracked frame, and a transistor that "just went dead when it hit the pavement."

For awhile, I had a closet that enjoyed more traffic than a discount house on Mother's Day. One day, I wandered in to see three kids picking and choosing, "May I help you?" I asked stiffly.

"No, I'm just browsing," said my son. "Where's the luggage?"

"We've moved it to the annex," I snapped. 'Will you get out of here?"

"Mom!" said my daughter, "you've got to learn to share."

"Share! You saw what happened to my car when I shared."

"What did I do to your car?" asked my son.

"I'll tell you what you did to it. You left the radio up so loud that when I got in and turned on the motor, the noise struck me sterile. I still have swelling in my teeth. Not only that, the car smells like a gym before showers."

"You told me to bring my gym clothes home."

"I didn't tell you to keep the car windows rolled up when you did."

"Mom," asked my daughter, "can I borrow this sweater? You can borrow any of mine you like."

"Then why don't you wear your own?" I asked.

"They're all dirty."

"Why would I borrow a dirty sweater?"

"You never go anyplace to wear a clean one."

"Hold it," I said to my son. "What did you do with the binoculars you borrowed for the game last week?"

"They're in my room."

"Why don't you put them back where you got them?"

"They weren't broken when you borrowed them."

"You buy cheap, Mom, and you pay for it in the long run."

As I slumped down in the closet, I heard my daughter say, "Mom's so selfish. It's hard to believe she wasn't an only child!"

Dr. Lamb

Hiatal hernia 'seizure'

DEAR DR. LAMB — A few years ago I woke up around 4 a.m. with a spasm or seizure of tightening in the upper chest with hard breathing and a throbbing pain in the back of my upper arms. I went to the hospital immediately and was put in the coronary care unit. My blood pressure was 210-120. A few days later I was released and given a diet to follow. I am 5 feet 8 and was 190 pounds when this happened.

I went on a vegetable diet and on my own lost 30 pounds in 40 days. Once a week I would have some meat as a supplement. Now my problem since then is every time I have two to six highballs or beer I wake up six hours later to the same spasm or seizure. It would go away after 20 minutes at first, now it has increased to an hour. I go through such nauseating agony during this time and it leaves me exhausted.

My doctors diagnosed a hiatal hernia. I went to a specialist and had a barium test plus other tests which proved negative. I was told to lose another 10 pounds. I still have this condition and the doctors now say I'm allergic to alcohol and to leave it alone.

Can you tell me what this condition is and how to remedy it?

DEAR READER — I think avoiding alcohol and losing weight is a pretty good start on the program you should follow.

The first diagnosis of a hiatal hernia or at least a spasm of the lower esophagus may have been correct. You can have acid digestive juices leak backward into the lower esophagus and cause spasm of the esophagus even if a hernia of the stomach through the diaphragm is not present.

Pain from hiatal hernia and pain from esophageal spasm can mimic a heart attack. Your initial symptoms strongly suggested a heart attack and it would have been necessary to study you as was done before deciding it wasn't. Even pain in the back of the upper arms can come from spasm of the esophagus. Pain in the shoulders and upper arm can also occur from gas trapped in the colon from a spasm of the colon. The gas is trapped where the colon makes a right turn under the liver or under the spleen on the other side.

Alcohol stimulates the stomach to pour out excess amounts of acid digestive juice. If you have a backward leak into the esophagus then you would have such a spell.

Why don't you try the living habits recommended for people with a hiatal hernia — lose weight and avoid alcohol and see if you can stop these attacks. I am sending you The Health Letter number 4-8, Hiatal Hernia, Esophageal Reflux, to help you do this. Others who want this information on diet, and living habits for hiatal hernia can send 50 cents for it with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for mailing.

I note that on your vegetable diet you lost about three-fourths of a pound a day. That is a little fast. You must not have been eating many calories but it is possible to lose that much if you are active. If you have any tendency toward high blood pressure, additional weight loss will help you. Your story should remind all patients with a hiatal hernia that it can cause symptoms similar to heart ailments and the pain can be severe.

What people say

"I don't intend to pardon any more people from the Vietnam era. I promised the American people when I was running for office that I would pardon the ones who violated the Selective Service laws; I don't have any apology to make about it and think I made the right decision."

—President Carter, replying to a question from a Georgia Vietnam veteran on his recent "Ask President Carter" radio broadcast.

Barbs

At 20, almost nothing would stop you; after 40, there's almost nothing that will get you started.

It's all right for me to read a book to find out if it's fit for you to peruse.

"How was I to know?" groaned South.

"No way," replied North. "Machiavelli himself couldn't have used a better bit of hocus-pocus."

West had cashed the ace and king of diamonds and shifted to a spade. South had won in his own hand, led the five of hearts and finessed dummy's queen. Without a moment's hesitation East had dropped the eight spot.

South had returned to his hand with the queen of clubs in order to lead the jack of trumps. If that eight had been played from 10-8 doubleton, South would pick up the whole suit and make an overtrick. If it had been a singleton, South would lose one heart to West and make his contract. Unfortunately for South, West held the singleton and once South led the jack East was sure of two trump tricks and South's nice game had disappeared forever.

We can't absolve South completely. He had a sure-fire safety play at his disposal. He could have led a low heart instead of the jack from his hand. This would give him an overtrick if East had played the eight from 10-8-3 and would have insured the contract against any and all trump breaks.

Ask the Jacobys

A New York reader wants to know if anyone ever won all the events at a major tournament.

Back in 1934 when there were only three events in the Eastern championships, Oswald Jacoby won the mixed with Mrs. Jacoby, Waldemar von Zedtwitz and Mrs. Geraldine Furlow, the open pairs with David Bruce and the team of four with Bruce, Schenken and Gottlieb. However that was only three events.

Ask meaning of the name

Am advised the best way to remember the name of someone you've just met is to ask said party what the name means. If the name is Tischler, for instance, that's tablemaker in German. If it's Yeager, that's hunter. It's the old word-association game. But my informant, a politician of lengthy experience, says no technique works better to stick the moniker into memory.

A starfish has no brain, please note.

A pain in the elbow is identified with tennis players, that you knew. But were you aware that the professional most likely to suffer a pain just below the elbow is the band drummer?

SPAGHETTI

Q. "Quick, Louie, how many feet of spaghetti in a pound?"

A. Figure 320 feet, standard size.

Q. "Can hyenas be tamed and trained?"

A. Evidently. The record at hand indicates the ancient Egyptians used them in the manner of today's hunting dogs.

Q. "How long has it been since anybody in this country was branded with a hot iron for a crime?"

A. Just 133 years. Fellow named Jonathan Walker was scarred in the palm of his right hand at Pensacola, Territory of Florida, with the letters "SS" to mean "slave stealer." He'd tried to help seven slaves escape to the Bahamas.

"You stated Portland cement got its name from its similarity to rock found at Portland, England. Baloney! It derived its name from the place where it originated, Portland, Ohio, now known as Sandusky. I grew up there." Signed: Bruce L. Holly, Sr., Naples, Fla.

OLD LAW

An old Maine law permits a wife there to sue to recover money her husband loses in a poker game. So reports a client. Yes, I've heard that. Still, it's not news. With few exceptions, anybody can sue anybody for anything. There are cases on the record where a farmer sued a bus driver for horn honking, where a mother sued a butcher for giving a wiener to her son, and where a greenhouse operator sued an outdoor advertising company for failure at dusk to turn out neon signs that allegedly kept the plants awake.

There was a time, you know, when beaver flesh was classified as fish, so could be eaten by the devout on fast days when other meat was not allowed.

At any given moment, one out of every 10 hairs on your head, if any, is just sitting there. The rest are growing.

Fear of falling evidently is a bit stronger among women than among men. It's the biggest obstacle that beginning lady wrestlers have to overcome, for instance. But wrestling trainers say it doesn't seem to be much of a problem among beginning male wrestlers.

Counseling Corner

By R. CLIFF WATERS
Marriage and family counselor

Most "successful" marriages (married at least 10 years) seem to fall far short of genuine intimacy. I class marriages according to five degrees of intimacy.

First is the "resigned squabbling" marriage, in which the couple maintain a sort of armed truce in public, and constantly snipe at one another in private.

Second is the "devitalized" marriage, in which both partners have given up all pretense of intimacy, and live together as more or less indifferent strangers.

Third is the "substitute" marriage, which replaces personal cummunion by interest in other things. Apathetic to one another, the individuals may have a passionate devotion to a certain sport, or to politics, or religion.

Fourth is the "vital" marriage, in which the man and wife are united by a common devotion to a goal, whether it be his career, or raising their children.

Fifth and finally, the "total" marriage in which the sharing is so intense it is as if neither had a truly private existence.

As a marriage counselor I am asked "why don't people achieve the intimacy needed?" The reason is that most people are romantics. They expect instant intimacy. Very few realize it is a slow difficult process.

In almost all marriages in trouble I see a communications breakdown. Confused by their inability to keep their original romantic feelings intact, they lose touch with each other's real personalities. After a while, they come to regard each other as stereotypes, "husband" and "wife" instead of Bill and Mary.

Soon the fear of inadequacy stalks their marriage. Anger is hidden. Disillusionment casts a chill over the relationship.

My tack is to encourage open, candid confrontation. Fight to save the marriage. Listen to one another and stand together no matter how sharp the conflict becomes.

It is never too late to begin the search to infuse a stale marriage with fresh intimacy. The challenge of intimacy takes us ultimately to the deepest truth of all: we must love in order to be loved.

Youth council slated

The Pomona Red Cross Chapter is inaugurating a high school youth service program for interested students who wish to participate in a variety of youth-related activities.

The Youth Council will be composed of representatives from public and parochial high schools served by the Pomona chapter. This includes high schools in Pomona, Walnut, Diamond Bar, La Verne and San Dimas.

Upcoming activities will involve an orientation for high schoolers to serve as Red Cross volunteers at the annual California Speical Olympics for handicapped children.

The 1977 state games will be held June 24-26 at UCLA. Team escorts are needed for preliminary and final events in softball, basketball, bowling, hockey, standing long jump and gymnastics. Planning meetings for the Olympics will be held during April and May at the local chapter.

Youth volunteers are also needed for blood recruitment, convalescent homes, fire and water safety.

The first Pomona Red Cross High School Council meeting is slated for 7 p.m. Thursday at the Red Cross Chapter House, 420 N. Reservoir St., Pomona. All interested students and their friends are invited to attend.

feel caged. Her old bridge club is no more; its members either have died or are in nursing homes. But she spends much time on the telephone, answers her mail, reads the newspapers and occasionally goes out to dinner at a nearby steak house.

When she ventures out, the Secret Service is with her. For the agents, headquartered across the street in a house filled with closed circuit television receivers, it is quiet duty. In the last two years, says detail chief Robert Lockwood, four or five of his men have earned master's degrees in criminology from Central Missouri State at nearby Warrensburg.

Her seclusion is nothing new; she strove to stay out of the public eye during her 18 years in Washington, too. Margaret was asked why. "Because she wants to." Why does she want to? "Because she never wanted to be in it."

Mrs. Eisenhower, too, is hesitant to appear in public. Her love of television soap operas keeps her indoors much of the time at her farm at the edge of the Civil War battlefield in Gettysburg, Pa. She sees few people. Son John and the grandchildren visit occasionally.

Mrs. Eisenhower turned 80 last November. She often goes to church on Sunday, and in the past has made one visit a year to her husband's grave in a chapel at the Eisenhower Library and Museum in Abilene, Kan. When the weather is warm, Secret Service agents will take her for a drive in the countryside, or she will go to farmer's market in Biglerville.

In an interview last year with Washington, D.C., radio station WMAL, she said she loved to read and work on her correspondence.

"If anyone takes the time to go buy a card, to address it, put it into an envelope, seal it and put a stamp on it, the least I can do is to thank them," she said.

"I miss him terribly," she said of Eisenhower. "You see, Ike and I used to use this porch so much, and I would sit here like this and play solitaire and he would sit across painting. We would hardly say a word to each other, but we were companions. And I miss that terribly."

North Yemen inhabitants are on a permanent high

EDITOR'S NOTE: North Yemen isn't exactly a household name. It sounds like one of those oil-rich Arab lands. Arab it is, but its oil is imported. Maybe the most precious stuff it has is qat. What's qat? These notes from an AP correspondent who's traveled through Yemen will tell you.

By ELIAS ANTAR
Associated Press Writer

SANA, North Yemen (AP) — The men wear skirts and are the nation's most valuable export. The women wear the pants and are downtrodden.

Yemen is poor and only now is beginning to come out of the 12th century but, unlike most developing countries, it has a labor shortage instead of unemployment. It has a balance of payments surplus instead of being in hock to everyone else. And it is unaffected by oil prices.

The country is on a permanent high, and not just because it has mountains up to 12,000 feet. Most adults spend about two hours a day — and a sizeable part of their paychecks — chewing qat, a green leaf that is a mild amphetamine.

Yemenis drive with "speed" in their mouths, operate the nation's new satellite communications station with bulging cheekfuls of the stuff. Government ministers and peasants chew it, and most foreigners have tried it at least once. They say it takes getting used to.

You seldom see a fat Yemeni. They are short and wiry, and qat cuts the appetite.

Except for a few Westernized youths, the men wear turbans, vests, mid-calf skirts and have curved daggers struck in their belts. Until a couple of years ago, they carried firearms into town. But a new government took over in 1974, led by a 34-year-old army colonel, Ibrahim El Hamidi. Slowly, he is bringing this tribal society together and has persuaded the men to leave their rifles at home.

Sana has its own kind of charm. The houses, four and five stories high, are built of dun-colored rock and mud, decorated with whitewashed filigree on the windows and gingerbread-like ornaments on the roofs. The government has ordered that all new housing conform to this style to retain the city's identity.

It is uniquely Yemeni. Doors are low, steps are steep, and there are few elevators. Since Sana's elevation is 7,200 feet, a round of visits leaves one gasping for oxygen. But Westerners say after a couple of months that they feel better than they did at home.

Ancient cartographers called Yemen "Arabia Felix" (fortunate Arabia), because the country is intensively cultivated in mountainside terraces that look like three-dimensional jigsaw puzzles, and its people were prosperous.

"Organization of Frankincense Exporting Countries," Yemen would have been the undisputed master, because it had nearly cornered the market. Frankincense was used in the Roman Empire in burial ceremonies, and camel caravans carried it from the mountains of Yemen — where it grew on trees — to Europe.

When the Roman Empire became Christianized and frankincense went out of style, the bottom dropped out of the market. Yemen went into a long period of decline.

After feudal rule by a family of religious kings, a civil war and Egyptian occupation, Yemen only now is coming out of its snooze.

The country has 6.5 million people, but about 1.7 million men live abroad, including places like Brooklyn, N.Y., and Modesto, Calif. One million are in neighboring Saudi Arabia, taking advantage of the labor demand generated by the oil boom.

They send $770 million a year back home. Yemeni central bank officials say that as a result, more foreign currency comes in than is spent abroad — highly unusual for a developing nation — and in 1976 Yemen had a balance of payments surplus of $316 million.

Otherwise, North Yemen lives off subsistence farming, exports a little coffee, qat, rock salt and cotton. Because Yemen has a free economy, the money its citizens working abroad send home flows through to the villages instead of stopping in Sana. So there's no big urge among rural people to flock into the city.

Sana, with a population of 140,000, has only 17,000 motor vehicles and no pollution. It's the kind of place where phone numbers have only four digits.

The Yemenis are tough people who don't believe in heating their homes even when the temperature hovers near freezing.

Costs of some things are soaring. An armload of qat now costs about $10, four times what it was two years ago, and a one-bedroom apartment goes for $200 a month, four times what it was in 1973.

Civil servants are paid $67 a month, an unskilled laborer $166 and an experienced construction foreman $866. Still, there seems to be plenty of cash around, because the shops sell hi-fi equipment, motorcycles, baby food from Italy and most of the amenities of life.

NEW LOOK? — This Yemeni girl still wears the traditional veil. Women's lives in Yemen are mostly limited to drudgery at home. But education is making inroads and there are signs of change.

Brief prostitution boom lagging

'Ladies of night' may soon be hunting day jobs

By TONY LEDWELL
Associated Press Writer

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — After a brief boom in business, it appears that prostitution is no longer a growth industry on the streets of San Francisco.

Bristling from criticism that their apathy has turned the town into "every whore's favorite city," officials have launched a campaign to halt a year-long influx of aggressive hookers.

Mayor George Moscone, Police Chief Charles Gain, and Dist. Atty. Joseph Freitas, a liberal triad which came to power a year ago, had been in hot water with conservatives because of their proclaimed lack of interest in victimless crimes.

They deny there's been a dramatic shift in policy, but there has been a sudden wave of arrests. Now they're in hot water with the liberals, including the man who runs the jails, Sheriff Richard Hongisto.

In a recent letter to Moscone, Hongisto said the women's section at the jail had reached maximum capacity. He blamed officials for "inflaming the public" and suggested that prostitutes be released with nothing more than citations.

Margo St. James, whose COYOTE group (Cast Off Your Old Tired Ethics) advocates decriminalization of prostitution, also opposed the increased arrests.

"It's an effort to get more statistics and more cases so they can clean up their act," she said.

Before police renewed their sweep of the Tenderloin and Union Square areas, embittered vice squad officers claimed the number of prostitutes was up 1,000 per cent, a figure disputed by the district attorney.

"Where there were two or three prostitutes working in one area, now you'll find 22 or 23," said Richard Adkins, a vice squad member.

The battle over prostitution had been brewing for a year, and it was the district attorney who fired the opening salvo.

Elected on a pledge to emphasize prosecution of violent crimes, Freitas said at his inauguration: "If it's a nonviolent, noncoercive activity with consenting adults, my office will not bother with it."

He later disclaimed the statement, saying that if prostitutes disrupted the commercial or social fabric of the city, they would be arrested. He said that a prostitute plying her trade on a public street was disruptive.

His initial words were music to the ears of hookers who had been in business elsewhere in the Bay area. They rushed to San Francisco and the appealing market of traveling businessmen and conventioneers.

The debate over whether to prosecute intensified when tough cop Gerald Shaughnessy was removed early last year as head of the vice squad. Shaughnessy, who argued "there is no such thing as a victimless crime," had spent six years rounding up hookers.

Business leaders and managers of posh Nob Hill and Union Square hotels began a steady wail that prostitutes were pouring into San Francisco. The San Francisco Examiner, in an editorial, suggested the city was "every whore's favorite city," a takeoff of the convention bureau's slogan of "everybody's favorite city."

The World Wildlife Congress, whose convention was attended by many notables, including the King of Sweden, specifically asked for a sweep of hookers before the meeting convened. Robert Wilhelm, manager of the St. Francis Hotel, site of the convention, declared, "It's a disaster ... The girls are getting cruder and more offensive in their approaches."

Police Chief Gain responded to mounting demands for a tougher stand by returning Shaughnessy to the vice squad. A few hours after he returned, he directed a mass arrest of hookers.

Freitas says there were 1,578 arrests for prostitution in 1976, compared to 1,214 in 1975. But he concedes that "maybe we haven't been doing enough because of the influx."

The district attorney's office reported 112 arrests in November of last year, 144 in December and 291 in January. But one deputy district attorney, Peter Hanson, concedes that only 23 per cent of the prostitution trials last year led to convictions.

"We have a real problem in San Francisco getting a jury to convict," says Hanson.

Dropout dad sees children succeed

"They could see what conditions were like with no education," said the 76-year-old Lafayette barber.

Dr. Norman Francis, president of Xavier University in New Orleans since 1968, holds a law degree, a Ph.D. in education and a B.A. in mathematics.

Auxiliary Bishop Joseph Francis Jr. of the Newark, N.J., diocese holds both bachelor's and master's degrees. He has been president of the Conference of Major Superiors of Men and the National Black Catholic Clergy Caucus, and a member of the original U.S. Catholic Conference and of the U.S. bishops' advisory committee on priestly ministry and formation.

Mabel Bobb is a teacher in a Grand Coteau, La., high school. Her husband, John, is mayor. She holds both bachelor's and master's degrees.

Velma Boykins is a teacher in St. Louis. She has a bachelor's degree.

The father said he taught his children respect for authority and respect for work by insisting they do home chores.

"There never was a generation gap in our family," he said. "I was captain of the ship and they knew it."

It was a case of do as I say, not as I did. The father said he wanted to be a barber because he enjoyed his after-school work of shining shoes in a Lafayette barbershop and he didn't like school.

But after he left sixth grade many years passed before he got the chance to cut hair. He went to work for a Lafayette department store, changed to iceman in 1918 and kept that up until the Depression, when many people couldn't afford ice.

Then he became a handyman for the Greyhound Bus Co. and later bell captain for the old Evangeline Hotel. In 1940, at age 40, he went to work as a barber in his own shop.

He still works eight to nine hours a day.

"Dad was a tough man in a way," said Bishop Francis. "He insisted on our doing things that he thought were important."

This particularly meant education so the children "would have the tools to do what he could not do."

Dr. Francis said, "Father always said education was something that cannot be taken from you. He didn't downgrade working with your hands but many times he recited that old saying, 'You work with your hands for a living, you work with your mind for money.'

"I suppose what singled Dad out was his devotion and dedication to whatever he was doing and his tremendous honesty. He taught us you never ask for something that is not yours and you give whatever you can."

Bishop Francis said, "My parents were always generous people and still are, but they were never obtrusive in their sharing. My Dad would suspect someone was in need and would show up at their door saying, 'We have this extra milk...'"

The Francis family made finances come out in a variety of ways, including their own vegetables, keeping chickens and a cow.

"I remember watering and weeding and walking the cow along the railroad tracks where there was grass," said the bishop.

Dr. Francis added, "You did what you had to do. If it meant getting up at 5 a.m. to walk that cow, you got up."

"We could never have made it without prayer," the father said.

The ordination of their son as a bishop was "the crowning point of their lives," Dr. Francis said of his parents.

"That God would spare me to see him a bishop," said Mrs. Francis. "We have such a lot to be thankful for. I pray God will take care of him. We won't be seeing much of him now."

Travel Film Series charted in Claremont

The sixth presentation of the Claremont Travel Film Series for the 23rd season is scheduled in Garrison Theater Friday at 2 p.m. and again at 8 p.m.

KEN WOLFGANG

Ken Wolfgang will narrate an outstanding and exciting picture, "Ageless India."

The film stresses the attitudes of villagers regarding the caste system, external and internal affairs, family, religion, marriage, agriculture and the natural elements that dominate the people's existence.

The film also presents Buddhism, the Sikhs and their Golden Temple, the Jews who have been in India since King Solomon's time and the Christians who have been there since the first century. Other highlights are a pilgrimage to Varanasi and modern Bombay.

The narrator began traveling at the age of one but waited until he was 12 before embarking on his motion picure career. Born in Toledo, Ohio, his college years were spent at Eastern Michigan. He heads his own film company which, in addition to travel-adventure program, produces educational, industrial and natural history films.

The Claremont Travel Film Series, a benefit project for the Development Fund of Pomona College, is headed by Mrs. Milo Tigner.

The world's oldest geothermal power station is in operation in central Italy.

Planning a wedding ceremony can often be one of the most frustrating memories of the joyous event, but it need not be. A bridal show, such as the Citrus College show Thursday, is one way of learning how to make planning easier, more colorful and more joyous.

The show, which begins at 7 p.m. in the Student Center, will feature the latest in wedding attire and the other necessities which make the whole event such an exciting experience.

CowBelles chart cooking contest

A complete set of rules may be obtained by sending a stamped, self-addressed envelope to: Beef Cook-Off, in care of Mrs. Bill Messinger, 3121 Mulberry St., Riverside, Calif. 92501. From the written entries, 10 finalists will be chosen by a panel of judges. The 10 finalists will then participate in the Cal Poly contest.

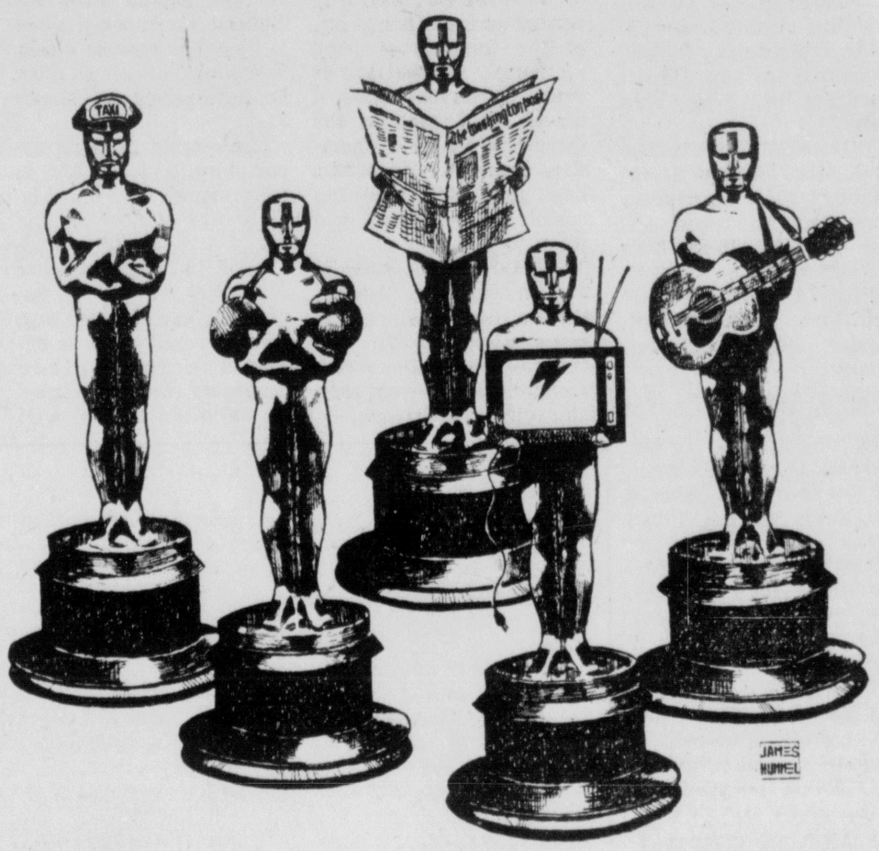
MADISON, Wis. (AP) — The Elvehjem Art Center has recently acquired a painting by the French artist Francois Lemoin (1688-1737). The painting is entitled "The Triumph of Galatea" and is the first 18th-century painting to become part of the center's collection. Lemoine is an artist of the French Romantic School.

But successes weigh heavily

'Oscar' boasts turbulent history

By BOB THOMAS
Associated Press Writer



LOS ANGELES (AP) — On May 4, 1927, 36 leaders of the film industry met to form an organization that would lend prestige to the belittled and beleaguered American movie. The Academy of Motion Pictures Arts and Sciences was born.

Next Monday, almost 50 years later, the Academy presents the 49th awards — universally called Oscars — from an impressive array of artists and films, headed by "Rocky," "Network" and "All the President's Men."

In retrospect, the Academy's half-century seems to have been a history of ever-growing triumph. Frank Capra, a member since 1931, realized that was not true. He almost presided over the Academy's end within 10 years of its birth.

In 1934 Capra directed "It Happened One Night" to a sweep of all the major awards, a feat which was not duplicated until last year's "One Flew over the Cuckoo's Nest." In 1935 Capra was elected president of the Academy.

"At that time the Academy appeared to be on its last legs," he recalls. "We were down to 40 members from a high of 600, and they were mostly actors, a few technicians, one or two directors. All the writers had walked out."

What had caused the exodus? It began in 1933, when the major studios declined to issue paychecks after President Roosevelt closed the banks. Afterward the bosses proposed 50 per cent pay cuts because of depression troubles, and they used the Academy to negotiate the cuts.

Studio workers, already complaining about conditions and beginning to consider unions, cried "foul!" Most of them walked out of the company-controlled Academy. The studios themselves saw no value in the Academy and withdrew their financial support.

"When the awards came up in 1936, we didn't have enough money to buy the Oscars," Capra says. "Some of us chipped in a thousand dollars apiece to pay for the statuettes.

"Then I tried to figure out some kind of a draw that would bring people to the awards. That's when we resurrected D.W. Griffith, who was drunk and living in obscurity in Kentucky, and presented him with an honorary award."

The device worked. Betty Davis ("Dangerous") and Victor McLjen ("The Informer") appeared to accept their Oscars as best actress and actor. But director John Ford and writer Dudley Nichols, winners for "The Informer," refused to attend. Ford later accepted the award, said Capra. Nichols did not.

Capra's battle wasn't over. During the turbulent late 1930s when the guilds were trying to organize the studios, the Academy continued to be an anathema to studio workers. Capra persuaded the talent guilds to make their own elections for awards, and the Oscars continued.

Finally in 1939, most of the guilds and unions had won contracts from the studios, and the Academy once more enjoyed widespread support. "That's when I resigned as president," Capra said.

The Academy never again faced danger of extinction, but it did experience rocky times. The worst came in 1949, when the studios were beginning to feel the financial pinch of competition from television.

Economy waves had washed over Hollywood, bringing wholesale firings. The companies withdrew their money support of the Academy, and a lavish award ceremony was impossible. The Oscars were presented in the Academy's shabby 900-seat theater. That was the year of "Hamlet" Laurence Olivier and Jane Wyman ("Johnny Belinda").

The Academy continued on a modest basis until 1953, the beginning of the televised awards. That provided permanent prosperity, TV now contributing an estimated $1 million annually.

During its 50 years, the Academy has survived everything from Oscar-spurnings by Marlon Brando and George C. Scott to a naked flasher racing across the stage. Monday night will bring another chapter, and no doubt another surprise or two.

Hawaii's 'TV gap' rapidly closing

Communication satellite proves boon to viewers

By HOLLY KURTZ
Associated Press Writer

HONOLULU, Hawaii (AP) — The Friday morning news show may come on Monday, and Charlie Brown's Christmas special may be seen during New Year's week.

But the television time gap in Hawaii, caused by a quirk of geography and network regulations, gradually is closing, thanks to reduced rates for satellite communications.

The satellite, at just under $1,000 an hour, is used for special news and sports events and for the regular CBS and NBC evening newscasts. But general programming still is seen anywhere from one to 15 days after it is shown on the mainland.

KGMB, the CBS affiliate, began bringing Walter Cronkite in on schedule a year ago. And John Chancellor arrives on time for NBC's KHON newscasts. But Harry and Barbara appear anywhere from midnight to 1 a.m., with highlights at 10:30 p.m., because the ABC affiliate, KITV, still has the videotape flown in.

The problem is that 2,557 miles of water separate the 50th state from the West Coast, so affiliates cannot plug into telephone land lines to receive network programming.

The alternatives are to fly in the tape or fork over $999.80 an hour, the cost of live programming via satellite.

The NBC and CBS affiliates pay to get the news on time as a public service, but if it's a game show, a comedy or a police show, local advertisers must ante up.

"You have to educate the advertiser about the potential of sponsoring a live show," says Joel Kennedy of Hawaiian Telephone Company, which handles use of the satellites.

Until last August, it cost $2,950 an hour for satellite use, nearly three times what it costs now.

First to take the costly plunge was KGMB, which in March 1976 brought in Walter Cronkite live and only now is beginning to turn a profit on the newscast. KHON followed. KITV, the ABC affiliate, declines to discuss when, or if, it will pay for live newscasts.

As for sports, each year brings more live broadcasts.

But in the case of wake-up shows, like "Good Morning America," the Friday segment still waits until Monday, and weekend morning time slots are filled with cartoons and other programming.

Videotape can't be shipped early, even though entertainment shows actually are filmed long in advance. Reasons range from network bans against releasing early tapes to the cost and complications involved in making an extra tape for the 50th state.

Jazz guitar class set

A new jazz guitar class is offered beginning March 29 by Cal Poly University, Office of Continuing Education. Lou Speiginer, instructor, has played professionally with such well-known artists as Charlie Mingus, Lionel Hampton and Lena Horne.

"Jazz Guitar" is designed for those with some previous guitar experience and covers instruction of harmonic lines with chord embellishment and various scales as they relate to chord structures for improvisation purposes. Polyphonic behavior of chord structure and uses of bar chords along with diatonic patterns will also be stressed. Class meets on Tuesdays, 7 to 9 p.m., March 29 through May 31, at Cal Poly, building 24, room 101. Two units of university credit are earned for the course and the fee is $44.

This course offers an expanded repertoire of folk and popular songs, chords and right-hand techniques and is designed for teachers who would like to use guitar in a classroom situation. Three units of university credit in music is offered and the fee is $66.

Marquette, N. Carolina win thrillers

ATLANTA (AP) — Basketball purists might claim some kind of victory over the so-called "outlaws" after the semifinals of the NCAA Tournamant Saturday.

Two teams with classic college basketball styles beat two others of less traditional leanings; however it could have gone either way.

Patient, deliberate Marquette nipped North Carolina-Charlotte 51-49 and consistently cool North Carolina edged Nevada-Las Vegas 84-83 in back-to-back thrillers at the Omni to advance to Monday night's NCAA final.

The first game was a typical Marquette show—low-scoring and high tension. The Warriors needed all the patience they could muster to beat a team that seemed to have more all-around talent.

Charlotte baffled basketball strategists by using its 6-foot-8 center to bring the ball up court. But even Cornbread Maxwell couldn't do everything against the mistake-proof Warriors.

"We might have been a little tight," said Maxwell, whom Charlotte Coach Lee Rose calls the best all-around college basketball player in the country.

Both teams, in fact, were tight at the beginning. The first five minutes of the opener was no more than a sparring match. Points were at a minimum until Marquette took charge behind center Jerome Whitehead and ran up a 23-9 lead.

At this point, the highly vocal 16,086 spectators sensed that an execution was in progress.

McGuire inserted Bernard Toone into the lineup with the hope that his best shooter could bomb out Charlotte with his long-range gunning. Toone did make his first attempt, but things turned around quickly for Marquette after that.

The inconsistent, young forward not only couldn't get open for shots, but he appeared to hurt the Warriors with some erratic play. All of a sudden it was a close game at the half, 25-22 in favor of Marquette.

In spite of the mere three-point deficit, Rose was deeply disappointed with his team's first-half showing.

"I think we came to Atlanta to play our worst half of the year," he said afterward. "For some reason we were very uptight at first. We shot two or three airballs at first. The tremendous accomplishment it took to get here...Maybe it was just overwhelming."

But the 49ers, Cinderella team of the tournament, showed in the second half that they had some substance after all. Maxwell, apparently more relaxed, was his usual ubiquitous self. Lew Massey was just a pain in the neck for Marquette as he hit key baskets time and time again.

With the score tied at 49-49 and three seconds to play, Butch Lee launched a full-court pass that caromed off the hands of both Maxwell and Marquette's Bo Ellis. Then it took a lucky bounce for Marquette, settling into Whitehead's hands after a mad scramble, and the 6-foot-10 center stuffed it home as time ran out.

The nerve-wrenching first game was a tough act to follow, but North Carolina and Las Vegas came close.

The first half wasn't all it could have been, as North Carolina had trouble holding on to the ball and the aptly nicknamed Runnin' Rebels held an eight-point lead much of the time.

But the Tar Heels are known for patience, a virtue that paid dividends for them all season. All-American guard Phil Ford, who controlled North Carolina's fabled "four-corner" offense, did just that at the close of the first half and things worked for a final basket to trim Las Vegas' lead to six points.

Baseball is "numero uno" in the Dominican Republic.

The recent two-game series in that country between the Dodgers and Mets proved that decisively.

Those two exhibition contests marked the first time two major league teams had played one another in the Dominican, and the baseball-crazy fans of that nation loved every moment of it.

Highlight of the weekend was, of course, native son Manny Mota slugging a two-run pinch-hit homer off of the Mets' Tom Seaver on Sunday.

Mota is the island's top diamond hero, ranking ahead of such major league greats as Juan Marchial, Julian Javier and the Alou brothers.

That's because Mota, who grew up in the slums of Santo Domingo, has invested countless hours of his time (and much of his baseball earnings it is rumored) toward developing a series of youth baseball leagues throughout the island.

When Mota blasted a Seaver delivery out of Santo Domingo's Quisqueya Stadium, the place went wild. It was truly a storybook ending for Mota's homecoming.

"It was a moment I'll never forget," a moist-eyed Mota said afterward in the chaos of the clubhouse. "I just thank God that I had the opportunity to play here in front of my countrymen, and then to hit a homer off Seaver, well, it was a tremendous feeling."

Mota thanks Lasorda

Mota also offered thanks to new Dodger skipper Tommy Lasorda for giving him the chance to hit off Seaver in front of his hometown fans.

"I think he was as excited as me about it," the unassuming Mota said about Lasorda.

Lasorda, like Mota, is no stranger to the Dominican, and must have taken a special pleasure in Mota's blast.

The Dodgers' new manager performed the same duties for the Licey Tigers in the island's winter league for two seasons (1973 and 1974). He is almost as beloved by the Dominicans as Mota.

In fact, Lasorda had an absolute ball on the trip.

"Great, just great!", he boomed after his club had beaten the Mets for the second time on Sunday. "I love this place and these people! It does my heart good to be back here.

"These are just super baseball fans. I was as happy as they were when Manny hit that one out. It was a perfect ending for a perfect trip!"

Lasorda's enthusiasm for the Dominican baseball fans and for the Dominican brand of baseball is well-founded.

Islanders know sport

The islanders are extremely knowledgable about the game and play and watch it with a certain Latin spice which is a much-welcomed relief from the more reserved fans state-side.

Even though the Dodger-Met games were the first ever on the island between two major league clubs, the natives are very well-versed on who's who in the sport.

In fact, the players were deluged with well-wishers on the field prior to both games. It was quite a sight to see, prior to the Saturday night game in Santiago, kids swarming the field in quest of their favorite player's autograph. Several youngsters even had their stack of well-worn baseball bubble gum cards in hand.

The Dodgers' five Dominicans making the trip, veterans Mota, Elias Sosa and Teddy Martinez and rookies Pedro Guerrero and Rafael Vanderstoy, were greeted with rousing cheers at both games.

However, so were the American players on both teams.

For six Dodgers making the trip, is was not a new experience.

Hurlers Burt Hooton, Charlie Hough, Doug Rau, Rick Rhoden and Stan Wall, along with first baseman Steve Garvey, had all previously played on the island with the Licey Tigers.

They were all welcomed back in a royal fashion by their Dominican hosts, especially Garvey. It was obvious that the likeable Dodger first sacker is as big a fan favorite in the Dominican as he is in the States.

Lakers nearing crown

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — Kareem Abdul Jabbar poured in 26 points, six of them in the last 90 seconds, to lead the Los Angeles Lakers to a 109-102 National Basketball Association victory over the Phoenix Suns Saturday night.

With the Lakers leading in the fourth quarter by one point, Jabbar sank two baskets and two free throws as did Laker guard Don Chaney, to put the game out of reach.

Dick Van Arsdale became the 23rd player in NBA history to score 15,000 points. He passed the milestone at 11:04 of the second quarter, cashing in his fifth point of the night on a free throw.

With Alvan Adams scoring 12 points, Phoenix caught the Lakers with 3:57 to go in the second quarter, and inched ahead, but Earl Tatum, on a steal and layup, knotted it at 46-all at the half.

Phoenix committed 23 costly turnovers in the first half to 15 for the Lakers. The Suns had nine steals to eight for the Lakers.

Phoenix went ahead on four unanswered baskets, 54-46, in the first two minutes of the third quarter, including two by Ricky Sobers. The Lakers plugged away, and led 75-74 at the horn.

Lucius Allen had 12 points for Los Angeles in the third quarter.

Coach Jerry West of Los Angeles went to his bench early in the first quarter and as the period closed, not a Laker starter was on the floor. However, he inserted all of his regulars with 5:20 to play in the game and the Lakers up 98-89.

High scorer for Phoenix was Adams with 27.

The third consecutive victory boosted Los Angeles to 47-27.

Explaining the early mass substitutions, West said, "We had foul problems and we were having a few problems scoring. But we try to play a lot of people, and we do."

The Lakers are bobbing atop the Pacific Division, West said, because "about the last 15 ball games we have been playing good defense."

Dodgers beat Jays

VERO BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Joe Simpson's run-scoring single in the eighth inning snapped a 5-5 tie and sent Los Angeles to a 7-5 victory over Toronto Saturday in an exhibition baseball game.

Simpson's single drove home Lee Lacy who opened the eighth with a single and stole second. Simpson later scored on a sacrifice fly by Pedro Guerrero.

Winning pitcher Charlie Hough hurled the final three innings, allowing no hits and no runs. He picked up for starter Don Sutton who was shelled for three runs in the first inning. In his six innings, the Dodger ace was tagged for nine hits — five of them for extra bases — and five runs. He walked three, the first walks he's yielded all spring.

Rick Monday had three of Los Angeles' 16 hits and drove in two runs, his 11th and 12th of the spring, which is tops on the club. John Lowenstein had two of Toronto's nine hits.

Watson in control at Heritage Open

HILTON HEAD ISLAND, S.C. (AP) — The questions, inevitably, turned to Tom Watson's collapse over the last nine holes that cost him the title last week in the Tournament Players Golf Championship.

"I hadn't played really well for three rounds," Watson said. "When you get in the heat, and you know you're not playing well, it's pretty tough to come up with the shot you need when you need it.

"I wasn't at all confident of my game."

Now, however, holding a commanding lead going into today's final round of the $225,000 Sea Pines Heritage Classic, Watson is much more confident.

"I've got a four-shot lead," he said Saturday. "I'm playing well and I'm confident. If I continue to play well, I'll win. If I don't play well, somebody else could sneak in there.

"I'm hitting the ball much more solidly. I'm much more confident of my game than I was last week."

Watson, seeking a third title of the young season, expanded his lead by two strokes after the national television cameras had cut away for the day; birdied two of his last three holes and steadily composed a five-under-par 66.

That gave him a three-round total of 200, matching the best of the year and 13 strokes under par on the Harbour Town Golf Links, which stretches 6,655 yards through woods and placid water, moss-hung trees and yawning traps that comprise one of the nation's most demanding layouts.

Graham Marsh, a globetrotting Australian who has collected some 20 international titles but ranks as a rookie on the American tour, once moved to within a single shot of the leader. But he pumped one into the water on the par three 14th and took a fat "5" on his way to a 67 and second alone at 204.

That national television audience did not see Watson widen his lead by two strokes over the last two holes.

Ryan sharp for Angels

PALM SPRINGS (AP) — Nolan Ryan turned in one of his most impressive spring performances ever, combining with two other Angels pitchers Saturday to shut out the Chicago Cubs, 3-0.

It was the Angels second consective shutout victory over the Cubs. Angels pitchers haven't allowed a run to the Cubs in 23 consecutive innings.

Ryan worked the first seven innings, allowing one hit, striking out six and walking two. Mickey Scott and John Verhoeven completed the shutout.

Chicago collected only two hits, a single by Ivan De Jesus and a double by Jerry Morales. Morales was out trying to stretch his hit into a triple.

Poly finishes fifth

Champs fail to celebrate

By BILL LANGLEY
PB Sports Editor

A magnificient Southeastern Louisiana basketball team should have been able to celebrate its national championship earned Saturday at Cal Poly's Kellogg Gym in the finals of the national small college tournament sponsored by the Association of Intercollegiate Athletics for Women (AIAW).

But the Southeastern team had all of the joy taken away from it when the All-American team picked at the national tournament was announced.

Championship
Southeastern Louisiana 92, Phillips 76
Third place
Berry (Ga.) 86, Biola 60
Fifth place
Cal Poly Pomona 81, Tarkio (Mo.) 57
ALL-AMERICAN TEAM
Ethel White, High High Point
Heidi Wayment, Biola
Pearl Moore, Francis Marion
Clema Billingsley, West Georgia
Paula Dean, Berry
Pam Cook, Southeastern Louisiana
Queen Brumfield, Southeastern Louisiana
Deborah Rice, Berry
Darla Plice, Ashland
MOST VALUABLE PLAYER
Karen Cannon, Phillips

In what must rank as one of the most disgraceful all-star teams ever picked in any sport, Southeastern star center Sarah Williams was left off the 10-woman team.

Williams was the the dominant player in the tournament as the 6-foot-3 center scored 93 points and grabbed 70 rebounds in the four games in the tournament including 19 points and 14 rebounds in Saturday's championship game, a 92-76 win over Phillips University of Oklahoma.

Host Cal Poly, which gets to keep the fifth place trophy after whipping Tarkio (Mo.), 81-57, earlier Saturday, was also bypassed in the All-American picks as no Bronco was honored.

Joan Uhl scored 73 points in five games in leading the Broncos to four wins.

Southeastern coach Linda Puckett was stunned by the All-America team selected by a secret three-person committee.

"Sarah was the Most Valuable Player on our team and we won the championship," she said while shaking her head. "I don't believe our other players want this honor if Sarah doesn't get it."

"There must be a mistake," he said. "Somebody must have counted the ballots wrong. I wouldn't even care if Sarah was the tournament MVP even though our Karen also was tremendous in the tournament."

May, who did a fine job hosting the five-day event, was also upset her team was ignored in the selections.

It's obvious the AIAW still has some growing up to do to reach the big time of sports. The quality of play in the tournament and Poly's hospitality is at a much higher level then the national organization.

Southeastern completed its season with a tremendous 30-2 record after sweeping four games here in an impressive manner. And the Lady Lions lose only one senior, playmaking guard Monica Smith.

Guard Martha Lee was the scoring star for the Lady Lions in the championship game with 24 points followed by Queen Brumfield with 20 and Williams' 19.

Defending champion Berry (Ga.) will take home the third place trophy after beating Biola, 86-60, behind Paula Dean's 27 points.

Poly, an 86-66 loser to Berry Wednesday night, bounced back from the defeat with three wins to end the campaign with an impressive 28-6 mark.

The Broncs had no problems in defeating Tarkio (32-6) in taking a 37-31 halftime lead and breaking it open in the second half.

Poly's pressure defense again did the job in forcing Tarkio into 32 turnovers as the Broncs took 27 more shots than the Owls.

Center Barb Thaller led Poly with 17 points followed by Uhl (13), Robbie Beyer (12) and Musiette McKinney (12).

"I was pleased about our defensive effort," May said. "It's always nice to end the season on a winning note. It's just too bad we played Berry so early."

Kings triumph

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Dave Schultz fired in the go-ahead goal with 8:16 and Marcel Dionne added an insurance tally with 22 seconds left to give Los Angeles a 6-4 National Hockey League victory over Buffalo Saturday night.

The victory was the first over the Sabres on Forum ice since Nov. 29, 1975.

A's Washington traded to Texas

MESA, Ariz. (AP) — The Oakland A's traded outfielder Claudell Washington, one of the few remaining players from their world championship team of three seasons ago, to the Texas Rangers Saturday for pitcher Jim Umbarger and rookie infielder Rodney Scott.

Washington, 22, broke into the major leagues in 1974 and batted .285 in 73 games, helping the American League A's win their third straight world championship. He batted .308 in 1975, driving in 77 runs and stealing 40 bases, but slumped to .257 in an injury-filled 1976 season.

The A's, in announcing the trade at their spring training camp here, said the Rangers paid "a considerable amount of cash" in the deal.

Umbarger, 24-year-old lefthander, was 10-12 with the Rangers last year and had a 3.15 earned run average. Scott, 23, was with Denver of the American Association most of last year, hitting .307 and stealing 35 bases, before being promoted to the Montreal Expos and hitting .400 in seven National League games.

Washington signed a three-year contract with the A's earlier in the week but owner Charles O. Finley continued efforts to trade the player who succeeded Reggie Jackson as the team's right fielder after Jackson was traded one year ago.

A's Manager Jack McKeon said Umbarger would be used as a starter and that Scott would be a candidate for the starting job at second base.

Palmer secures lead at Crosby

RANCHO SANTA FE, Calif. (AP) — Sandra Palmer, one of the most consistent players on the Ladies Professional Golf Association circuit for the past decade, shot her second consecutive 68 Saturday to take a three-stroke lead in the $150,000 Kathryn Crosby tournament.

Miss Palmer, playing on a taped-up sprained ankle, moved to nine under par for the tournament with a three-day total of 207, three strokes ahead of Hollis Stacy.

Miss Stacy, who began the third round two strokes back of Miss Palmer, had a 70 Saturday over the 6,231 yard Whispering Palms layout.

Beverly Klass, a second year LPGA player, jumped from the pack and near the leaders with a 30 on the front nine and a 36 on the back to run her total for three rounds to 215.

Trojan swimmers win another title

CLEVELAND (AP) — Southern California's John Naber and freshman Graham Smith of California-Berkeley each grabbed his second title Saturday night as the 54th edition of the NCAA Division I Swimming and Diving Championships at Cleveland State Unversity became the greatest recordbreaking event in collegiate swimming history.

Naber, the lanky Olympian who won four gold medals last summer at Montreal, never was challenged as he won the 200-yard backstroke for the fourth straight year. He set American and NCAA records with a clocking of 1 minute, 46.09 seconds.

That time bettered his own 1975 mark of 1:46.82 and, along with his earlier victory in the 100-yard backstroke, gave Naber a record 10 individual NCAA championships. He also became the first swimmer ever to sweep championships in two events during all four of his collegiate years.

Smith, a Canadian, added the 200-yard breaststroke to his championship in the 100-yard breaststroke. He missed breaking the coveted two-minute mark by just .05 seconds, but set an NCAA record by bettering the old mark of 2:00.73 set in 1976 by David Wilkie of Miami, Fla.

Southern California, which made a shambles of the team competition in Thursday's opening events, easily collected its fourth consecutive NCAA crown. It was the ninth NCAA title for USC Coach Peter Daland.

Another freshman, Alabama's Casey Converse, set a pair of records in the 1650-yard freestyle. He won the event easily, beating defending champion and record-holder Tim Shaw of Long Beach State, as he became the first swimmer ever to go under 15 minutes in the event.

Converse's 14:57.30 broke Shaw's American and NCAA record 15:06.75, and his 9:03.98 for the first 1,000 yards also set an NCAA mark.

Dark horse David Fairbank of Stanford upset a field full of stars in the 100-yard freestyle finals in a nonrecord time of 43.68 seconds. However, the 43.49 time by Southern Cal's Joe Bottom in the afternoon trials kept intact the meet's startling skein of an NCAA record in every swimming event.

Stanford's Mike Bruner, who earlier in the day broke the American and NCAA standards set by former Indiana star Mark Spitz in the 200-yard breaststroke, lowered his own mark to 1:45.27 in easily winning the final. Bruner pulled away from second-place Bill Forrester of Auburn after a close first half of the four-lap race and beat him by more than a second.

Brian Bungum of Indiana repeated as champ in the threemeter diving, accumulating 542.40 points to nip Greg Garlich of Miami of Florida, who had 539.25.

Southern California then finished off the spectacular meet in style, setting American and NCAA records in the 400-yard freestyle relay.

'Anita Derby today

ARCADIA, Calif. (AP)—There will be 15 runners, an off-track and some faint hopes of a trip to Louisville today with the 40th running of the Santa Anita Derby which boasts a record purse of $199,000.

Rains on Thursday night and Friday dashed hopes of a fast oval for his 1⅛-mile race of sophomores each carrying 120 pounds and seeking the $131,000 top purse, largest ever for this race.

Cuzwuzwrong, who'll have Raul Ramirez riding again, goes after a second rung in the California Golden Triple. That combo already has won the California Derby at Northern California's Golden Gate Fields.

Habitony from the West and For The Moment from the East could provide the top competition for Cuzwuzwrong in the bulky field where each of the young runners must shoulder 120 pounds.

In post position order, the entries are Smasher, Incredibly Lucky, Cathy's Reject, Highand Light, Text, Cuzwuzwrong, Tale of Power, J. George, Habitony, Steel Rivet, For The Moment, Nordic Prince, Affiliate, Steve's Friend and Tequila Sunrise.

The Santa Anita Handicap will be followed by the Hollywood Derby on April 7 to complete the rich California Triple.

SAL swim marks fall

Upland High racked up 316 total points as the Highlanders wrapped up the 1977 varsity swimming and diving championships Saturday afternoon.

Montclair captured the frosh-soph title in the Highlander's pool while finishing third behind Upland and Claremont in the varsity division.

Karen Long of Upland won the diving title as she edged Alta Loma's John Leonard by two points in the final point standings. Long captured the diving by scoring five points more than Leonard in her eighth dive.

Jim Moore of Claremont High broke his own record of 1:48.4 in the 200 freestyle as he turned in a winning time of 1:47.9 in that event. Moore also shattered his 1976 500 freestyle mark with a winning time of 4:56.9. His previous best effort in this event was 4:59.2.

Upland's Paul Hyde broke Jeff Palmer's (Montclair) Thursday's prelim record with a time of 2:14.5. Palmer eclipsed Thursday's mark by five-tenths of a second at 2:15.0 in the frosh-soph 200 individual medley.

Palmer, however, broke his prelims record in the frosh-soph 100 butterfly with a mark of 1:01.5. Thursday's mark was a tenth of a second slower.

Hyde racked up his second record breaking effort of the afternoon in the frosh-soph 100 backstroke. He captured the event with a time of 1:04.3. The record was 1:06.6.

The CIF swimming prelims are scheduled for Friday and the finals on Saturday. The first six finishers in each of Saturday's SAL finals will advance to Tuesday's prelims at East Los Angeles JC.

Zorn tops NFL stats

NEW YORK (AP) — Super Bowl quarterbacks Ken Stabler of Oakland and Fran Tarkenton of Minnesota dominated the National Football League in passing last season—but the Seattle Seahawks' Jim Zorn made his presence felt, too.

According to statistics released Saturday by the league, Stabler led the American Conference and the league in passing with 103.7 rating points and had the NFL's best completion percentage, 66.7; the league's highest average gain per pass, 9.41; the most touchdown passes, 27, and the season's longest pass, an 88-yarder to Cliff Branch for a touchdown Oct. 24 against Green Bay.

Tarkenton led the National Conference and the league in completions, 255, and topped the NFC in completion percentage, 61.9, and in yardage, 2,961. He also had the conference's lowest percentage of interceptions, 1.9. Bert Jones of Baltimore was the league yardage champion with 3,104.

Zorn, the rookie from Cal Poly Pomona, threw a league-high 439 passes—San Diego's Dan Fouts topped the AFC with 359 attempts and 208 completions—and had the most intercepted, 27. New England's Steve Grogan's 20 interceptions topped the AFC.

James Harris of Los Angeles ranked as the NFC's top passer with 89.8 rating points and had the conference's best average gain, 9.24 yards per pass. Jim Hart's 18 touchdown passes for St. Louis topped the NFC in that department.

Courses, date announced for U.S. Open qualifying

By PHIL ROCHE
PB Staff Writer

Qualifying in California for the U.S. Open will be held at four different golf courses. In this area Las Posas C.C. will host qualifying. In San Diego, it's Singing Hills C.C. Other sites are Castlewood C.C. in Pleasanton and Almaden in San Jose.

Local qualifying consists of 36 holes, stroke play on Monday, May 23.

Entry fee is $45. Amateurs with a 2 or less handicap are eligible to try to qualify for the U.S. Open, which will be held at Southern Hills C.C. in Tulsa from June 16-19.

Winners in the Glendora C.C. St. Patrick's Day member-guest event were Mary Reed and Chris Pape of El Niguel with an 82. B flight winners were Jackie Fehrenbach and Gerry Stetler of Via Verde.

Pat Seivert hit a shot one half inch from the pin on No. 2 to win closest to pin award. Longest drive was hit by Merlyn Muth of Irvine.

Commissioner Deane Beman of the Professional Golfers Association tour has been informed, unofficially, that he will receive an invitation to compete in the British Open this year.

"I haven't played that kind of golf in a long time," said Beman, a former tour player and winner of four professional titles. "I'd have to think about that a little bit. I'm not sure I'd want to embarrass myself."

Old pro George Low, long known as perhaps the greatest putter the world has ever seen and equally famous as "America's Guest," is gainfully employed.

Low, who once observed, "My idea of a perfect afternoon is a golf course and a millionaire with a bad back swing," successfully had avoided permanent employment for more than six decades.

Now, however, he's a fulltime employe of Pro Tour Radio, a new organization that follows the tour, rents receivers on the course and provides constantly updated accounts of the leaders and other tournament information.

The La Verne Chamber of Commerce tournament, The Price is Right, was rained out Friday, and officials say they'll try again Tuesday. Persons interested in playing Tuesday at San Dimas Canyon in the annual event should contact the Chamber. I'm not certain that you can still enter, but it's worth a try.

Nostalgia Day at La Costa Country Club is Tuesday, April 12. That's when 46 contestants in the MONY Tournament of Champions will conduct an old-fashioned clinic and exhibition. Once a standard feature at tourneys, the clinics and exhibitions are rare these days.

The 25th annual $225,000 Tournament of Champions will be played April 14-17.

The team of Sal Galindo and Tom Zambrano won the Los Serranos Partner's Championship last week. Glenn Hall and Sarkis Derder were runnerups.

Flight winners were: A, Lloyd Shuttleworth and Tom Prokop; B, Harry Sherrard and Ralph Johnston; C, Leo Blakeman and Charles Bitney; D, Robbin Hildebrand and Ken Stahln.

Vic Regalado, former Pomona Valley star, had been having trouble with his driver. He began searching and found one belonging to a tour caddy he liked.

"I bought it for $160," Victor said. "In the first two tournaments I played with it, I won more than $11,000. I guess it was a pretty good investment."

Australian veteran Bruce Devlin anticipates surgery late this year to correct a circulation problem in his legs.

"I had the same thing done about 12 years ago," Devlin said, "but it's coming back on me."

Pirates' Dave Parker nearing superstar status

BRADENTON, Fla. (AP) — Amid the hoopla surrounding the Pittsburgh Pirates' new image of speed and defense, stands a towering reminder of the Lumber Company—Dave Parker.

"Parker should be the game's next superstar," says new Pirates' manager Chuck Tanner. "He hasn't even begun to reach his potential. He does it all, runs fast, throws hard, hits, and hits with power. He has a great attitude."

Pitcher Doc Medich, before his recent trade, said of the 6-foot-5 Parker: "He doesn't know his own strength."

Almost any player you talk with in the National League speaks in awe of the 215-pound Parker, who established himself last season as one of the best offensive players in the game.

Parker has the power to challenge Philadelphia's Mike Schmidt and the New York Mets' Dave Kingman for the home run title, plus the consistency to win the National League batting title. He chooses to aim for the batting crown.

"Home runs are not my style," claims Parker who hit just 13 last year in an injury plagued season. "I'm a .300 hitter and I'm going to continue to look at the bottom line, average and RBI.

"The home run is the glory thing," Parker continues. "The fans like it. The home run champ is like the quarterback in football. He gets the notices. Oh, I'm capable of hitting 25 or 30, but I don't think I'm capable of hitting more than Schmidt or Kingman. It's not my style. I don't have that type of swing. I don't have the home run swing."

Parker says his goal is to be a sound player both offensively and defensively. He appears to have reached it offensively. Last season he finished eighth among National League hitters, drove in 90 runs, slugged 10 triples and 28 doubles. And he missed 15 games because of a knee injury.

His defensive ability, however, still leaves something to be desired. He led the league in errors by an outfielder. Parker claims this is a case where numbers don't indicate the real truth.

"I consider myself a better outfielder than the errors indicate," insists the husky native of Cincinnati, who was an overlooked 14th round selection in the 1970 free agent draft. "The average outfielder doesn't get to some of the balls I reach with my speed. They are aggressive errors. Most of the errors are on throws, where I'm slightly off target."

"We're trying to make Dave more flexible," Tanner explains. "He can improve if he works at it.

Housing boom to spread

NEW YORK (AP) — Weakness in the stock and bond markets and worries about inflation and interest rates have put a strain on Wall Street's optimism since the start of 1977.

But on one important subject at least — the outlook for the housing industry — the financial community remains emphatically bullish.

"The housing future looks good," Citibank of New York declared this past week. "The boom that now exists on the West Coast will spread as the recovery goes on to other parts of the country."

Pomona, California ■ Sunday, March 27, 1977

No indicator reflected the economic impact of the weather this winter more dramatically than statistics on housing starts.

As temperatures plunged in January, putting the eastern two-thirds of the country in a deepfreeze, government data on housing starts posted a record 27 per cent drop.

With much milder temperatures in February, housing starts set another record — but this time in the other direction, rebounding 29 per cent.

LEWIS HOMES—ETIWANDA

Grand opening staged

Real estate

The Highlands, a Lewis Homes development at Rochester Avenue and Church Street in Etiwanda, celebrated the grand opening of its Phase II unit today with a showing of five variously styled floor plans.

The event is expected to draw large numbers of home seekers who had begun to feel themselves priced out of the new-home market.

"The Highlands offers single-family home ownership within the budgets of the great spectrum of Southland families," it was stated by Roger G. Lewis of the building company.

Purchase price has been scaled from $36,500 to $43,950 with Lewis noting that "we have been able to present the homes at this price scale without skimping on the quality of workmanship that buyers expect in a Lewis-build home.

Not only are VA, FHA and conventional terms offered, but a special financing arrangement that can benefit many purchasers is also being made available, Lewis said.

The Highlands displays two, three and four-bedroom floor plans, all but one models have two baths. All homes have two-car garages sized to allow additional space for storage.

Features include window drapes, walk-in wardrobe closets and ceiling lights in all bedrooms. Kitchens come equipped with dishwasher, continuous-cleaning oven, range, food waste disposal and ash cabinets. Living room/dining rooms, hallways and master bedroom are carpeted from wall to wall.

The Highlands is reached from the San Bernardino Freeway by exiting at Haven Avenue (at the Ontario Motor Speedway) and driving north to Foothill Boulevard, east to Rochester Avenue and north to Church Street.

All five plans are being exhibited as display models, two of them being shown in a furnished state. They may be viewed from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. daily.

Property exchange prospers

There are now over 100 exchange groups that meet monthly throughout the U.S. They create a marketplace for owners wishing to exchange investment real estate tax-free.

Each year for the past five years, members of these exchange groups have convened in Las Vegas to participate in the largest real estate exchanging session in the country. This year over 200 properties worth more than $50 million from all over the country and the world are to be offered for exchange.

"The current tax laws are the biggest factor accounting for almost double the number of exchange brokers registered for this year's convention," explained Realtor A.D. Kessler, publisher of The Real Estate News Observer magazine of Leucadia, California which sponsors the convention annually. "With the major tax law revisions of 1976, tax-free exchanging has become one of the last remaining ways of building your wealth and retaining profits for reinvesting."

By state Realtors group

Tax reforms endorsed

The California Association of Realtors has endorsed four of five tax reforms proposed by Gov. Brown.

Jerome Blank of Albany, president of the 100,000-member Association, said the organization's 1,300 Directors believe that the adoption of the four concepts will be meaningful to consumers. He stressed the rejection of the fifth concept does not interfere with the achievement of the tax treatment concept as far as the Board of Directors is concerned.

"CAR action is qualified and subject to review of the program when finally determined in coming weeks, as well as the negotiation of some details," Blank added, however.

The Governor's concepts which were endorsed at Saturday's meeting are:

—Achievement of property tax reform and relief without an increase in any state tax.

—Establishment of a homeowner's tax assistance fund of $370 million for the first year, through which the state will provide property tax rebates to homeowners.

—Imposing a limitation on revenues that can be collected through property taxes by any government agency in California.

—Increasing the assistance available to the senior citizens renters' program. This involves $60 million in state funds provided for senior citizens depending on their income level.

The element of the Governor's tax proposal, which was not yet endorsed by CAR, would involve a split assessment, sometimes called a differential tax rate. This is an element, Blank said, which would treat residential property differently from all other properties for tax purposes.

Blank said the Realtor's organization believes this is not essential, and, in effect, would be an abandonment of the principle of equal tax treatment, ignoring patterns of actual development of the state's economy.

Additionally, CAR has endorsed concepts in AB 65 (Assemblyman Leroy Greene, D-Sacramento), which would utilize state surplus funds to revise the method of school financing in California. This measure seeks to establish a basis for financial support of education, consistent with the state contribution in conformity with the recent Serrano Supreme Court case through the use of state surplus funds.

Centennial Homes project completed

As a result of the recent sale of the five model homes at the Centennial Homes-Chino development, the $7.5-million project has been completed, it was announced by Ted Cox, Southern California marketing manager for M.J. Brock & Sons, Inc., developer of the project.

"We certainly owe a lot of thanks both to the city of Chino and the home-buying public," said Cox. "The various city officials helped us immensely through all of the paperwork and processing that is a normal, but important, part of building a development. And, the patience and understanding of all the new homeowners certainly was gratifying and enabled us to proceed with the sale of the homes in an orderly manner.

"It is interesting to note that the average age of the people who purchased the 196 homes in our Centennial Homes-Chino development was less than 30. The homes had been built to meet the demand of this particular market group, and we are, of course, delighted that our preliminary forecasts were proven accurate. The number of children per household averaged between one and two, with most of them being of elementary school age or younger. And, 50 per cent of our new homeowners moved either from an apartment or a rental home, primarily from the Orange County area.

"There are a couple of significant reasons for the success of this particular development — one of the most successful we have had in the history of our company. The price range for the homes certainly contributed greatly to the popularity of the development.

Government action needed

Homeowner opportunity possible

By increasing mortgage limits and reducing down payment requirements under the FHA mortgage insurance programs, the government could create new homeownership opportunities for thousands of moderate and middle income families.

This proposal was made today by Robert Arquilla, of suburban Chicago, president of the National Association of Home Builders (NAHB), before a House subcommittee hearing of the Committee on Banking, Finance and Urban Affairs. The committee is hearing testimony on housing authorization legislation for fiscal 1978, which begins Oct. 1.

Arquilla noted that since the present FHA single family mortgage limit of $45,000 was last increased the sales price of a typical FHA home increased 41 per cent. He urged Congress to raise the FHA mortgage limit to $60,000.

FHA down payment requirements also must be reduced "or many families will find FHA programs are useless to them, unless they have substantial cash reserves with which to meet the hefty down payment requirements," he said. HUD has made the same recommendation.

As far as other housing programs are concerned, at least for the immediate future, NAHB sided with HUD Secretary Patricia Harris who supports the concept that HUD and Congress work together to implement and fund fully a wide-range of programs that are already on the books, making whatever modifications are necessary to improve their effectiveness.

The Section 235 program, which subsidizes mortgage interest rates for moderate income families, was described by Arquilla as one of the government's most effective homeownership programs. He supported HUD's proposal for increasing maximum mortgage limits to make the program more workable.

Arquilla also recommended that the Brooke-Cranston program, which provides 7½ per cent mortgage money for middle income home buyers, be extended on a stand-by basis so that it could be triggered anytime housing production fell below a certain level. "If such a program had been on the books in 1974, it might have been possible to prevent things from getting as bad as they did." Only 1.1 million starts were recorded in 1975, a 30-year low.

Arquilla also urged Congress to consider some new subsidy concepts that would assist the millions of young working families, particularly first time buyers, who have been priced out of the market.

"The national housing situation has been complicated in recent years by inflation pushing up mortgage interest rates and construction costs, along with real estate and other taxes and utility costs, beyond a corresponding increase in family income," he said. "Thus, the problem of providing housing affordable to millions of low and moderate income families, has escalated into the complex question of providing housing to a whole range of middle-income families unable to afford the median priced home."

NAHB has developed a "Common Sense Housing Subsidy Program" to deal with this very problem, he said. It would stimulate construction of 100,000 new or rehabilitated units each year in inner city neighborhoods and 300,000 units annually in other urban and suburban areas.

Under the proposal, he explained, buyers would receive mortgage interest rate subsidies of a maximum 3 per cent, but not to bring the rate below 6 per cent. The higher the price of the home, the smaller would be the assistance, with a maximum purchase of $50,000.

Builders service is offered

Herbert Hawkins Realtors announces the formation of a new Builders Service Department and the appointment of Max Fields, formerly their Arcadia sales manager, to head that division.

Headquartered in Temple City, the Builders Service Department will offer the realty firm's full facilities to builders and developers, including Hawkins Financial Services. Fields says they will market new housing tracts, condominiums, apartments or industrial developments anywhere in California that can be serviced by a nearby Hawkins office. Location and financing of land for builders and developers will also be available.

Herbert Hawkins Realtors has 75 sales offices throughout Southern California, with expansion in the North planned this year. For further information, Fields can be reached at (213) 285-9811 or (800) 242-4573 toll-free.

Southern California home buyers can expect prices to increase almost 12 per cent in 1977, according to a survey of 50 of the largest southland home builders.

The survey, conducted by Lewis & Associates, advertising and public relations firm, also disclosed that 88 per cent expected competition to be "stiffer" this year than last.

This finding is further strengthened by the fact that 81 per cent of the builders intend to allocate bigger advertising/promotion budgets than they did in 1976, reported N. Richard Lewis, agency president.

About 58 per cent intend to spend one per cent or more of gross sales on advertising and promotion, according to the poll.

The survey also revealed that 69 per cent of the builders believe after-sales service is costing more than five years ago due to the fact that buyers are demanding more service and higher quality "pick-up" work.

Polly's Pointers

DEAR POLLY — I use wooden ice cream sticks and plastic straws to help support the weight of a newly transplanted plant or one I may be training. If necessary, I tie them with garbage bag ties so the plant is not damaged. — KAY.

DEAR POLLY — Clear plastic fishing line is great to use for sewing braided rugs together as it does not break or wear out. The rugs last twice as long. — D.H.

DEAR POLLY — A discarded lunch box has many uses, such as holding hair rollers, scrub brushes and soap-pads in the kitchen. It can be a container for children's blocks, checkers, small toys and dolls. My husband even keeps his nails and small tools in one. — SONJA.

DEAR POLLY — When a recipe calls for a greased casserole I use a piece of bread to spread the butter or margarine and, when finished, I cut the bread up and add it to the casserole. — DOROTHY.

●

DEAR POLLY — I find a pastry brush is ideal for cleaning the tines of forks. — MRS. A.L.W.

DEAR POLLY — A safe and easy way to pick up small fragments of broken glass is to use heavy-duty masking tape or electrical tape, as the sticky side picks up the small bits quite easily and one's fingers are protected from cuts. — JANICE.

DEAR POLLY — If you want to reuse a bottle which retains an odor, half-fill it with water and add a tablespoon of either mustard or baking soda, shake well, let stand for an hour and then rinse. — ANGELA.

DEAR POLLY — I always add a pinch of baking powder to the other ingredients when making powdered sugar frosting so it does not harden. — LOUISE.

●

DEAR POLLY — When a recipe calls for finely cut fruit I use the vegetable corer. It does the job quickly and cuts the fruit thinner, too. — D.J.

●

DEAR POLLY — When those difficult-to-reach exterior windows need washing and a ladder is not available, use a long-handled sponge mop. I have done this and it works great. I turn the garden hose on the windows with a powerful spray to rinse them afterwards. — GLORIA.

The job you learn in the Army is a skill that stays with you.

You'll find that the job you learn in the Army has a lot of "staying" power. And it gives you options you probably didn't have before. You can use your skill to build a career in the Army.

And, we think you'll discover another important fact. The Army's job-training courses are probably the best around. They're taught by excellent instructors, in good schools, on the most up-to-date equipment. You'll have a job that could cost you a lot of money to learn in civilian life.

Remember, you're also paid good money while you learn. And after six months, while you're learning your skill, you get a nice raise. After that, further raises and promotions will come as you earn them. And, of course, the Army takes care of your meals, clothing, housing, medical and dental care, plus a lot of other benefits, such as a 30 day vacation paid every year. Send back the card today and get all the facts.

Little Vic

Young Joey Green stars as Gillie Walker in "Little Vic," a six-part story about a boy, a horse and the boy's dream of winning a great race, on KABC's Wild World of Adventure, Sundays at 6:30PM. Daniel Wilson is executive producer and creator of the series—based on the book of the same title by Doris Gates. It was the first book Wilson bought for his production company—formed eight years ago. He originally purchased film rights in the hope of making a feature film, but with encouragement and help from the ABC-owned stations, made it into six half-hour episodes for television.

Born and raised in Chicago, Danny planned to become a chemical engineer until the movie "The Huckster," starring Clark Gable, changed his life. He decided then and there to go into advertising. He learned the craft and vocabulary of television by hanging around the Chicago TV studios; served time in the army during the Korean conflict; returned home to join an advertising agency where he wrote, produced and directed television commercials. From there he went to New York where he worked with Bob Keeshan (Captain Kangaroo) writing and producing children's shows. In 1962, he created the "Discovery" series for ABC that ran eight and one-half years and won every major award for children's programming. He also produced the Emmy Award-winning ABC Afterschool Special "Rookie of the Year," starring Jodie Foster, "Me and My Dad's New Wife," " The Bridge of Adam Rush," "The Secret Life of T.K. Dearing," "P.J. and the President's Son," and many others. "I see television as the most important influence in the American way of life," says Danny. "While some programming can be considered mindless, television has the capacity to open up new vistas, thoughts and ideas, especially to young people."

MITZI ZINGS

Would you believe that "Mitzi Zings Into Spring," which airs as a CBS Special, Tuesday at 10PM, was three years in the making? Sound like the remake of "Gone With the Wind"?...Then let us explain.

More than three years ago when Mitzi Gaynor served as a presenter on the Las Vegas Entertainment Awards, she approached Roy Clark, who was also on the show, and told the country & western singer that she was one of his most enthusiastic fans. "Some day," said Mitzi, "we'll be doing a TV special together." During that same period, Mitzi would often tell her husband Jack Bean, who functions as the Executive Producer of all Mitzi's TV specials, how much she enjoyed Wayne Rogers' performances as "Trapper" on the M*A*S*H television series.

With the vagaries of show business, the three were not able to get together until this past month when all schedules matched. Each of the performers agreed it was well worth the wait. They have a mutual respect for each other as performers and human beings, with all these elements exploding into a mutual admiration society—each giving more than 100 per cent. Rehearsals were a delight, and the taping of the show was sheer pleasure, the three enthused.

Mitzi's television special, and she refers to it with a feeling of love, is her way of saying 'thank you' to the public who has made her the number one singing and dancing star in the country. The dynamic Ms. Gaynor has found new rewards in performing before the public in concert, in summer theatre and in nightclubs. She now spends at least six months a year touring the country performing in the 2000 and 3000 seat theatres. "I know it sounds corny, but I love the feeling of getting an immediate response from a live audience. The ingredients of a live performance, ranging from butterflies in the tummy as they play your entrance, to the final bow is probably the most thrilling experience for anyone who has ever worked on stage," the energetic singer/dancer philosophised.

In the Special, the trio pays a colorful salute in song, dance and sketches to the Earth's season of renewal. There's a "melting pot" medley of songs including "Funiculi-Funicula," "Darling Je Vous Aime," "Coming Thru the Rye," "Danny Boy" and "Hava Nagilah." A comedy sketch with songs chronicles the agony of dieting, and Ms. Gaynor offers a Spring medley of ballads including "Isn't It Romantic," and "Spring Time Cometh."

Actually, the humorous reference to "Gone With the Wind" does have some meaning to Mitzi's TV specials. "It's what Jack and I refer to as my yearly 'motion picture.' We take the same care and instill the same production values as the major motion picture studios did during the heyday of film musicals," explains Mitzi. In fact, Mitzi's rehearsal schedule, which is usually a month, precedes each one of her television specials. The taping schedule is always a minimum of four days, with an extra day set aside for pickups and segues.

Sarah Purcell, co-host of KABC's A.M. Los Angeles, captured a second-place trophy in the Class B Downhill Slalom competition at Snow Summit in Big Bear recently. The Second Annual Celebrity Skiing event was held to raise funds for the Muscular Dystrophy Association and all money from each lift ticket sold was donated to that organization. Sarah came in second—scant inches behind Geoff Edwards—but did manage to kick up a few snowflakes into the faces of fellow competitors including Hal Linden, Lloyd Haynes, Dick Sargent, Tom Kennedy and Paul Dandridge.

ASK THEM YOURSELF

Send the question, on a postcard, to "Ask," Family Weekly, 641 Lexington Ave., New York, N.Y. 10022. We'll pay $5 for published questions. Sorry, we can't answer others.

FOR THE REV. THEODORE M. HESBURGH,
President, University of Notre Dame

What can be done to rectify the current situation in which there are more college graduates seeking jobs than there are positions open to them?—W.B., Ventura, Calif.

● The long-range answer is, of course, the expansion of our economy and the creation of more jobs. Considering all the problems facing America, no dearth of positions should exist for our best-educated people, most of whom would like to have a hand in solving some of these problems.

FOR GINA LOLLOBRIGIDA, actress

Was becoming an actress a childhood dream of yours?—K.B., Lakeland, Fla.

● No. You'll never guess my secret passion—I wanted to be an opera star. When I got paid for my first movie, I raced off and enrolled for an operatic singing course. It's obvious that, as well as wasting my money, I also wasted my time. But I still haven't given up hope. Perhaps one of these days that course will pay off.

FOR MARIE OSMOND, singer

● Friendly. Biggest difference is that we don't tease each other as much as we do on camera. We like to play around and joke as much as anyone else, but we know when to draw the line before the jokes turn into wisecracks that really hurt.

FOR FRANK GORSHIN, impressionist

Why does Rich Little get more exposure than you? In my opinion, you're better.—Don Roberts, Green Bay, Wis.

● Rich is a very fine impressionist and deserves all the success he has. As for me, I've purposely kept my exposure on TV limited and only accept invitations for those programs I like. I do go on TV a lot each season as a host or guest on specials or in dramatic roles. Naturally, I'd be delighted to be the star of my own series if the right format came along—and if a network bought it.

Have you met any opposition from your book? What are you doing with the royalties?—L.R., Bangor, Me.

● There have been many generous letters of appreciation, for which I'm humbly grateful, and about three of the opposite type. Royalties are transmitted from the publishers directly to a foundation organized specifically for designated educational, charitable and religious organizations.

FOR EDITH HEAD, designer

● Dress designing is comparable to home decorating because one uses fabric, color and design to achieve results with both. For example, if I want to make a woman look larger, I put her in light colors and larger prints. Same applies to a room. Jewelry and accessories on women play the same role as objets d'art in a room.

FOR ARLENE FRANCIS, actress and TV personality

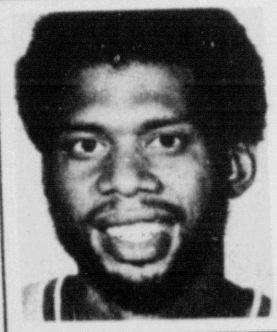
● Smile and be cheerful. It didn't take my husband Martin (Gabel) and me too long to find out that life is short; much too short to waste time arguing and bearing grudges. Every situation has a funny side, and that's what we look for. Provided you both have that attitude, you're all set for a long run.



FOR KAREEM JABBAR, Los Angeles Lakers

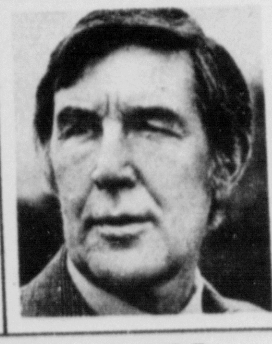
Do you need a special seat in the plane because of your height?—M.C., Van Nuys, Calif.

● When I fly, it's always in the front row of the first-class section, so there's that extra bit of room for me to stretch out. But, believe it or not, when I'm sitting down, I look a normal size. You'd never know I was seven-foot-three. And if I wasn't stuck up in that roomy section, I wouldn't feel too uncomfortable back there with all the others.

FOR THE "ASK THEM YOURSELF" EDITOR

Is it true that "Smoking Joe" Frazier wants to be an actor? —S.R., Tupelo, Miss.

● Not an actor—a singer. After his K.O. by George Forman last year, the champ decided to quit and, at age 33, has started all over again. He spent a few months working on an act and recently opened his nightclub revue in New York. His voice is pleasant, not great; his footwork in the spotlight makes you think he's still in the ring. Frazier now hesitates to shake hands; feels if his are squeezed too hard, he might not be able to hold the mike!



FOR REP. MORRIS K. UDALL (D.-Ariz.)

● Recent election results certainly demonstrated the power of a solid Southern base. But just as the South was essential to Jimmy Carter's victory, so were the votes of the big Eastern cities and those of farmers. What the election really proved, I think, is that a victorious campaign for President demands that the candidate attract wide national support.

PRO AND CON

Should Our Postal System Be Revised?

PRO Sen. Ernest F. Hollings (D.-S.C.), former Chairman, Subcommittee on Postal Operations

Yes. Most Americans are dissatisfied with the Postal Service, and rightfully so. Small post offices have been closed, deliveries reduced. Mail is late or lost. Costs soar; service declines. The Postal Service has lost money every year since its creation and is accountable to no one. Present short-term surpluses won't halt rate increases and further deficits. What can we do? First, we have to make someone accountable. I have proposed that the Congress annually review Postal Service budgets and that the President appoint the Postmaster General. By doing this, we make the people's representatives in Washington responsible for Postal Service performance.

CON Benjamin Bailar, Postmaster General

No. The Postal Service has made much tangible progress in improving mail service to the American public since it was created by Congress in 1970. Service has been upgraded, a deteriorating physical plant modernized, employees' pay and working conditions have been brought up to private-industry standards, and a merit system, not political patronage, governs career advancement. These changes have made postal employees more productive and the system more efficient. Today five billion more pieces of mail a year are processed than in 1970, but with 65,000 fewer employees. Postage rates have gone up but are still lower than in almost all Western nations.

WHO IS GOING TO WIN AN OSCAR?

All the glamor of Hollywood's annual ritual focuses on the nominees for Best Actor and Actress. Here they are.

By Peer J. Oppenheimer

Talia Shire (Rocky)

Thirty-year-old Talia Shire has plenty of artistry in her background. Her grandfather was a composer and playwright. Her father was an arranger-conductor, and her brother is director Francis Ford Coppola.

She started her professional career with a lot of little theater and countless "crummy movies," as she puts it, until she decided to study acting with a number of people, including Stella Adler.

She is married to composer David Shire. They live with their year-old son in the San Fernando Valley, intentionally far removed from the manicured existence of Beverly Hills and Bel Air.

Liv Ullmann (Face to Face)

Pacifist Liv Ullmann says of her soul-searing role as a collapsing psychiatrist in Face to Face, her seventh acclaimed film for director Ingmar Bergman, "It was the most difficult thing I've ever had to do in my life."

Before starting her film career, she was a distinguished stage actress in Norway and Denmark, having found her way there from Tokyo, where she was born of Norwegian parents (her father was a civil engineer), to Canada, and after the war, to Oslo, where she lives with her eight-year-old daughter Linn, whose father is Ingmar Bergman. She is a shy, modest, multitalented intellectual who insists first and foremost she is a mother.

Faye Dunaway (Network)

Faye Dunaway broke into the limelight in Bonnie and Clyde, for which she was nominated for an Academy Award in 1967. She earned another Oscar nomination for Chinatown in 1974. The 5 ft. 7-in. beauty with green eyes and high cheek bones admits she's overly sensitive, gets hurt easily and finds holding onto people for long is hard because of her constantly changing environments and friends. Her parents' divorce when she was 16 shattered her, and, she says, that's when she became ambitious.

After several well-publicized romances, she recently married Peter Wolf, lead singer with The J. Geils Band. They alternately live in New York City, Boston and Los Angeles.

Marie-Christine Barrault (Cousin, Cousine)

Marie-Christine Barrault, one of four children, was born in Paris. Her mother gave up being a professional pianist to devote herself to her children. Her father is the brother of Jean-Louis Barrault (of Children of Paradise fame). Marie-Christine, however, was not brought up in a theatrical milieu. But show business beckoned, and in 1964 she entered the Conservatoire National d' Art Dramatique, where she remained for two years. She has since continued her career in television, theater and motion pictures. She is married and is the mother of two children.

Sissy Spacek (Carrie)

Scrawny, freckle-faced 5 ft. 2½-in. Sissy Spacek left home (Quitman, Texas) to become famous as a rock singer in New York. She moved in with her cousin, actor Rip Torn, and his wife, actress Geraldine Page, and enrolled in Lee Strasberg's acting classes. After several failures Carrie catapulted the 27-year-old to her first Oscar nomination in the role of a naïve schoolgirl with telekinetic powers who brings dreadful revenge down on her persecuting classmates.

She's married to Jack Fisk, the young art director on Carrie. They live in rural Topanga Canyon, about an hour's drive from Los Angeles, and recently bought another house on Lake Quitman.

Sylvester Stallone (Rocky)

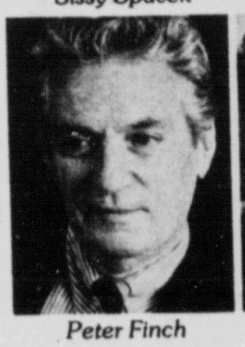
At 30, Sylvester Stallone is only the third man in Academy history to receive a Best Actor and Best Writing nomination in the same year. (Charles Chaplin did in 1940 for The Great Dictator as did Orson Welles in 1941 for Citizen Kane.)

Liv Ullmann

Faye Dunaway

Sissy Spacek

Sylvester Stallone



Peter Finch

Robert DeNiro

Stallone is married to a woman who ushered at a theater with him in New York. Last year they had a son whom they named Sage Moonblood. Before Rocky, Stallone sold several TV scripts and wrote most of The Lords Of Flatbush, a film in which he landed one of the leads. That convinced him he should head for Hollywood where, in desperation, he decided to write a vehicle for himself. The result was Rocky.

Peter Finch (Network)

Before his death on January 14 of this year, 60-year-old Peter Finch said, "No one lives more lives than an actor." He was certainly right in his case. Thought of most often as a dramatic star, Finch actually began his career as a baggy-pants comedian on the vaudeville circuit in Australia.

His nomination for his portrayal of Howard Beale, the mad prophet of the airwaves in Network, makes him the third actor to receive a posthumous nomination. (Spencer Tracy received one for Guess Who's Coming to Dinner in 1968, and James Dean received nominations for East of Eden, 1956, and Giant, 1957.)

William Holden (Network)

William Holden is an old hand at being nominated in the Oscar races. In 1950 he was nominated for Best Actor for Sunset Boulevard. In 1953 he won the Best Actor award for Stalag 17. If he wins this year, he'll be the fifth man to be awarded two Best Actor Oscars. (Marlon Brando, Spencer Tracy, Gary Cooper and Fredric March got there first.) A world traveler, Holden has a fortune in real estate and other business ventures, has had homes in Switzerland and Hong Kong but now divides his time between Palm Springs and his ranch in East Africa. He enjoys freedom in both his private and professional lives—although he is almost inseparable from actress Stephanie Powers.

Robert DeNiro (Taxi Driver)

Having sprung from New York City's tough lower East Side, 33-year-old Robert DeNiro knows firsthand the atmosphere of Taxi Driver. By age 16, he was appearing in off-Broadway productions, and later he moved into films. In 1973 he won the Best Actor Award from the New York Film Critics Circle for his role in Mean Streets. The following year the Academy Award was his for Best Supporting Actor in Godfather, Part II. If DeNiro wins this year, he will be the fourth performer (Ingrid Bergman, Helen Hayes and Jack Lemmon preceded him) to win both Best Supporting Actor and Best Actor.

Giancarlo Giannini (Seven Beauties)

Giancarlo Giannini was born in Spezia, Italy, in 1942. Although he graduated from college with a degree in electronics, immediately after graduation he enrolled at the Academy for Drama in Rome.

Franco Zeffirelli cast Giannini in the lead in Romeo and Juliet at the age of 20, and the part won him widespread acclaim. He later appeared in a Zeffirelli-directed play written by Lina Wertmuller, who would later star Giannini in her films. Giannini lives in Rome, is married to former actress Livia Giampalmo and has two sons.

HOW THEY WIN

Way before you ever see those smiling faces accepting the Oscars with "all due modesty," the winners have gone through an unbelievably intense campaign to get their little statuettes. For instance, during the last three months, the studios and the actors have spent more than $500,000 in high-pressure campaigns aimed at the Motion Picture Academy voters who select the winners. Expensive advertisements have been published in the show-business trade newspapers, some direct-mail appeals have been made, and extravagant parties have been held in an attempt to win —and buy—votes.

But if trade ads are improperly written or oversaturate the market, they can spell disaster for the film or the performer being promoted. Probably the classic case of this kind of adverse reaction occurred in 1961, when The Alamo was nominated for nine Oscars. Chill Wills, nominated for Best Supporting Actor in that film, placed an ad in the trades that proclaimed, "More people are praying for me to win the Academy Award than prayed for the 126 men who died at the Alamo." Groucho Marx was so angered by Wills's ad that he took out one of his own, stating that he was not going to vote for the gravel-voiced actor. The film did not win one major award.

Is all this hard work and electioneering worth it? Most participants say yes. An Oscar is valuable for many reasons: it can generate new interest in a film or make a relatively unknown actor a prized property, for example. So late Monday night, the recipients of this year's Oscars will undoubtedly all agree that the campaigning—however expensive—was worth every penny.

Observations™

Burning money. During the next nine years, Californians will pay an estimated $1.17 billion more for new cars and motor fuel than residents of other states. Why? Because California's smog-control standards are the toughest in the nation. The estimate, from a report to the state's legislature, makes one wonder about the direction our nation is taking. Especially when the Environmental Protection Agency tells us that, from 1975 through 1984, Americans will be forced to pay an average of more than $100 per year to support the capital and operating costs of pollution-control equipment. Much as we all like environmental cleanliness, it's well to remember even pure air and water cost money.

Downstream. The term conjures up all sorts of pleasant moments with rod and reel. To us in the petroleum industry, however, downstream denotes all of the operations that take place after crude oil is produced. These include transportation, refining, and marketing. Just as coring means cutting samples of subsurface rock as a well is being drilled; wildcat signifies an exploratory well drilled in an area where there has been no previous production; and a reservoir is an underground formation where oil or gas has accumulated. They're explained, along with other terminology, in Mobil's handy book The Language of Oil, which you can obtain by writing to Box G, Mobil, at the address below.

"FIRST FILL OUT THESE FORMS IN TRIPLICATE"

A rough winter. There's no question that the weather has been cold and heating fuel scarce this year. But there's one energy source so abundant that it could keep this nation going for a century or more: coal. So why isn't it being used more? The big problem is government's failure to provide regulatory structures for mining and using it. One irony of the past winter was that people in Fayette County, deep in the coal country of Pennsylvania, ran out of heating fuel because they had converted from coal to other fuels.

More than burning. There are other ways that coal could ease our energy problems. It could be converted to a gas, for example, that heats homes and cooks meals in the same way that natural gas does. It also could be converted into gasoline, heating oil, and jet fuel. But even though these processes are based on technology that the oil industry uses in its refineries, they all need more research before they can compete in cost with products made from petroleum. So we can't figure out why anyone would want to bar oil companies from the coal business—as has been proposed under some horizontal divestiture schemes discussed in Congressional committees. Everybody's help is needed if we're going to develop new energy sources.

FOR SPECIAL OCCASIONS/ By Marilyn Hansen

SPRING VEGETABLES MAKE DELICIOUS DINNER APPEARANCES

Asparagus is a welcome addition to the diet not only because of its delicious taste but also for its excellent nutritional value. One cup of cooked asparagus provides three-fourths of the daily recommended allowance of vitamin C, one-third of the vitamin A and about one-tenth of the iron for an adult. It's also a good source of potassium.

When buying asparagus, look for tightly closed tips and bright-green, firm stalks with very little white. Asparagus should be used as soon as possible. If you have to keep it a day or two, wrap the butt ends with damp paper towels before placing the stalks in the vegetable crisper of your refrigerator.

Another spring vegetable is new potatoes, which are used for steaming, boiling and potato salads. A medium-sized boiled potato contains about 76 calories, about the same as one boiled egg. Potatoes are high in carbohydrates, have no fat and are a fair to good source of iron and potassium. They also contain calcium and phosphorous.

New potatoes should have a thin, feathery skin of red or white that breaks easily. The best buy is probably the 10-pound bag. Size will vary from small to large. If you are particular, handpick loose new potatoes for the size you prefer. Keep in a cool, dark, well-ventilated place.

To boil new potatoes in their skins, first scrub thoroughly. Next, cut off a strip of peel around center of each potato and put in saucepan. Add boiling water almost to cover and a pinch of salt. Bring to boil, cover and cook until tender. Drain and turn into serving dish. Pour on melted butter or margarine.

TRUE OR FALSE?

1. A paranoid person is fearful of everything and suspicious of everyone.
2. People with the fewest fears and anxieties about death are those who engage in hazardous activities.
3. Many of our worst fears are inflicted on ourselves as punishment for things we've done.
4. Determining the difference between legitimate fear and neurotic anxiety is easy.
5. If we could overcome our fears, we'd have the inside track in virtually any situation.

ANSWERS

1. False. A paranoid individual's personality features a perverse paradox. He tends to be completely naïve about real dangers or threats and extremely suspicious and fearful of imaginary ones. As a Harvard Medical School study has shown, "paranoia is evidenced by undue suspicion of those who are trustworthy and naïveté by excessive trust in those who are unworthy of it."

2. False. In two studies on the fear of death of people in high-stress occupations, conducted at Stockton State College and the State University of New York, men and women engaged in sky-diving were administered standard fear-of-death tests by psychologists. When their scores were then compared with those of people not engaged in hazardous activities, "the data showed few differences." The other study compared the attitudes of policemen toward death with those of postmen, and the attitudes of the two groups did not differ.

3. True. As psychologist Carroll E. Izard observes in his treatise, Patterns of Emotions, guilt and fear are closely linked. Doing something we know we shouldn't do results in guilt feelings and anticipation of punishment—self-administered or otherwise—which in turn evoke fear. And this kind of fear is often accompanied by an excruciating type of free-floating anxiety that is hard to shake.

4. True. Psychologist Rolland S. Parker sums up the difference succinctly in his monograph, Emotional Common Sense. Neurotic anxiety, he finds, does not appear to be directed toward any particular object and is characterized by its pervasiveness and vagueness. Fear, on the other hand, focuses itself on specific threats, hazards or imminent dangers.

5. False. Fear is a useful commodity that often stands us in good stead. Exeter University psychologist K. T. Strongman points out that people learn to avoid painful situations of various types—including those occurring in social or business relations—because of the fear or anxiety associated with them. And contrary to what many people believe, the so-called "fearless" person does not have the edge in most situations. As often as not, he is likely to demonstrate that he simply lacks the good sense to get out of the rain before he gets wet.

AVOID THESE MISTAKES ON YOUR TAX RETURN

Here's how not to make the most common errors on tax returns and to avoid problems on the new forms.

By Mary Russ

Although each tax return is different, many of the mistakes are common year after year. Some may seem obvious, but the IRS says these are the five mistakes made most often..

• Don't forget to attach your W-2 form, the statement of your annual earnings.

• Do sign the return. You and your spouse must both sign a joint return. If you are due money and do not sign your return, the IRS will send the return back and wait until receiving a signed form before processing the refund. If you owe money, however, and a check accompanies the return, processing will proceed without a hitch because your signature on the check is considered as binding as a signature on the return.

• Do make sure, if you use a commercial tax preparer, that he or she also signs the return. The 1976 Tax Reform Act also requires tax preparers to include their identifying number and to furnish the taxpayer with a copy of the return. If the person who prepares your return for pay is not an employee of a firm, corporation or another individual, that person must sign the return as preparer and enter his or her Social Security number and address. If the tax preparer is an employee of a firm, corporation or another individual, that person must sign the return and also enter the employer's name, identification number and address.

• Don't forget to write in your Social Security number. If you omit it, processing of your return will continue, but the IRS will drop you a note asking for the information.

• Do file by April 15. Taxpayers who are late face possible penalties and interest charges. Returns must be postmarked no later than midnight, April 15, to get in under the wire.

This year the tax form is different in a number of little ways that can be confusing enough to trip you up. Watch out for these possible errors:

• Don't miscalculate the standard deduction either by not deducting as much as the law allows or by deducting too much. This is generally a case of simple mathematical error. Be careful. Double-check your arithmetic.

• Do study carefully the new abbreviated tax tables. On this year's return, any taxpayer who has less than $20,000 in taxable income must use the tax tables in determining his tax. Remember that you must make your deductions first to compute your taxable income; then go to the tax tables for your tax.

• Do note the change in the General Tax Credit. Last year, it was a personal exemption credit of $30 for each exemption you had. This year, you can compute your credit in one of two ways: you can either take $35 for each person or 2 percent of the first $9,000 of taxable income (limited to $180). If you don't realize that you can compute either way, you may be getting less than the law allows.

• Do remember that the child-care rules have been liberalized in the 1976 tax return. This year, expenses are claimed as a tax credit rather than as an itemized deduction. In other words, people who take the standard deductions as well as those itemized will be able to claim child-care costs.

• Don't ignore the earned-income credit. If you make less than $8,000 a year and have a child in the home, you may be eligible for a credit of up to $400. You must file a tax return in order to benefit from this credit.

THE DELICATE BALANCE OF JACK NICKLAUS' LIFE

He's a perfectionist striving to achieve new goals, yet despite the demands of the pro-golf tour and heading a multimillion-dollar business, his family comes first.

By John Dorschner

If you've ever complained about being squeezed for time, consider the case of Jack Nicklaus, who plays in 20 golf tournaments a year, heads up a multimillion-dollar conglomerate and still is willing to drop anything to see his sons play a basketball game.

"You have to know where to draw the line," says Nicklaus, golf's all-time leading money-winner with nearly $3 million earned after 15 years on the tour. "If I'm playing golf, it's strictly golf. If it's a business deal, I don't want to talk about my golf game. The trick is, I never schedule work for part of a week and leave the rest of the time free. That never works because that open time gets filled up."

Of course, with a total income of more than $1 million a year, Nicklaus has certain advantages over ordinary citizens, such as a personal staff to screen strangers and private helicopters and planes to shuttle him between appearances. Still, the pressures on his time are enormous. In one recent six-week period, he flew to Canada for skiing and a television commercial, participated in two PGA tournaments and took a trip to Australia to examine a golf course he's creating.

"Jack has the patience of Job," says Chuck Perry, president of Nicklaus' Golden Bear Inc. "I've never seen him eat a meal, even in a plane, without people coming up to him and asking for an autograph. But he's always easy-going, polite, and he has a tremendous discipline to control his time. One day, he played a practice round in the morning, then had a business meeting, which he stopped at 3:00 so he could watch a son play basketball. Then he had another meeting till 7:30, when he went to see another son play. His wife Barbara kept score. Jack kept time."

Since turning professional, Nicklaus has won 76 tournaments, including 16 "major" titles. His game has been so consistent that one sportswriter wrote a headline, "Even God Makes Bogeys/Witness Jack Nicklaus," after Nicklaus shot an uncharacteristic 82. Last year, which Nicklaus calls "a disappointment" because he did not win a major title, he still led the tour in total money winnings ($266,438) and lowest average score (70.17 strokes per round).

Focus on Sports

His success, he says, has increased, not diminished, the pressure. At any tournament he is surrounded by fans and, regardless of whether he has shot a 65 or a 78 that day, sportswriters demand interviews. Even his apparel is planned weeks in advance by marketing people (Nicklaus is partially color blind): one day the slacks he endorses are emphasized; the next day the shirt gets the attention.

On the tension-packed PGA tour, where a missed putt can be worth $25,000, Nicklaus works hard to remain calm. On the morning of a tournament, he even avoids regular coffee, settling for a breakfast of decaffeinated coffee, orange juice and two poached eggs on toast. "Especially during the last part of a tournament, when the tension builds and I can feel my forearms stiffening, I tell myself, 'Okay, boy, loosen up. Take your time.' " That's the same advice he gives amateur golfers when they ask him why his swing looks so relaxed and yet the ball goes so far: "The ball doesn't go farther because you swing faster. If you take it easy, you have a chance for everything—shoulders, hips, wrists—to come together the way they're supposed to." One of the few times Nicklaus has blown up at tournament officials was when a TV network urged that the golfers be forced to play faster. A "policeman" told Nicklaus he was playing too slowly, and Nicklaus shot four straight bogeys. That was the last time he rushed himself.

At his home in North Palm Beach, Fla., where he lives with his wife and their daughter and four sons, he keeps the easygoing pace, enjoying his family life and avoiding the Palm Beach social whirl. "When I first turned pro," he says, "I made a rule that I wouldn't be away from home more than 14 days at a time, and I've broken that rule only twice."

He often takes the family on trips. Once, he turned down a tournament, despite the fact that it was organized by one of his major sponsors, to go fishing in Alaska for a week with his sons.

This year, he's taken up skiing "because it's great for the whole family." Some of his advisers worried that a mishap on the slopes might mean he'd miss an entire golf season, but he responded, "If I don't go, I'll miss an entire ski season."

For Nicklaus, the golf-tour earnings have become almost secondary, a vehicle for publicizing his name, which in turn promotes the vast business interests that earn him more than $1 million a year. His Golden Bear Inc. has 178 employees, and he has investments in golf clubs, golf bags, balls, shoes, shirts, slacks, a new-car dealership, a travel agency, a car-leasing company, a radio station, cattle ranches, real-estate developments, a natural gas company and a golf-course architecture shop.

Nicklaus takes a personal interest in much of this, especially designing golf courses, and he makes repeated trips to the sites, sometimes ordering workmen to tear up bunkers or to fill in sand traps that looked better on paper than in reality. His Glen Abbey course has become the permanent site of the Canadian Open, and his Muirfield, Ohio, course is now the site of the Memorial Tournament, which Nicklaus himself sponsors. Muirfield is the first course especially designed for tournaments. It's laid out so spectators can watch from hilltops. Cable is buried underground for the television crews.

Do Nicklaus' business interests interfere with his golf? Arnold Palmer has blamed his financial concerns for lowering his performance, but Nicklaus doesn't think the same thing will happen to him. "I've been handling both for 15 years, and it hasn't affected me yet."

Both fans and sportswriters keep waiting for a sign of Nicklaus' decline: In February, he missed a tournament cut for only the second time in five years, but Nicklaus thinks he's in great shape: over the winter, he slimmed down to 180 pounds, the least he has weighed since his freshman year in high school.

Some of his competitors on the tour say that Nicklaus has accomplished so much that he has no more goals to achieve. Nicklaus denies that. He still wants to win a Grand Slam—the Masters, PGA, U.S. Open and British Open titles in a single year.

His goal is perfection. "Strange as it may seem," he says, "I go through a psychic downer after a big win. Once all the razzmatazz and euphoria have worn off, my mind gets back to all the mistakes I made that might have caused me not to win. And that's good.

"Anytime there's a cooling off of this impulse to improve, one emotion above all others will get a good blaze going again—embarrassment. I am easily embarrassed by myself. No single emotion is more responsible for whatever I have achieved."

Finally, Vantage Longs.

Like a lot of smokers you may like the idea of a longer cigarette. You may also want low tar.

But longer cigarettes usually have more tar.

So we worked. Until we could perfect a longer cigarette with the famous Vantage combination of full flavor and low tar.

Not the lowest long cigarette you can find. But very possibly the lowest that you will enjoy.

New Vantage Longs. A blend of flavor-rich tobaccos with tar levels held down to the point where good taste still comes through.

That's the Vantage point. And that's the point of Vantage Longs. Never before has there been a long cigarette quite like it.

WITH SPRING, COME BASEBALL SUPERFANS

"Sign Man" Karl Ehrhardt.

By Leonard Katz

For baseball fans, April is the magic month. The pennant race begins. Optimism reigns. And the super baseball fan comes alive. Here are a few of the country's most colorful rooters.

Jim Eakle, a former Marine Corps captain who now runs a bar in San Diego, says he starts to feel itchy in January. "It's a long winter and kind of frustrating for me. I just can't wait for the season to start," he says.

Eakle is known to the Padres' fans and players as the Tuba Man. He is at virtually all home games, ready to play a rousing charge on his tuba. Eakle started bringing his tuba to the ball park as a kid because it provided a nifty hiding place for a six pack of beer.

Eakle has done such a good job of inspiring the fans with his tuba that he is now regularly joined by a number of other amateur musicians. They call themselves McNamara's Band, after John McNamara, the manager of the Padres.

Karl Ehrhardt, art director for a food concern in New York City, has an inventory of 705 signs but says he will never have enough: "Each season there's something new — new players, new conditions. I try to anticipate. The big kick is coming up with something different."

In a city of rabid baseball fans, Ehrhardt is, perhaps, the most famous. He loves the Mets and can be found at Shea Stadium for every night and weekend game. He is known as the Sign Man because he flashes a sign every time something happens. Let's say the opposing manager leaves the bench to dispute a call by one of the umpires. Ehrhardt, sensing the mood of the crowd, might flash a sign that reads: "Sit Down Ya Bum." Or perhaps one of baseball's playing millionaires is unhappy over the call of a third strike. Out will come an Ehrhardt sign: "Go Count Your Money."

A few of his other favorite signs are: "Send In The Clowns" (opposition pitching change), "Who's Your Embalmer?" (strikeout victim), "You Get Paid For That?" (any uninspired play), "Night Of The Living Dead" (during seventh-inning stretch of unusually boring game), "Thou Shalt Not Steal" (opposition runner caught stealing), "A Star Is Born" (any poor play), "Don't Hurt Yourself" (hard swinging strikeout), "Stuporstar" (opposition bonehead play).

Pearl Sandow, on opening day in Atlanta, is always sitting by the Braves' dugout. A retired Federal Government worker, Miss Sandow always cheers as her "family" takes the field. Her family is the Atlanta Braves, and she hasn't missed a home game in 11 years. "I'm one of those silent sufferers," she says, referring to the problems the Braves have had over the last few seasons.

Miss Sandow, who has her personal stationery decorated with a line drawing of players in the batting cage, was honored as Atlanta's No.-1 Fan last year and given a lifetime gold pass.

Don Eskin is a truck-equipment salesman who can be found sitting right over the visiting team's "on deck" circle at Veterans Stadium in Philadelphia. Eskin chose his seat when the ball park was in the blueprint stage. His hobby: baiting and scrutinizing umpires.

"Some people look at the umpire as if he's God," says Eskin. "Not me. They have their bad days. I tell them what they need to be told when they're not on the stick."

Such as? "Well, when I see a bad call, I might ask them about the quality of their vision. You know, things like that."

For Eskin, baseball is a family affair. He goes with his wife and three children. "Some people get hooked on drugs," is the way he puts it. "We're hooked on baseball."

So's America.

Give our country a college education.

As an Army ROTC graduate, you bring more than training and gold bars to your new job in the Army.

You also bring a college education which makes you one of our country's most valuable assets. Why? One reason is the wealth of experiences and ideas you bring with you. This enables the Army to better relate to an ever-changing society.

And since you'll be an Army officer, you'll have plenty of opportunities to put your ideas to work. In fact, you'll be running your own show, right out of college.

Another reason we value your education so highly is that the people you'll be leading are better educated and more highly motivated than ever before. This makes your job as an Army officer more of a challenge.

To help you meet this challenge when you get out of school, we'll help you while you're in by giving you a living allowance of up to $1,000 each school year for your last two years of college.

There are also opportunities for scholarships that cover tuition, books and lab fees.

That way, you can make the most of your education. And when you graduate, our country can make the most of it too.

RACQUETBALL: IT'S EASY,

By Frank Satterthwaite

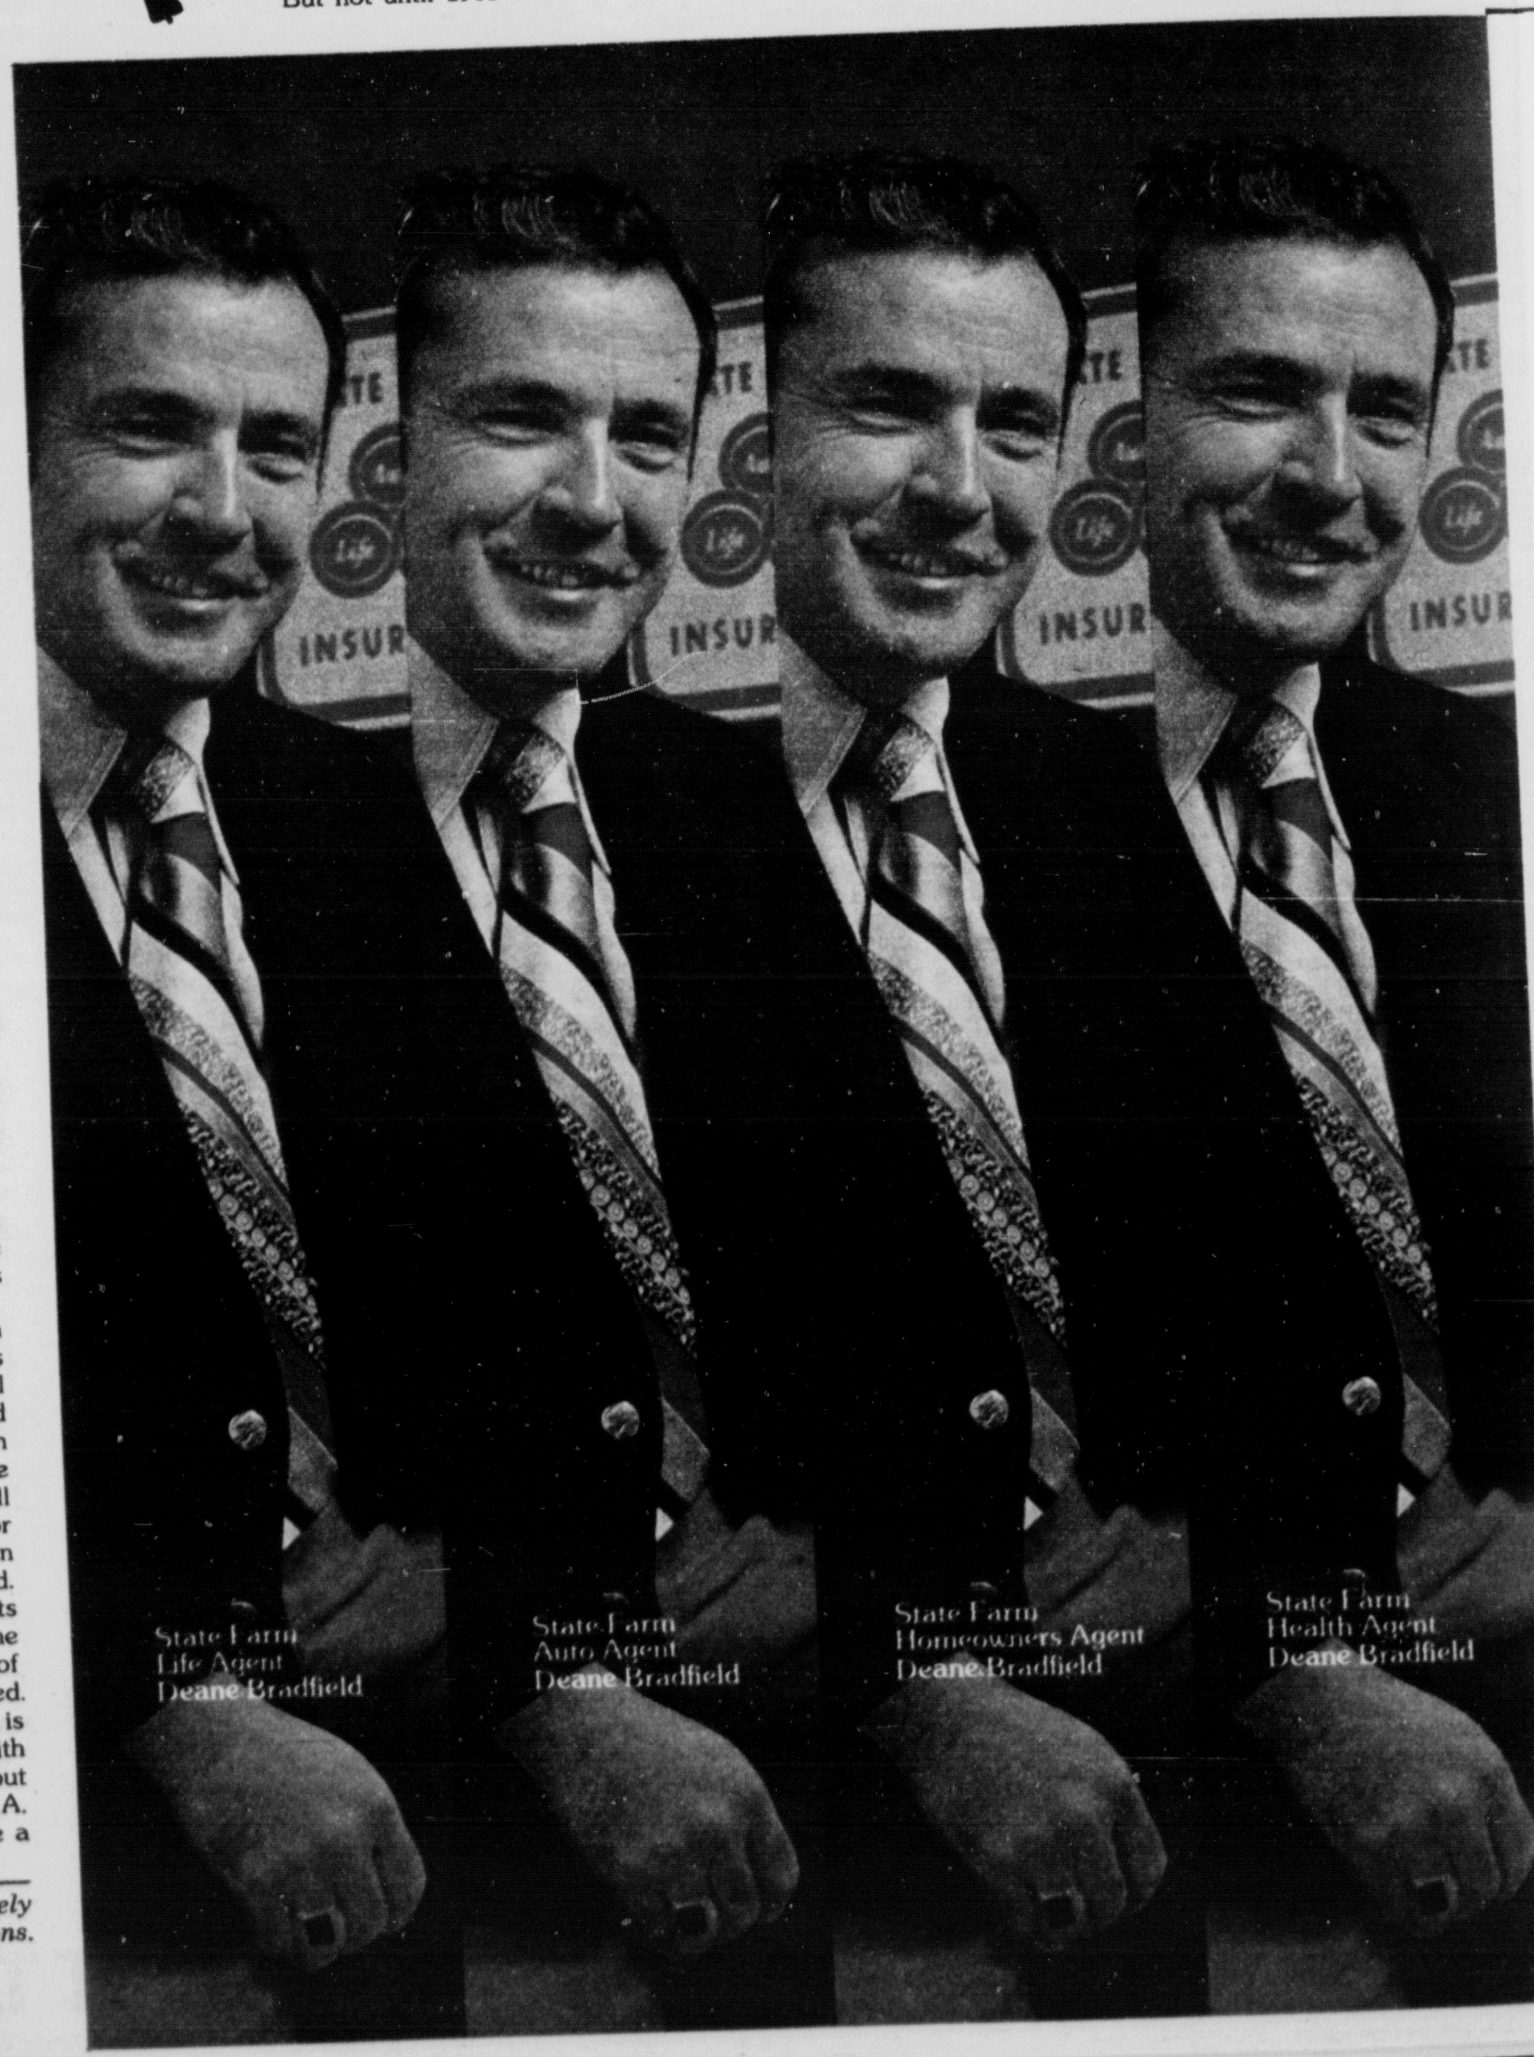
According to a recent Nielsen survey of 23 sports, racquetball is the fastest-growing sport in the country, and, says Chuck Leve, National Director of the U.S. Racquetball Association, and author of Inside Racquetball, it can be played by "anyone who is old enough to walk and young enough to run."

Why the interest? Well, for one thing in racquetball, unlike in tennis, it's a snap to hit the ball. Honest. The racquet is 18 inches long, it's strung, and it looks like a sawed-off junior tennis racquet. The hollow rubber ball is about the size of a tennis ball, but it bounces higher, and it just sort of hangs there and says, "Hit me," which is easy enough to do with that short-handled racquet. You notice the same thing in table tennis; a short handle means you can at least make contact with the ball because it reduces the hand/eye coordination problems of tennis.

But that's not the best part, which is that in racquetball there's no net, no out-of-bounds lines, even, because it's played in a four-wall handball court 20 feet high, 20 feet wide and 40 feet long. The object of the game is to return the ball to the front wall before it bounces twice on the floor. It has to make it to the front wall on the fly—that is, you can't hit it into the floor—but you can use as many walls as you like in getting it there. And, yes, the ceiling's good. Games are played to 21 points, with points scored only by the server—whoever wins the rally, wins the serve. Matches are two out of three games. Singles or doubles can be played.

The immediate predecessor of racquetball is paddleball, which is handball played with wooden paddles. A pretty good game, but John Sobek, a Greenwich, Conn., Y.M.C.A. squash and tennis pro, figured it would be a better one if the racquets had more zip. So he tried a couple of sawed-off tennis racquets and found the strings put more life in the rallies and, in particular, made it easier to get the ball to the front wall via the back or side walls. Thus the birth of racquetball in the late 1940's. But not until 1968 did the racquetballers get themselves organized when a group of players decided to form an association that would standardize rules and equipment and would promote the sport. They picked the right time, for tennis was starting to boom, and here was a sport that was not all that different from tennis but easier to pick up. And (investors take note) six racquetball courts could fit in the space of a single tennis court. Rent-a-court racquetball facilities started popping up all over, and Leve says that in the neighborhood of 15,000 new courts have been built since 1968.

Frank Satterthwaite has written extensively on racquet sports for national publications.



FUN AND CHEAP TO PLAY

One of the game's big selling points is that it is relatively inexpensive to play. Court rentals are a fraction of the cost to book a tennis court, and clothing is whatever you like. The ball, which should last about 10 games, costs only about $1.00. Racquets usually can be rented, which is a good idea when you are beginning. (You can pay up to $45 for a racquet, but you can buy a very serviceable one for $12.) And lessons? To get started you don't have to submit to the expense (and tyranny) of the teaching professional. Finding a friend who's played a couple of times is helpful, but two people who have never played any sport, much less a racquet sport, can enjoy racquetball the first time. The extra walls and ceiling are sympathetic to the beginner and are as likely as not to send the misdirected ball to the front wall, thus extending rallies.

The fastest-growing sport in the country.

Racquetballers also have evolved a lingo to describe the subtleties of their sport that makes as much sense to the newcomer as a CB exchange. A "wallpaper ball," for example, is a shot that travels so close to a wall it seems to be glued. The ball is sticky to return because you can't get a clean hit at it. If you get a setup, you can attempt a "kill"—a shot that hits the front wall and rebounds too close to the floor to be returned. A perfect kill is a "flat roll out," one that hits so close to the floor that instead of bouncing, it rolls out, unplayable. That is, it catches the "crotch," the crease where the floor and front wall meet. If you become an ace at the kill shot, you become known as a "shooter."

Another superoffensive shot is a "Z ball," a shot that hits the front wall, the sidewall and then the opposite sidewall. As it follows the path of a Z, it picks up a spin that makes it behave most peculiarly when it rebounds off the second sidewall; it zigs when you expect it to zag. For further explanation, consult a billiards player on the "reverse English" shot, for that is what we are talking about.

The correct racquetball swing, though akin to a tennis swing, is "wristier" and more compact—the windup is more golflike and the follow-through more contained. But the consensus is that racquetball actually helps your tennis because it builds confidence in your ability to meet ball with racquet. And it certainly improves your mobility and conditioning.

So now you're ready to play, and if you want to give it a try, look under Racquetball in your phone book or check with your local Y. If that doesn't work, write: United States Racquetball Association, 4101 Dempster Street, Skokie, Ill. 60076 for information on racquetball activity in your area.

Ken and Wanda Meyer of Waterloo, Iowa, thought they had found a good insurance agent when they took out an auto policy with State Farm agent Deane Bradfield more than twenty years ago.

"Since we first went to him, he's handled the insurance on all our cars–I couldn't even guess how many," Ken says.

"He helped us insure our homes while the kids were growing up. And after we moved to an apartment, Deane handled the renters insurance.

"He's also helped keep our life insurance program up-to-date."

And if they should ever require individual health coverage, Ken adds, "I'd certainly talk to Deane first."

"Whenever he thought we were underinsured or there were discounts we could take advantage of, he's pointed them out to us," Wanda says. "We've recommended Deane to many people because we know he'll treat them as well as he's treated us."

If you want to be as well treated as Ken and Wanda Meyer, just check the Yellow Pages for the State Farm agent in your neighborhood. And make it a point to get acquainted soon.

JOHN HAVLICEK: One Of Pro Basketball's Best All-Around Athletes

During the lifetime of Frank Havlicek, his son, John, was a disappointment to him because he refused to take up the only sport that interested the elder Havlicek—soccer. But though John never made his mark in soccer, he proved to be outstanding in almost every other sport. Now in his fifteenth season with the Boston Celtics, the defending champions of the National Basketball Association, Havlicek ranks as the fourth-highest scorer in N.B.A. history and has played more regular-season N.B.A. games than anybody else. Bill Russell, the former Celtic star and coach, calls Havlicek, "the best all-around player I ever saw."

The 36-year-old, 6 ft. 5 in. Havlicek also has a record of achievement in football and baseball and is known as a fine tennis player and swimmer. Some of his friends say he once picked up a fencing foil and soon showed as much skill with it as performers on the varsity fencing team.

Havlicek is a native of Martins Ferry, Ohio. His dad, an immigrant butcher from Czechoslovakia, thought soccer was superior to any native-American sport, but his son concentrated on hitting over .400 for his high-school baseball team, quarterbacking the football team and starring on the basketball court. When he moved on to Ohio State University, he restricted himself to baseball and basketball, sparking the 1960 cage team to the N.C.A.A. championship. In his junior and senior years, his team reached the final round of the N.C.A.A. playoffs.

Although Havlicek didn't play college football, he was drafted by the Cleveland Browns. He played a few exhibition games but found his grid skills had rusted and moved on to the Boston Celtics. Since joining the Celtics for the '62-'63 season, his team has won eight championships, and he has become its indispensable mainstay.

This year, he has been more valuable than ever to the Celtics. With center Dave Cowens taking a leave of absence during much of the first half of the season and guard Charlie Scott out with a broken arm, Havlicek's experience, versatility on the court and scoring (over 17 points per game) have been critical to keeping the team in contention for the playoffs.

As a 15-year veteran of the pros, Havlicek is a recognized authority on the quality of basketball players, past and present. "The players today are bigger and faster than those who started out with me, but they're not as good in fundamental play," he says. "Today's players are much too prone to take shortcuts, and they don't seem to want to learn the plays."

THE GRUELING ORDEAL OF MARATHON SWIMMING

Diana Nyad has swum around Manhattan, and next year she will attempt a trek through 200 miles of shark-infested waters.

John Marmaras

Diana Nyad is a determined athlete.

By Mary Long

At 5:00 each morning, Diana Nyad, the world's fastest female marathon swimmer, wakes without an alarm clock to eat a breakfast of raw eggs and to run 10 miles in Central Park. It is a routine she began in Fort Lauderdale when she was 10 years old and used to rise at 3:30 for swimming practice and to ride her bike through the darkness. She was an unusual, determined little girl who had the all-encompassing vision of becoming a great athlete.

At the moment, Diana is probably best known to most of us as a curiosity. She's the young woman who, last fall, greased her body, dove into the East River and, with incredible nerve, strength and stamina, swam through the slime, the oil slicks, the floating birds and the rats around Manhattan. Now the 27-year-old talks confidently about attempting a swim from Cuba to Miami in the summer of next year, a much tougher and more dangerous feat, involving more than 200 miles of choppy, shark-infested waters.

She says she wants to do it for the thrill of having done it, of course, and the pride the feat will give her. But there are other reasons, too. Her manager has told her the event is a publicist's dream, and Diana is, perhaps above all else, anxious to build an audience for her sport.

"I feel a real sense of bitterness when I turn on the TV and see men and women bowling for $300,000," she says in her husky, friendly voice. "It's not that I begrudge them the money or am belittling their talent in their sport. It's just that I, and other marathon swimmers, have put more grueling hours into what we're doing than any bowler will ever know in a lifetime, and I think we ought to be recognized and paid accordingly. There is no sport as difficult as marathon swimming, no way.

"Your heart, lungs and muscles must be working at peak efficiency. All marathon swimmers must learn to tolerate increasing extremes of pain and exhaustion. In saltwater swims sometimes my mouth swells to twice its size, sometimes I gag and vomit for hours into the water, and usually I lose about 15 pounds. Sometimes, after a while, I don't know who I am or where I'm swimming, and I'm swimming in circles. After many of my races I couldn't walk, couldn't even stand — I could feel the people around me, but I couldn't speak." She routinely swims herself into unconsciousness and delirium.

"There are lots of kids who are stronger and are faster swimmers than I am, but I have the mental stamina that almost none of them has. Marathon swims can be as long as 40 hours, and, after a while, sheer willpower takes over. In a swim, you have a changing cycle. For two hours, you're stroking along, feeling fine and strong. Then you start feeling poorly, depressed; the blood sugar goes way down, and you can feel it."

During races, Diana has a five-second feeding every hour from a little boat that accompanies her. It's a hot, powdered liquid that gives her 1,300 calories and more protein per tablespoon than a four-ounce steak. "That's often my short-term goal, just getting to the next feeding. But it barely helps. Before the hour's gone, I'm weak again. It's all a matter of mental guts. When I'm hours in cold water, my blood sugar down, 15 pounds lighter, exhausted, it takes more than physical skill or remembering how hard I've trained for this. I have to dig deep down."

To keep herself sane during the long distances when she is physically cut off from all communication, Diana counts — 60 strokes to the minute, 600 to the mile. She has a perfect clock in her head and can judge her distance that way. "I like to count to 'Row, Row, Row, Your Boat,' which has a good eight-beat rhythm," she says.

Diana thinks a great deal about why she does what she does. She says when she was a little girl of eight, she wrote an essay that expressed her despair at the swift passage of time. She said then that she wanted to be as good as possible at what she did best and to fill every minute of time and to embrace life as she saw it, day by day. She had this vision, she emphasizes, of being a great athlete, a girl who could swim or run and leave everyone else far behind.

For years, smokers of longer length cigarettes were limited to brands that needed high tar to deliver full flavor.

But no longer.

The MERIT taste science that brought full flavor to low tar smoking has now been applied to a longer length cigarette. The result: a 100mm cigarette that delivers taste way out of proportion to tar.

New low tar MERIT 100's. Only 12 mg. tar. Yet packed with 'Enriched Flavor' tobacco for extra flavor—the kind of flavor smokers of longer length cigarettes want, but could never get before at such a low tar level. Taste tests proved it.

LOW TAR-'ENRICHED FLAVOR'.

Test Data Conclusive

New 12 mg. tar MERIT 100's were taste-tested against a number of major 100mm brands ranging from 17 mg. to 19 mg. tar.

Thousands of smokers were tested. The results: overall, they liked the taste of MERIT 100's as much as the higher tar 100mm brands tested.

MERIT and MERIT Menthol. King Size and new 100's.

The taste barrier for low tar smoking has been broken again.

MERIT

Kings & 100's

Kings: 8 mg. "tar," 0.5 mg. nicotine av. per cigarette, FTC Report Dec. '76
100's: 12 mg. "tar," 0.9 mg. nicotine av. per cigarette by FTC Method.

WHAT EVERY PARENT SHOULD KNOW ABOUT HEAD INJURIES

By Alvin Eden, M.D.

The telephone rings. "Doctor, my child just fell and banged his head on the pavement. What should I do?"

Although serious head injuries are rare, this is an important problem, and as a practicing pediatrician for 25 years, I know many parents are unprepared.

Mild. This is by far the most common type of childhood head injury. The youngster hits his head, usually cries for a few minutes and then resumes his normal activities. There is no vomiting, loss of consciousness or change in his color.

If this is the type of injury your child sustains, you have little about which to worry. No specific action need be taken except to watch him carefully for the next 48 hours for any change in his normal behavior pattern, especially increasing drowsiness and lethargy.

If the injury broke the skin, the area should be cleaned with an antiseptic. Any deep cut or laceration may require suturing, and in such cases your doctor should be notified. Should swelling occur, apply cold compresses.

Moderate. This refers to a head injury that is associated with a concussion (meaning a brief loss of consciousness followed by complete recovery) or with vomiting immediately after the accident. Although the great majority of these moderate head injuries turn out to be harmless, your doctor must always be called. He may want to examine the child, or he may have you observe him at home, but this decision must be made by the physician. When talking to your doctor, you should tell him exactly how the accident occurred.

Severe. With this head injury, the child is knocked unconscious and remains unconscious. It is a medical emergency and requires immediate hospitalization. Place the child on his side, with his head slightly elevated, and take him to the hospital in this position. Other signs pointing to a severe head injury are persistent vomiting, convulsions, irregular breathing, pale color and bleeding from the ear canal. These all signify the need for immediate hospitalization.

Any child who has suffered a head injury and is kept at home must be carefully observed for the next 48 hours. The greatest danger following any head injury is bleeding within the brain. The signs that may indicate this type of bleeding are: persistent vomiting, unequal eye-pupil size, excessive drowsiness and increasing lethargy, weakness of one arm or one leg, continuous crying, any change in the child's color from normal to pale.

If you notice any of these symptoms, call your doctor immediately. I also would advise you to wake up the child twice during the night following the accident to make sure that he has not lapsed into unconsciousness. This is especially important following a moderate head injury.

You must be aware of one additional problem if your child has had either a moderate or severe head injury. In rare cases, a blood clot may accumulate under the skull, and there is a long delay after the accident, sometimes up to one month, before the child begins to show signs of increasing drowsiness or loss of balance. If this happens, the child must be hospitalized at once.

Doctors know heartburn is not caused by stomach acid alone, but by the eruption of this acid into your esophagus (the tube between your mouth and stomach).

"I have taken several leading antacids and relief was slight," writes Miss Rose Donabed, Cambridge, Mass. "Then I was introduced to Gaviscon and relief was almost immediate."

This shields the exposed lining of your esophagus from further burning discomfort. Get different, unique relief from heartburn (acid indigestion) that only Gaviscon Tablets can give you.

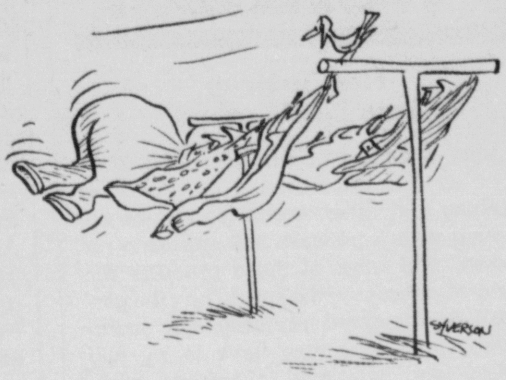
ARMOUR'S ARMOURY



COMING OUT IN THE WASH

Come, view our washing on the line:
Some things my wife's and some things mine,
Some things the children's (they're the most),

Some items small, some large and willowy.
Pajamas, socks and underwear.

If you would know us, slim and wide,
No need for you to come inside.
Just watch our washing as it dries,
Then when you see us—no surprise.

My daughter withheld an ice-cream dessert from the children because they hadn't eaten their dinner. Later, with the children in bed, she and her husband were enjoying bowls of the ice cream, when four-year-old David, eyes aglow, burst into the kitchen, exclaiming, "I heard a bowl!"

Grass Seed Is For The Birds! Zoysia Saves Time, Work, Money

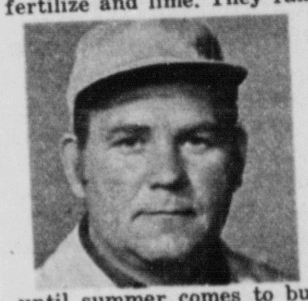
By Mike Sandin
Agronomist

Every year I see people pour more and more money into their lawns. They dig, fertilize and lime. They rake it all in. They scatter their seed and roll and water it.



Birds love it! Seeds which aren't washed away by rain give them a feast. But some seed grows, and soon it's time to weed, water and mow, mow . . . until summer comes to burn the lawn into hay, or crabgrass and diseases infest it.

That's what happens to ordinary grass, but not to Amazoy Zoysia.

"MOWED IT 2 TIMES," WRITES WOMAN

For example, Mrs. M. R. Mitter writes me how her lawn ". . . is the envy of all who see it. When everybody's lawns around here are brown from drought ours just stays as green as ever. I've never watered it, only when I put the plugs in . . . Last summer we had it mowed (2) times. Another thing, we never have to pull any weeds — it's just wonderful!"

And from Iowa came word that the state's largest Men's Garden Club picked a Zoysia lawn as the "top lawn — nearly perfect" in its area. Yet this lawn had been watered only once all summer up to August!

Cuts Your Work, Saves You Money

Your deep-rooted, established Amazoy lawn saves you time and money in many ways. It never needs replacement . . . ends re-seeding forever. Fertilizing and watering (water costs money, too) are rarely if ever needed. It ends the need for crabgrass killers permanently. It cuts pushing a noisy mower in the blistering sun by 2/3.

CHOKES OUT CRABGRASS

Thick rich, luxurious Amazoy grows into a carpet of grass that chokes out crabgrass and weeds all summer long. It will NOT winter kill. Goes off its green color after killing frost, regains fresh new beauty every Spring — a true perennial!

For Slopes, Play Areas, Bare Spots

Your Own Supply of Plug Transplants

NO SEED, NO SOD!

There's no seed that produces winter-hardy Meyer Zoysia. Sod of ordinary grass brings with it the problems of seed, like weeds, diseases, burning out, other ills.

DROUGHT AND WEAR RESISTANT

Amazoy lawns take cookouts and parties — children playing on it won't hurt it, or themselves! Stays green right thru scorching heat and drought!

NO NEED TO RIP OUT PRESENT GRASS PLUG AMAZOY INTO OLD LAWN, NEW GROUND OR NURSERY AREA

When planted in existing lawn areas plugs will spread to drive out old, unwanted growth, including weeds. Easy planting instructions with order.

PATENTED STEP-ON PLUGGER IS . . . . . FREE WITH ORDERS OF 600 PLUGS OR MORE

Amazoy exclusive! No one else can offer you this patented 2-way plugger. Saves bending, time, work. Light, rugged, invaluable for transplanting. Cuts away competing growth as it digs plug holes

Every Plug Guaranteed to Grow In Your Area • In Your Soil

- AMAZOY WON'T WINTER KILL—has survived temperatures 30° below zero!
- AMAZOY WON'T HEAT KILL—when other grasses burn out, Amazoy remains green and lovely!

Plug Amazoy into an entire lawn or problem areas. Plug it into poor soil, "builder's soil," clay or even salty, sandy beach areas. I guarantee every plug to grow . . . from part shade to full sun! Any plug failing to grow in 45 days replaced FREE. Since we're hardly in business for the fun of it, you know we're 100% sure of our product.

If it isn't Amazoy, you're not getting the plugs that made Zoysia famous.

Shop Around To Keep Auto Insurance Costs Down

Premiums for automobile insurance are soaring as companies complain that they cannot afford the rising cost of repairs and the increased number of claims. The current cost of auto insurance is 20.2 percent higher than it was at the beginning of 1976. How can motorists cut insurance costs? The most important thing consumers can do is shop around, according to the Illinois Department of Insurance. A study prepared for it showed that 72 percent of the people questioned considered only one company when buying insurance. The Illinois agency recommends comparing prices and service with at least three insurers. (The agency cited the case of a 34-year-old married man who found he could have paid anywhere from $115 to $794 for exactly the same amount of coverage.) If you want to check the financial stability of a company, try Best's Insurance Reports, an annual publication of the A.M. Best Co., a private organization that rates insurance companies. The publication should be available at local libraries or insurance agents' offices.

Your Doctor's Profile

The American Medical Association has released its annual "Profile of Medical Practice," based on a representative sample of more than 300,000 doctors engaged in direct patient care. A few fascinating facts: surgeons make the most money, psychiatrists the least. The average fee for an initial visit to a doctor ranges from $12 for general practitioners to $41 for psychiatrists, and patients have to wait an average of 20 minutes to see their doctors. Patients seeking doctors' appointments found they had to wait an average of 7.3 days before their doctor could see them for a nonemergency. The interval varied from a high of 17 days to see obstetrician-gynecologists to a low of 2.4 days for anesthesiologists. About one of every five doctors practicing in the U.S. last year was a graduate of a foreign medical school, and a doctor with an average practice, says the AMA, earned $86,575 before taxes last year.

You've Got A Second To Spare

The rotation of the earth is slowing down. Not enough for you really to worry about, but enough for the world's timekeepers to add an extra second this year. The National Bureau of Standards says that the second was needed to keep atomic clocks synchronized to the spin of the earth. Atomic clocks measure time with an accuracy of one second in 350,000 years.

The 1977 National Easter Sea' Child

Tips On Helping A Handicapped Child Face The Future With Confidence

If you tune in to the National Easter Seals Telethon on TV this weekend, you may meet Danya Steele, 7, of Little Rock, Ark., this year's National Easter Seal Child. An outgoing, intelligent and outspoken little girl, Danya is attending first grade and learning to swim, despite a birth defect which forces her to rely on the use of braces and crutches. Danya's father, Danny Steele, is a teacher at a Little Rock high school and made these suggestions to any parents, friends or children who may have to learn to cope with the problems of helping a handicapped child.

1. Seek out the very best doctor you can find.

2. If the doctor who is working with your child comes up with a diagnosis you cannot accept, get a second, or even third, opinion.

3. Contact agencies — local, state and parents organizations — who can give information, referrals and financial aid.

4. Don't be afraid to ask questions of anyone.

1. Follow the directions of the physical therapist exactly regarding work at home. Be persistent and consistent with your child's therapy. Play games to break the monotony, but stick with the therapy.

2. Always attempt to broaden the child's experience with new stimuli — new games, toys, books. Try to compensate for whatever limitations his lack of mobility may cause him. Encourage the child to try new things that are not dangerous.

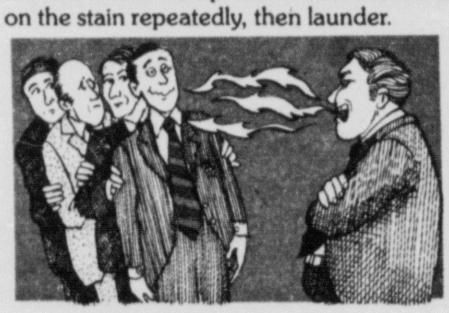
3. Do everything possible, with the doctor's advice, to make the child self-mobile.

4. Take everything one step at a time.

How To Keep Your Life Spotless

A spot is easiest to remove if treated as soon as it is discovered. Most stains on clothing and other washables can be removed with a prewash soil and stain remover, and most of these products are sprayed directly on the spot. Then the garment is laundered normally. For extra-tough spots, you may have to try two sprays and washings. Washable items should be laundered according to the manufacturer's-care label; and keep in mind that water temperatures are most important when removing stains. Nonwashables will usually come clean with an application of a dry stain remover.

- Gravies and sauces. Scrape off as much of the grease as possible. Use a spray prewash stain remover to remove the residue. If the sauce has a good deal of milk or cream in it, use lukewarm water with soap to remove any solid portion.
- Wine. Lukewarm water will remove white wine spots; a dry spot lifter will usually take care of red or rose wine spots.
- Coffee. Traces of sugar must be removed with a damp cloth. Use hot water on the stain repeatedly, then launder.



Do Workers Need Fewer Bosses?

Industry should get rid of half its bosses, says behavioral psychologist Alfred Marrow. "Adults are capable of handling their lives outside their homes, at their jobs," he insists. If a shirt manufacturer's customers are returning merchandise because the collars are crooked, he said, the people who make the shirts are more likely than management to identify the problem quickly if they get together to talk about it. But if the boss comes on as an adversary, bawling them out for bad work, the workers probably will react angrily and work will suffer. For employees who have not yet discovered they can actually influence management, Marrow suggests: "If you have problems or objectives that will be good for the company, first discuss them with your co-workers. Get together with as many people as you want, but don't force any to join you. Tell the others, 'We won't involve you, but you're welcome to join us later if you want to.'" It is best for all who share the same views and objectives to be present when the presentation is made.

Quick Takes

Twenty-eight percent of first-graders tested in a recent study by Duke University wished they were different children, while only 18 percent of third-graders expressed that wish. But in answering another question, "Would you change the way you look if you could?" more than 60 percent of all children in the first, second and third grades said yes.... Hawaii's island paradise is being spoiled by too many people, says Gov. George Ariyoshi, who is strongly urging passage of a constitutional amendment to stem the tide of new residents.... Send all entries to North American Bait Farms Inc. 1207 S. Palmetto, Ontario, Calif. 91761.... The language of love was needed for the wedding of José Estrada and Virginia Pride. Although they have a lot of things in common, language isn't one of them. "They ought to get along pretty good. They've got nothing to argue about," said Ocoee, (Florida) Sheriff's Deputy John Robbins who performed the ceremony for Miss Pride, who speaks only English, and Estrada, who speaks only Spanish.... Pickle pollution has the folks of the California city of Gonzales in a sour mood. So much so, in fact, that the city manager sent the offending pickle factory a bill for $86 million for allegedly polluting the city sewer system. The factory's response? "Obviously, I haven't got $86 million," company president Alan Langlois replied. "Maybe they would take part of it out in sweet gherkins?".... Now You Know Department: There are 336 dimples on a standard golf ball.
